'NO WAR,' BRITAIN'S PLEDGE

COALITION PLAN IS SIDETRACKED BY REPUBLICANS

Not Ready to Join Rebel Democrats.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 22.—[Special.]—The Republican high command has turned thumbs down on the various proposals for a coalition of Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats in advance of the Democratic national convention.

It is not so much that the G. O. P. leaders calculate they can win the 1936 presidential election without the aid of the conservative Democrats, though this is undoubtedly their conviction, as it is that they are unwilling to do any trading until they know what the insurgent Democrats can deliver. The true extent of the Democratic defection, they surmise, will not become known till the Democratic convention is held, if then.

Colby Promoting Third Party.

Former Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby is promoting a movement for the formation of a third party composed of anti-Roosevelt Democrats. Former Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey, who was Mr. Hoover's ambassador to France, is agitating for a conference of Republicans, conservative Democrats, and independents, to adopt a program for fighting the New Deal.

The Edge proposal appears to be the product of a correspondence between the former ambassador and William Allen White, the Emporia, Kas., editor, who has espoused the candidacy of Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas for the Republican nomination for President. Mr. Edge, it is understood, would not be averse to accepting second place on the ticket.

The coalition makers have been toying with all kinds of schemes to unite the Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats in support of a common ticket. Some are in favor of abandoning the name Republican, which is anathema to the south [except when religious prejudice prevails], and coalescing with the conservative Democrats under the name of Constitutional party, as the Republicans and war Democrats formed the Union party in 1864.

Want G. O. P. to Pick Democrat.

Others would have the Republicans nominate a Democrat, such as former Budget Director Lewis Douglas, for Vice President. All of them would pledge the Democrats a number of places in the cabinet, thus establishing the sort of coalition government Great Britain has had for several years.

All of these schemes have been pronounced premature by the eastern leaders. They take the position that they want to be shown how much the widely heralded Democratic revolt against the New Deal is going to amount to. If, they say, there is any Democratic schism worth recognizing, it will materialize at the Democratic convention, or immediately afterward. The conservative Democrats will walk out of the convention, as did the silver Republicans in 1896, or otherwise bolt the party, as did the gold Democrats the same year, and the Bull Moosers in 1912. If it then appears that the Democratic defection is substantial it will be time to deal with the insurgents.

This is one reason that the Republican leaders have decided to hold the Republican national convention after the Democratic meeting, instead of before, as has been the custom.

Against a Democrat on Ticket.

While many of the Republican leaders would be willing to pledge the conservative Democrats a certain number of places in the cabinet, few of them are in favor of putting a Democrat on the ticket. That has been done, but not with very satisfactory results. Andrew Johnson, Tennessee's Union Democratic governor, was nominated as President Lincoln's running mate in 1864. When he succeeded to the presidency upon the assassination of Mr. Lincoln he soon became embroiled in bitter quarrels with the "Black Republicans," who brought about his impeachment.

The Whigs, in 1840, nominated and elected John Tyler, a former Democrat, as William Henry Harrison's running mate. President Harrison lived only a month after his inauguration. Mr. Tyler became President and quarreled with the Whigs throughout the term. With only a heartbeat between President and Vice President,

ASSEMBLY SEES A LONG, STORMY EXTRA SESSION

18 Subjects Listed in Horner's Call.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Chicago legislators studied Gov. Horner's call for a special session of the general assembly yesterday and concluded that they had better prepare for many weeks of journeying to Springfield, beginning next Monday. The special session will convene at 8 o'clock in the evening of that day.

Eighteen specific subjects were listed in the call, including, among matters certain to cause controversy, such topics as unemployment insurance, amendments to the occupational diseases act, the insurance code and a drivers' license law.

This combination alone made many of the Chicagoans feel that they would be fortunate if they finished the work of the session by Jan. 1.

In spite of the eighteen subjects, the governor omitted from his call legislation much desired by the Chicago board of education. James B. McCahey, president of the board, wired Mr. Horner last night that he was disappointed to learn the call "was not broad enough to permit legislation to repay our Chicago schools the $2,384,255 owed us by the state for moneys advanced for excess costs of maintaining classes and schools for delinquent, deaf, blind, and crippled children."

McCahey said that repayment of the amount had been counted on by the board to make up the cash balance necessary to meet its December pay roll. "May I beg you again to give consideration to this matter and find a way to include such legislation in a further call?" said McCahey's telegram to the governor.

Mr. Horner could call a second special session to run concurrently with the first, but that would entail another payment of $50 to each member of the legislature. This $50 is a legislator's "salary" for a special session.

Governor Ignores Advisers.

In opening his call to at least two topics the governor acted contrary to the advice of Democratic legislative leaders and state officers who met with him at the executive mansion about two weeks ago. Because they wished to "avoid controversial bills," they advised against inclusion of unemployment insurance and the occupational diseases act amendments, which industrial organizations are expected to oppose.

Some dispatches from Springfield said the Illinois Manufacturers' association had indorsed what is understood to be the Horner administration's plan for unemployment insurance—the building up of individual reserves by private concerns rather than creation of a "state pool" in which all collections would be dumped and distributed by the state. Either plan is permissible under the new federal security act.

James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the Manufacturers' association, denied that his organization favored the individual reserves plan. "We have not indorsed any kind of unemployment insurance," he said.

Pay Roll Tax Proposed.

A one per cent pay roll tax, in conformity with the national social security act, is believed to be the plan the state bill will provide. It may be proposed to levy the tax on both employers and employés. The revenue from this tax could be used under either the individual reserves or the state pool plan.

Other portions of the social security legislation are not expected to cause much controversy. The state's old age pension law must be amended in several minor sections to comply with the federal act—if Illinois is to get from Washington half of the one dollar per day pension for each of its citizens who are eligible to receive the payments. Similar provisions for federal shares must also be made for dependent children and the blind.

However, neither of these three matters will call for additional taxation, it is thought. The Horner administration is planning to finance them from current sales tax revenue and other present sources.

Labor Urges Amendments.

Labor leaders were responsible for inclusion in the governor's call of the proposed amendments to the occupational diseases act. A portion of the law relating to providing safe-

NAZI OFFICIAL GOES TO SLEEP AS HITLER SPEAKS; LOSES JOB

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Oct. 22.—Because he went to sleep while listening to Reichsfuehrer Hitler's radio speech, a high official of the Prussian financial administration was ordered to hand in his resignation within five days. Other officials of the same administration have been warned they can expect the same fate if discovered showing an equal lack of interest in Hitler's orations.

The incident occurred when the official in question was summoned with his colleagues about two weeks ago to an auditorium in the administration building where he is employed and directed to sit down and listen to the broadcast of one of Hitler's addresses.

The local leader of the Nazi Civil Servants' association noted that the official began to nod and finally fell asleep. He was immediately reported to the ministry's personnel chief.

DR. BLOODGOOD, FAMOUS CANCER AUTHORITY, DEAD

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood, international authority on cancer and head of the Johns Hopkins university laboratory of surgical pathology, died suddenly here tonight. He was 68 years old. Death was due to coronary thrombosis.

Although in ill health for more than a year, Dr. Bloodgood was able to continue his duties. He was stricken while seated with members of his family in the living room of his home.

In addition to his duties on the Johns Hopkins staf he was head surgeon in St. Agnes hospital here. Private funeral services will be held tomorrow.

Dr. Bloodgood was born in Milwaukee, Wis., on Nov. 1, 1867, and was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1888 with a degree of bachelor of science and from the University of Pennsylvania in 1891 as doctor of medicine. He also studied abroad.

In 1929 he was awarded the gold medal of the Radiological Society for North America for his work in the study of bone malignancy diagnosis and treatment by X-ray and radium. Only 18 others had been given the medal previously. He was one of ten men selected for the University of Wisconsin's hall of fame in 1922.

He founded the American Society for the Prevention of Cancer in 1913 and acted as its spokesman.

He lectured numerous times in Chicago as well as throughout the United States and abroad.

Hearst Assails California Tax; Plans to Move

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—In a letter to Arthur Ungar, editor of Daily Variety, a trade paper dealing with the motion picture industry, W. R. Hearst today announced his intention to remove from California and reside henceforth in New York.

"It is utterly impossible for me to remain here," Mr. Hearst says, "and to occupy a place like San Simeon [Hearst's show place ranch in San Luis Obispo county, which is twenty by fifty miles in extent] on account of the federal and state tax laws.

"The California income tax law goes to 15 per cent. Add this to the federal income taxes and the New York taxes, and many other taxes, and I find that more than 80 per cent of my income will go in taxes—in fact, it may be nearer 90 per cent. Under these circumstances it is necessary for me to eliminate the high income tax of California.

Must Close Coast Places.

"I hope still to be able to spend some time in California, but I am compelled to close my places and live almost entirely in New York. Heaven knows I do not want to leave California. No one does who is a native son whose father was a pioneer.

"What I do is of little consequence, but I fear that a great number of people with considerable incomes are planning to reside elsewhere and that a great many who have it in mind to come to California and to remain here at least half their time are realizing the utter impossibility of doing so.

"The California law contains the peculiar provision that if any one, even though a citizen of another state, remains in California six months of any year he thereby becomes for that year a citizen of California and is subject to California income taxes in addition to the taxes he has to pay in the state where he has actual and legal residence."

Cites Film Agitation.

Reverting to the movement for motion picture executives to abandon Hollywood, which was prominent in the electioneering in the last California election campaign, Mr. Hearst says:

"It would seem that a number of moving picture people who earn considerable salaries are unwilling to pay the high income taxes of California and are accepting engagements in the east or abroad. I am inclined to think that if some alert moving picture company should establish studios in Florida or Delaware or New York City or some other suitable eastern place, it could get many of the most valuable players away from California. This would be better for the nation than allowing them and many leading directors to go abroad to build up English pictures and foreign pictures generally."

Mayer Sees Others Following.

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Louis B. Mayer, commenting on the announcement by W. R. Hearst that he would leave California, said he believed it "inevitable that others will be obliged to follow."

Mayer, president of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, said:

"Mr. Hearst's leaving evidences the fear in all our minds of the disastrous consequences of reckless and discriminatory tax legislation. It seems inevitable that others will be obliged to follow, regardless of their great love for this state."

DEALER GETS CHECK OF $250,000 FOR TON OF COAL FOR RELIEF

Vineland, N. J., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—George Duggan, Vineland coal dealer, received a state check for a quarter of a million dollars today in payment for a ton of coal sold the state Emergency Relief administration.

Mr. Duggan was surprised when he saw the check. He hadn't expected that amount. What he had hoped for was $12. That was the price of the coal he had sold.

But there it was, a check for $250,000, drawn by Lee Pickard, manager of the finance division of the state relief administration.

Mr. Duggan telephoned the ERA headquarters in Newark and told them he had their check for $250,000. They were surprised to hear it. They told him to bring the check to Newark. So Mr. Duggan went to Newark with it.

At Newark it was said that the check was a routine business check, non-negotiable except by the bank to which it was supposed to have been sent. The mixup was the result of a mail clerk's error. He put the wrong checks in two envelopes.

Orang Born; a Rare Event at Lincoln Zoo

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Officials of the Lincoln Park zoo were slightly surprised yesterday when Nancy, the orang-utan, gave birth to a 1½ pound orang. Nancy chose the discreet hour of 3 a. m. for the event, while Night Keeper John Heppe nervously hovered near, but not too near, as Nancy is fiercely secretive about her maternity. Mother and child are doing well, Floyd S. Young, director, reported jubilantly last night.

The birth of an orang-utan in captivity is extremely rare, and if the baby lives it will be considered "priceless, and strictly not for sale," Mr. Young declared.

Mystery Attends Birth.

The young orang's entrance into the world was attended by a good deal of mystery. In the first place, Mr. Young said, they had no reason to suspect that Nancy was about to become a mother. However, as she had given birth to her first baby in May, 1934, without much warning, he considered it was possible.

Nancy's first baby orang, Betty, died 10 days later from malnutrition, caused by Nancy's nervousness and concern over the child and her consequent inability to provide milk for her. Mr. Young was bitterly disappointed when the valuable little orang died. It was the first ever born here.

The father of the baby is Jiggs, 10 year old orang-utan. Both he and Nancy were born in Sumatra. He weighs 140 pounds and Nancy weighs 160 pounds.

Peered At by Father.

While Nancy hugged the baby to her breast, as the mother orang does continually during her offspring's infancy, Jiggs occasionally peered into her curtained cage from his adjacent cage. Jiggs and Nancy are separated by a partition of sheet steel. In the solid plate is a sliding door, which leaves a quarter-inch aperture when closed. Through this small opening yesterday Jiggs observed his family, and strutted. Whether the baby is a male or female is not known, as Nancy keeps her infant pretty well hidden. No one can come near her.

Director Young was most surprised by the birth because, to his knowledge, the two orang-utans had not been in the same cage in nearly two years. He had not learned yesterday who had opened the doors between the two cages, or when. The parents were separated because their family life was unharmonious.

They Can't Get Along.

"The orang-utan is strictly monogamous," said Mr. Young, "and in the wilds their family life is most harmonious. We tried letting Nancy and Jiggs live in the same cage and they fought continually.

"Before Jiggs came to the zoo we tried to mate Nancy with another orang. They fought, too, but he was larger than she was, and knew enough to sock her in the jaw once in a while, so he got along with her.

"She can pick Jiggs up and throw him across the cage, though, so she hasn't much use for him. We just had to break up their family life. The curious thing was that when we encouraged their domesticity there were no offspring, for which we were very anxious, of course. Then we put a partition between them, and they decided married life is not so bad."

BOYCOTT WILL BE ONLY ACTION, ITALY IS TOLD

Way Cleared for New Peace Talks.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Great Britain will not go to war to stop Italy from grabbing Ethiopia. Neither will Britain or the league of nations blockade the Suez canal or apply any other military sanctions against the Fascist kingdom.

Furthermore, if Premier Mussolini has any suggestions for an early ending of his war with Ethiopia, they will be listened to sympathetically during the ten days before league economic sanctions are put into effect. Britain has no quarrel and intends to have none with Italy and any one who accuses her of provocative action is a liar.

This was the substance of the speech which Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary, today made to parliament, assembled for a short session after the summer recess. The house was called together a week early because of the international situation and will sit only three days, after which it will be dissolved for general elections, which will probably be held Nov. 14.

House Filled to Capacity.

Unlike the usual tail-end session, the house was filled to capacity. The peers' gallery and the diplomats' gallery were filled to the last seat. Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador, was among those present.

Hoare's speech, a carefully studied and documented history of the critical African situation, developed and defended British policy and action at every step.

The foreign secretary pointed out the difficulties facing the league and declared that to say it had been slow in acting was calumny in the face of the difficulty in getting unanimity among more than fifty sovereign states. The league, he said, could not be said to have failed because the covenant of the league has never been tried out. If it fails, the hope for a new and peaceful world becomes more remote, he warned.

"Peace or Destruction."

"There was a cry on the continent early this century: 'World power or decline,'" he said. "We say now: 'World peace or destruction.'"

Turning to British-Italian relations Hoare denied in most emphatic terms that England has any quarrel with Italy or is motivated by anything but a desire to support the league of nations in seeking world peace.

"Most of all, we have never regarded the controversy as an opportunity for attacking Fascism. Countries must settle for themselves their own form of government. We have not the least intention of interfering in the domestic affairs of other people."

He also denied "the myth sedulously circulated" that Britain alone is taking the lead in the imposition of penalties on Italy and in the league discussions.

Will Act Collectively Only.

While Britain never has disguised her views, he said, she has emphasized all along that she can only act in a collective undertaking and in no case alone or in advance of others.

Replying to the Italian charge that Britain paid no attention to the Italian announcement of an intention to absorb Ethiopia until the situation was hopeless, Hoare said that when the Italian government communicated its intentions last January a committee of the cabinet immediately began a study of the case. Italy, he said, acted with such haste that consultation and harmonious development of plans for Ethiopia were impossible.

The same argument was used against the charge of delay on the part of the league. Precipitate action, if it had been possible to get unanimity, would have precluded all chances of conciliation, Hoare said. He added that he hoped conciliation is still possible.

Thinks Boycott Will Work.

Defending the application of economic rather than military sanctions Hoare declared that he and his league associates believe that an economic boycott will shorten the war and prevent its spread.

He asserted that the application of military sanctions never was advocated by Britain or even considered at Geneva.

Military sanctions, like economic sanctions, he declared, can only be applied collectively, and there is not the slightest chance of getting unanimity for such a course.

As far as Britain is concerned he said:

"We are not prepared and do not intend to act alone."

Hoare did not enlighten the house about Premier Pierre Laval's 2,000 word "yes" given in reply to a British query about the French support of the British in the Mediterranean, except to say that the answer was entirely satisfactory.

The foreign chief extended an olive branch to Mussolini.

"There is still a breathing spell before this economic pressure can be applied," he said. "Can it not be used for another attempt at settlement? Italy is still a member of the league. I welcome this fact. Cannot this eleventh hour chance be used so as to make it unnecessary to proceed further along this unattractive road of economic action against a fellow member, an old friend and a former ally?"

Opposition Replies.

Hoare's speech was listened to with rapt attention and punctuated from time to time with short, sharp bursts of applause, but an air of seriousness hung over the house which seemed to dampen the boisterous enthusiasm displayed on some less important occasions. When he sat down there was a rumble of "Hear, hear" for two or three minutes.

In the remainder of the session the opposition leaders, Maj. C. R. Attlee for the Laborites and Sir Hubert Samuel on behalf of the Samuelite Liberals, tried their hardest to find a crack in the government armor.

Attlee, leading the Labor offensive in the new rôle of leader of the party in succession to George Lansbury, who resigned in protest to the party's approval of league of nations sanctions, charged that the government acted too late in pressing for application of economic sanctions.

"Had the government taken as firm an attitude in January as in September with Premier Mussolini, we would never have embarked on this adventure," he contended.

Samuel Urges Military Force.

Samuel found no complaint with the government's policy to date, but urged Britain to press for military sanctions at Geneva in the event that the present penalties fail to get the desired effect. He promised the fullest support for any further measures the British government may apply in an effort to end the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

Simultaneously a discussion of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute was going on in the house of lords. A new note was introduced here by Lord Mottistone who strongly opposed the lifting of the arms embargo in favor of Ethiopia.

"What we have to decide," he said, "is whether the people of this country should go to war with the people of Italy. Do you suppose Italy regards in a calm, dispassionate way the sending of arms to its enemies?"

Resume Debate Today.

The debate will be resumed in the house of commons tomorrow by Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin who is intervening a day earlier than was expected. In his speech he will make the first official announcement of the date of the dissolution of parliament.

The Labor members are annoyed at the decision to stage a speedy election and intend to put on the order paper tomorrow a motion of censure on the government with respect to its unemployment policy. This merely is a piece of political maneuvering and an effort to hit the government in its most vulnerable spot before the elections.

As parliament is to be dissolved Friday it will be impossible to provide a special time to debate the vote of censure, but there is a possibility that the government will agree to discuss unemployment Thursday if the Laborites persist.

Woman Leaps to Her Death in Lake Off Jackson Park

Mrs. Celeatus Kamp, 37 years old, 8127 Ingleside avenue, jumped to her death in the lake yesterday off Jackson park at Sixty-fifth street. She became ill and despondent recently, Woodlawn police were told by her husband, Gustav, who identified the body.

7 French Warships Sail for Secret Destination

TOULON, France, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The French cruisers Foch, Tourville and Deupleix sailed today for an undisclosed destination, accompanied by three submarines and the sloop Colonial. Naval authorities said they were "on maneuvers."

BRITISH PLEDGE NOT TO MAKE WAR RELIEVES ITALY

Rome Sees London 'Coming to Her Senses.'

ROME, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Italy, from apartment house janitor and restaurant waiter to those high in Fascist councils, breathed with relief tonight at news of Sir Samuel Hoare's assurances to the British parliament that Great Britain plans no military sanctions.

Italians on the street considered the foreign secretary's speech the first good news for Italy that has come from London for some time. They spoke of it as evidence that their British friends "at last are coming to their senses."

Government spokesmen, meantime, politely declined to commit this government until the so-called behind-the-scenes peace talks between Italy, France, and Great Britain have achieved something "more specific."

Drummond Sees Suvich.

Carrying on these conversations, Sir Eric Drummond, the British ambassador, again conferred with Fulvio Suvich, Italian subsecretary for foreign affairs. They were closeted for more than an hour.

Afterward neither British nor Italian sources were authorized to give details of the conversation, but well informed persons assumed it embraced a "feeling out" process.

Slow progress in the Ethiopian negotiations was predicted. Britain, it was said, must have time to adjust its policy, and Mussolini must have a stronger position, since he is expected to lay claim to territory held by his armies in any arrangement.

Sanctions seem less formidable to the Italians the nearer they approach. Published figures show that the Fascists probably can get much of what they need by increasing trade with nations that are not members of the league of nations and those that are against sanctions.

Order "Belt Tightening."

A "tightening of the belt" is already under way. Fascist officials are spreading the word to abolish luxuries, live more simply, and use Italian goods.

The government today banned the London Daily Telegraph from Italy. No official reason was given, but it was known that the newspaper has annoyed the Italian government several times by its reports.

One of these occasions was a recent article which said Italy had told France it was no longer able to defend the Brenner Pass and must ask France for aid. The Telegraph is regarded in political circles as the mouthpiece of Capt. Anthony Eden, Britain's minister for league of nations affairs.

A report from Gen. Emilio de Bono, commander in chief of the armies in east Africa, said all was quiet.

The steamship Calabria sailed from Naples tonight with more than 2,000 soldiers and 120 workmen for east Africa.

Egyptian Prince Arrives in Ethiopia with Doctors

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Prince Ismail Daud, a relative of King Fuad of Egypt, arrived here today with an Egyptian Red Cross unit, that country's contribution to war-afflicted Ethiopia. With the prince were five doctors, three chemists and numerous assistants. They brought 100 cases of medicines. The prince was domiciled at the palace of Emperor Haile Selassie.

Code Flashed by Lamp Calls Doctor to Island

LONDON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Morse code signals flashed by a lamp on the telephonesless Papa Stour Island of the Shetland group summoned a doctor and a nurse from the mainland tonight. The lamp signals explained an inhabitant had been taken ill and needed an immediate operation. The doctor and nurse rushed to the patient in a lifeboat.

23 NATIONS BAR ARMS TO ITALY; TURKEY IS 23D

Spain Stops Export of Any War Materials.

GENEVA, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Turkey notified the league of nations today it will apply an arms embargo against Italy in accordance with the league's plan, becoming the twenty-third nation to take the action. Iraq had previously informed the league it would apply the arms embargo as well as financial sanctions.

Spain Bars War Materials.

MADRID, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The Spanish government issued a decree today prohibiting exportation of war materials of any description to Italy. The decree was the first decisive step Spain had taken in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

It was decided on by the cabinet after Salvador de Madariaga, Spain's representative at the league of nations, recommended that the league's program for an arms embargo against Italy be actively supported by Spain.

The decree, effective tomorrow, when it will be published in the Official Gazette, specifies that the embargo includes any and all chemicals which might be used in chemical warfare.

New Zealand to Act.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Prime Minister G. W. Forbes announced today that legislation in support of league of nations sanctions against Italy will be introduced shortly by the New Zealand government.

J. G. Coates, minister of finance, said all communications between New Zealand and the United Kingdom regarding the Italo-Ethiopian conflict have been shown to the leaders of the Labor party.

The government desired, he explained, that the people of New Zealand would speak with one voice at a time of international crisis.

WHAT IS NEWS? HERE'S WHAT IT IS IN NEBRASKA

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 22.—(AP)—What is news?

News is when you have:

Died, moved, eloped, been ill, sold out, sold hogs, been shot, been born, had a baby, been drunk, been gyped, had a fight, broke a leg, had a party, caught a cold, been robbed, had company, been married, bought a car, been visiting, broken an arm, been courting, been divorced, been arrested, stolen anything, gone crazy, lost your hair, had a birthday, had an anniversary, been bitten by a snake, had an accident, cut a tooth, or had an operation.

Yes, that's news.

FRANCE SEEKS EASIER ITALIAN PEACE TERMS

Premier Laval Defends New Arms Budget.

PARIS, Oct. 22. — (AP) — Premier Pierre Laval was said in authoritative quarters tonight to be seeking a clarification and modification of Premier Mussolini's views on settlement of the Ethiopian war before submitting them to London.

Hits Devaluation Advocates.

"Advocates of devaluation," he told the chamber of deputies finance committee, should not complain, for they are unable "to gauge the difficulties their policy would bring."

Laval said his peace making efforts "will succeed" because the "present situation cannot help but improve."

At a cabinet session he reviewed his peace efforts. Most of the meeting was devoted to internal political and financial issues.

Decrees giving the government strict control over public demonstrations and the private possession of arms were announced. The decrees are intended to check fights between political forces and will be offered the cabinet later for approval.

Laval Called "Buffer."

Laval was officially described as "a sort of buffer" between Great Britain and Italy, trying to induce Mussolini to modify his peace terms before submitting them to London.

The cabinet will meet again tomorrow for further discussions of the situation with the ministerial council meeting under the chairmanship of President Albert Lebrun immediately afterward.

France's good will efforts between Italy and Great Britain are expected to be continued by Marshal Henri Petain who went to London today to be guest of honor at a banquet to be given by the "Great Britain-France association" tomorrow.

ITALIAN POET AND AUTHOR SAILS TO FIGHT ETHIOPIANS

ROME, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Dr. Filippo Tommaso Marinetti, poet and author and Italy's "father of futurism," sailed tonight to join the troops in East Africa as a captain.

News of his sailing caused a wave of amusement in military circles, because, although Marinetti is acknowledged to be a good soldier—he holds two world war medals for valor—he is more famous as a bizarre artist.

It was Marinetti who recently proposed air cooled aluminum and celluloid hats for hot days, equipped with adjustable handles and bumpers for windy days, aluminum ties and a number of other oddities in dress. Brother officers wonder what Marinetti's futuristic imagination will do to such drab equipment as army tents and kitchens.

EGYPTIAN LEADER ASSAILS BRITAIN FOR WAR POLICY

Sees Nation Dragged Into Hostilities.

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Former Premier Ismail Pasha Sidky, one of the leading statesmen in the near east, today drew a contrast between British attacks upon Italian policy and the way the British government "is treating Egypt."

Expressing alarm over the danger of the military and naval defense measures Britain is taking in Egypt, Sidky said:

"Sir Samuel Hoare has declared to the league that he placed very highly the rights of little countries, that he wanted to give his aid to guarantee their independence and liberty.

Fears Egypt Being "Squeezed."

"Is it then not paradoxical, since there is not one logical reason to prevent Egypt from exercising its independence, which is recognized in the highest places, that such declarations were made unless it is to be supposed they were simply playing to the gallery?"

Sidky, whose "iron hand" government lasted longer than any other since the world war, said he believed Britain and Italy are squeezing Egypt "into the field of battle."

The danger of British defense measures here is that they are destroying Egyptian-Italian friendship dating from the Roman empire era, he said.

Assails Present Premier.

"I know Britain has an excuse. She considers that Egypt should be represented in this serious crisis only by the chief of her government," Sidky added.

"But Britain must know that Tewfik Nessim Pasha [Egypt's present prime minister], who governs without any control from parliament and without a constitution—both discarded by him—is a man without a will against the representative of Britain.

"He is a man who worries least about the wishes of his own country, attached as he is to the conception existing before 1919—that little countries must be under the thumb of big ones, without a voice of their own.

Wants British Alliance.

"We do not ask anything extraordinary. We only ask that we be allies of the British—small allies, certainly, but precious allies if one considers that sincerity is better—considering our geographical situation—than allies with the biggest armies.

"Here we do not feel any danger from Italy in Libya. Italian intervention in Ethiopia does not affect seriously our interests in the source of the Blue Nile—interests which are exaggerated. In this matter we have received all kinds of assurances."

Sidky said a military alliance with Britain must have compensations in the extension of Egyptian rights and liberty. He recalled that negotiations with the late Arthur Henderson failed in 1930 because of a plan for placing troops on the Nile "against the wishes of the Egyptians."

Britain will meet no opposition from the present Egyptian government if it decides to apply the Hague neutrality rules to Italian vessels calling in Egyptian ports, a well informed source said tonight. These rules limit to 24 hours the stay of Italian war or troop ships at Suez canal ports or at Alexandria.

DEPOSED ETHIOPIAN EMPEROR IS MOVED TO ISOLATED PRISON

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, Africa, Oct. 22.—The tragic figure of Lij Yasu, former emperor of Ethiopia, who has lived in chains since his deposition eighteen years ago, has reappeared in the limelight for a fleeting moment, but only to change his cell without casting off his fetters.

Travelers from the Lake Rudolf district in Ethiopia say Lij Yasu arrived with a strong escort about ten days ago in the remote southwest country bordering on Kenya.

This grandson of the great Emperor Menelik, whose unstable character cost him his crown and liberty, had been confined in the fortress of Gara Muleta, near Harrar, in a gilded cage in which he lived luxuriously, although chained night and day to the wrist of a friendly guard. Although the fortress was perched on an inaccessibly high mountainside, the Italian advance induced Emperor Haile Selassie to remove Lij Yasu to a more desolate spot hundreds of miles from the lines of the invaders. In Italian hands, Lij Yasu might prove a powerful weapon against the present emperor.

ITALY CAPTURES FORTIFIED TOWN ON SOUTH FRONT

20 Ethiopian Casualties Reported in Clash.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY IN NORTHERN ETHIOPIA, Oct. 22.—[Exchange Telegraph.]—Reports from the southern front today said the forces of Sultan Olol Dinle, supported by Italian troops, had captured the fortified village of Gidle, northeast of Dagnerei, which was taken by the Italians last Friday. The attackers encountered strong resistance, the reports said, and 20 Ethiopians were killed or wounded in the clash.

De Bono Tells His Goal.

WITH THE ITALIAN FIELD HEADQUARTERS IN NORTHERN ETHIOPIA, Oct. 21.—[Delayed.]—(AP)—Gen. Emilio de Bono, 70 year old commander-in-chief of Italy's armies in Africa, said today his goal was the complete submission of all Ethiopia

"I intend to carry out my task methodically and resolutely," he said, "with full confidence that events will justify Italy's action."

The commander praised the morale and health of his soldiers. His next objective is Makale, 60 miles southeast of Adowa, on a strategic caravan trail. But no important fighting is expected on the northern front for several weeks.

Italians said that the Ethiopians are massing at Amba Alagi, 50 miles south of Makale, and that it would take some time for them to move up to Makale.

Put Italian Dead at 87.

Gen. de Bono said slaves would be freed as the Italian army advances. He recently issued a proclamation liberating them in this section.

"We are arranging the details as to what to do with the slaves," the commander asserted. "Most of them will stay with their present masters. But they are now free to pass to other employers if they want to. At any rate, they will be released step by step as the occupation proceeds.

"We have scrupulously observed the rights of the population. Payments for food furnished us are strictly made. Damages suffered in our occupation are paid for by cash."

Gen. de Bono has ordered the institution of a state-controlled market to end the boom period which followed upon the Italian occupation. So high had prices gone that Ethiopians were selling beer at a dollar a bottle and a chicken for a dollar and a half.

Churches of England Back League in Present Crisis

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Full support for the league of nations in the present crisis was expressed by the most important religious bodies in Great Britain in a recent private conference at Lambeth palace, residence of the archbishop of Canterbury. The archbishop released this tonight in issuing a report on the conference, which was attended by representatives of the Church of England, the Evangelical and Free churches, the Salvation Army, the Church of Scotland, and other Scottish churches.

HULL GETS BID FROM LEAGUE TO BACK SANCTIONS

U. S. Views Asked on Question.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Cordell Hull today announced he had received the bid of the league of nations for American participation in sanctions against Italy. A league communication was forwarded to the state department by Hugh R. Wilson, American envoy at Geneva.

The communication was reported to cite the peace measures it has undertaken, including the declaration of a financial and economic boycott against Italy. The overture for American coöperation was reported to be contained in a request for an expression of this government's views.

Complete Report on Way.

Secretary Hull said he had not had time to study the message thoroughly. He did not make the text public. The message was reported to be comparatively brief. A full set of documents giving in detail the league's actions was reported to be en route to the state department by mail.

It is believed that the state department will not deliver a reply to the league until the communication has been submitted to President Roosevelt. The President may await the receipt of the mailed documents before volunteering an expression of this country's attitude as desired by league powers.

Stimson Urges League Aid.

It was understood that the league did not specifically ask that the United States join in the sanctions against Italy or make an outright expression of coöperatiion with the league. However, state department officials said the fact that the league sent a communication is evidence of angling for American participation in the drive against Italy.

During the day the state department studied a plea by Former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson that this country coöperate with the league in curbing Italy as an aggressor. In a magazine article, Stimson advocated a declaration that the United States is ready to consult for peace and that it will not act to hamper acceptable joint action by other nations to curb an aggressor.

PRESS WIRELESS NOW WILL COMMUNICATE DIRECT WITH ETHIOPIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—The federal communications commission has granted Press Wireless, Inc., radio subsidiary of a group of leading American newspapers, authority to communicate direct with Addis Ababa, it was learned today.

At the same time the FCC received an application, which probably will be granted, from R. C. A. Communications, Inc., which usually clears its European trafic through London, for similar authority to pick up Ethiopia direct on two of its radio stations at Rocky Point, Long Island. Previously practically all war news from Addis Ababa has been routed from the Ethiopian radio station, ETA, via British Marconi circuits to London and thence to the United States.

The new direct circuits from the United States to Ethiopia will be 7,000 miles long, one of the longest radio spans ever attempted on schedule. Press Wireless, Inc., will receive through WJS, its station at Hicksville, Long Island, where it has recently doubled its transmitting power to 10,000 watts.

Backers of Press Wireless, which is required under the regulations to make its facilities available to all the American press, are the New York Times, New York Herald-Tribune, Christian Science Monitor, Chicago Daily News, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Los Angeles Times, and San Francisco Chronicle.

Direct communication between Ethiopia and the United States will eliminate, it is believed by high authorities, any possibility of censorship of the Italo-Ethiopian war news at London. It also is expected that the direct circuits will expedite the transmission of the news—assuming, of course, ETA's capacity to handle the immense amount of word trafic coming out of Emperor Haile Selassie's capital.

STUDENTS HERE INTERESTED IN EUROPEAN WAR

War clouds in Europe and Ethiopia have brought about a definite shifting of student academic interest at the University of Chicago and Northwestern university, it was learned yesterday.

At both institutions there has been an unprecedented enrollment in courses in international relations. At Northwestern, according to Kenneth W. Colegrove, professor of political science, this is evidenced by a 15 per cent increase in international relations students.

At the University of Chicago, interest in foreign affairs has increased to such an extent that a special faculty committee, headed by Quincy Wright, professor of international law, has been set up to cope with the situation. A course in the history of American diplomacy, little patronized formerly by the university students, also has had an unprecedented enrollment, Prof. Wright said. This, too, he ascribed to the Italo-Ethiopian war.

Mayor Kelly Proclaims Nov. 1 Citizenship Day

Mayor Kelly yesterday proclaimed Nov. 1 Citizenship day, during which Chicagoans are urged to rededicate themselves to the continued improvement of local, state, and national governmental affairs. The promotion of good citizenship, the mayor said, will revive public interest in the conduct of good government, and be conducive to stability, peace, and prosperity. Gov. Horner has issued a similar proclamation for the state.

Mrs. Louise Schaffer Bauer, wife of Dr. Walter Bauer for whose mutilation murder her childhood sweetheart, Mandeville W. Zenge, is awaiting a life sentence, drew her travel mileage at the state's attorney's office yesterday and prepared to return at once to Kirksville, Mo., where she is night superintendent of nurses in a hospital. She said she would be willing to return to Chicago if the state needs her further.

CHICAGOAN FLIES ETHIOPIAN RULER OVER HIS TROOPS

Haile Selassie Denies His Foes Fight Unfairly.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Piloted by John C. Robinson, colored Chicago aviator, Emperor Haile Selassie today made his first plane flight in several years in order to say good-by to his imperial guardsmen, en route to Dessye. After circling over the thrilled soldiers several times, the emperor waved his farewells from the sky, as the soldiers salaamed, then returned to the palace.

The government tonight denied a report published abroad that Ethiopian forces in the north under Dedjazmatch Ayelu had been defeated by the Italians, suffering heavy casualties.

Denies Italy Uses Gas.

Emperor Haile Selassie also flatly denied reports that the Italian army had used either poison gas or dum-dum bullets in its invasion of his kingdom.

[Dr. William Hockman, American physician from Wheaton, Ill., was quoted in dispatches from Addis Ababa recently as saying he treated a soldier apparently wounded by dum-dum or explosive bullets. Other dispatches have said the Italians had used gas.]

The emperor also denied that Italians ran their tanks into towns and villages in Ogaden province, killing the inhabitants by machine guns or crushing them under the tanks.

Wants to Mitigate Horrors.

"Let us try if we may," he said, "to mitigate the inherent horrors of war by being frank and honest and giving our enemies credit where credit is due. Is not war terrible enough without investing it with such horrors?"

He would not permit his own troops to use gas or dum-dum bullets, he said. Admitting Italian planes have bombed many frontier towns, he said this had little effect on his troops, who carefully hid themselves in the ground.

"But," he declared, "what grieves me is that a considerable number of defenseless women and children have been killed by the bombs."

Haile Selassie said he was firm in his position to reject one-sided peace terms because, he asserted, the Italian armies have scarcely dented Ethiopia's national defenses and have not yet tested the mettle of Ethiopia's troops. The morale of the latter, he asserted, was never higher.

Predicts Italian Defeat.

The Italian occupation of Adowa and Aksum he described as being like "armed marauders entering an empty, undefended house. The inhabitants had long since left on the orders of the government in order to preserve the towns from destruction."

Asserting the Italians have not demonstrated any outstanding military strategy and have not met the main Ethiopian forces in their mountain strongholds, he said it was there the Fascists would meet defeat.

"They shall not pass," he declared. "Those words are written on the hearts of our soldiers." We have sufficient arms, ammunition and money to carry on if Mussolini refuses to listen to the collective warnings of the nations of the world. We will fight the struggle to the end, with every prospect of success."

The emperor said that up to the present neither Italy, France, Great Britain nor the league of nations had offered him any peace proposals.

Earlier today Haile Selassie gave final instructions to Minister of War Ras Mulugueta, who then left for Dessye, about 175 miles northeast of Addis Ababa, to command a great concentration of troops there. The troops are expected to move to the northern front after Haile Selassie goes to Dessye next week.

King Gives Raw Meat Feast.

Eight thousand crack warriors started their march to Dessye this morning to join the concentration, which is an attempt to avert what the Ethiopians believe is an Italian plan to join their northern and southern armies at that point.

The emperor gave a raw meat feast today to 20,000 warriors under the command of Dedjazmatch Abbera Damtou, governor of Gama and Gofa provinces. Three hundred and twenty cows were slaughtered in Mosaic fashion. The wild-eyed and bushy haired warriors rose in groups from their squatting postures and rushed excitedly before the emperor, professing their unwavering loyalty.

Ex-Chief Forgiven by King.

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 22.—[Reuters.] Fitaurari Berru, former Ethiopian minister of war, who has been out of grace, made peace with Emperor Haile Selassie today by walking into the palace with a heavy grindstone poised on his head as a symbol of submission. The emperor signified his forgiveness by removing the stone. Berru, it was understood, will be given a high army command.

ADVISES ITALIANS TO USE GUNS ON IL DUCE INSTEAD OF AFRICANS

LONDON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Jack McGovern, fiery Glasgow left wing Laborite, declared during house of commons debate today that "in the 50 years of Queen Victoria's reign this country indulged in 32 wars, large and small."

"Mussolini," he continued, "is now playing the self-same game that Britain played. If Italian workers had the intelligence to use their machine guns on Mussolini and the Italian ruling class, it would be a more intelligent thing than going out to Africa and slaughtering poor natives there."

Not Ready Yet to Join Rebel Democrats.

Hoffman's Chances Fading.

Mr. Edge's flirtations with Gov. Landon have directed attention to the state of the Republican party in New Jersey. There appears to be anything but that unanimity in favor of the candidacy of Gov. Harold G. Hoffman for the presidential nomination, which his admirers had predicted. In fact, there is such division that there is a good deal of doubt that Gov. Hoffman will reach the convention as even a favorite son. Among the politicians there is much favorable discussion of Frank Knox of Illinois and Gov. Landon. The anti-machine element is booming Senator Borah.

Gov. Hoffman has been much in the headlines of late with his proposal of an amendment of the constitution providing that the Supreme court shall pass on the constitutionality of all laws before they shall go into effect. He is making speeches in support of the scheme wherever he can get an audience.

"One of the 'modern conditions' which confront us," he says, "is the possibility that a President, elected upon a constitutional program and bound by oath to adhere to the constitution, may violate his pledge and undertake to replace our constitutional republic with a dictatorship based upon the teachings of Karl Marx. I believe we should make forever impossible any future repetition of such an adventure.

"I am assured that the Supreme court, in its present form, is able to carry out the terms of this amendment.

Would Halt Illegal Enforcement.

"The adoption of this amendment would make forever impossible any attempt by a President to change the form of the government of the United States by a series of revolutions ad interim, each conducted by the enforcement of an unconstitutional law for the usual two years intervening between its enactment by congress and its rejection by the Supreme court.

"It would make illegal expenditure and illegal taxation alike impossible. It would remove from American life the uncertainty as to the political future which now paralyzes ambition and enterprise. It would confine government to its proper constitutional functions and prevent illegal invasions of private rights. It would reestablish the American principle that the government exists for the people and not the people for the government.

"Under this amendment we could collectively and individually proceed with the business of earning our livings without fear that such plans as we might make could be disrupted by legislative or executive experimentation. I believe that this amendment provides a specific answer to the general complaint which fills the public mind of the United States.

"The average American has had his fill of rainbows. He will respond to the challenge of this amendment—the challenge contained in a free and unhampered opportunity to demonstrate that his ability and industry entitle him to an earned living."

HUNT 'GRAIN EXPERT' WHO SWINDLED HIS 13 'FRIENDS' OF $5,400

Sheffield police yesterday invited 13 residents of the Kolping house, 811 Oakdale avenue, to the detective bureau to look over photograph in the swindlers' gallery for a likeness of George Benjamin, who is missing with $5,400 which he promised to invest in the wheat market for the 13.

Officials of the brokerage house for which Benjamin represented himself as a customer's man, said that he had carried a small account with them until six months ago and had recently been seen in their office, although he had no connection with the firm.

Robert Arbuthnot, one of the 13, who gave Benjamin $900 to invest, discovered the fake when, preparing to get married, he attempted to draw out $2,700 to which he figured his $900 had pyramided on recent wheat prices.

WANT AD FAKER GETS PROBATION FOR SIX MONTHS

Harrison C. Hunt, 51 years old, 7616 Colfax avenue, who made fraudulent use of a want ad in THE TRIBUNE, pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to commit an offense before Municipal Judge Eugene J. McGarry yesterday and was placed on six months' probation.

Miss Clara M. Nelson, 4541 Sheridan road, was the complainant. Hunt was accused of having represented himself wrongfully as an official of a New York insurance company, advertising in THE TRIBUNE for cashiers whom he asked to post cash bonds.

Hunt at first insisted on a jury trial, but changed his plea when confronted with the report of investigators that he has a police record in New York as a passer of bad checks. Hunt had been held in jail in default of bond since his arrest on Oct. 1.

Admiral Byrd Lectures Here on Antarctic Finds

ADMIRAL BYRD.

Thorne Hall on the McKinlock campus of Northwestern university was filled to capacity last night when Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd lectured on the results of his 1934 expedition to the South Pole, which he illustrated with motion pictures of Little America. Mountains, 9,000 feet high with streaks of bituminous coal and fossilized tree trunks and leaves were found 180 miles from the pole, Admiral Byrd declared. Ice from one of the lakes which in certain places was frozen to a depth of 3,500 feet, when melted revealed living organisms thousands of years old.

Convict Editor of Libel Published in Handbills

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Bergan Morgan, former Homer, Ill., newspaper editor, was found guilty in County court this afternoon of publishing libelous election material in the form of handbills. Mayor John Gray of Urbana, then a candidate for the office, was attacked in the printed matter which was circulated throughout the city prior to last April's election.

COL. M'CORMICK CAUTIONS G. O. P. ON CANDIDATES

Warns Against Cliques and 'Old Dealers.'

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, outlining his measurements of the Republican presidential candidate in 1936 in an address last night before the Evanston Young Republican club, cautioned against "any candidate to whom the appellation 'old deal' could be applied."

"The Democratic strategy already is evident," he said. "The President will be renominated. The brain trusters will write the platform. The party already has a slogan, 'The New Deal, Established and Copyrighted.'

Inexpedient to Name "Old Dealer."

"It would be entirely inexpedient for the Republican party to nominate any candidate to whom the appellation 'old deal' could be applied. Nor should any one be nominated to whom objectionable associates have attached themselves."

Col. McCormick proposed that the Republican party select "a man as much like Abraham Lincoln as we can find."

"Any man of high intelligence and superior principles," he said, "can execute the office of President. There are hundreds of such men available. This country is of extraordinary size and in its many sectors there are great differences in points of view.

"We want the man who comes nearest to the mean—the man who in himself will represent those homely virtues which the people have come to love."

First Duty of the Party.

Col. McCormick declared that the first duty of the party was to select the best men it could send to the Republican national convention.

"We want the highest type of men available to be at that convention," he said, "so they will draft a set of principles which, fairly carried out, will redeem this country from governmental chaos and despotism."

The publisher said he did not believe that public interest in denunciation of the administration could be maintained for another twelve months and urged the Evanston Republicans to "plan further than mere denunciation."

"We must direct our minds to activities which may be stimulated in this country to put the breadline back on the pay roll," he said.

He declared that any attempt at reënactment of the NRA "should be resisted as we would resist any form of dictatorship."

Maintaining that every American unable to provide for himself should be given food, shelter and clothing, Col. McCormick asserted that an opportunity for work should be provided for every man and that "the artificial creation of a helpless class of citizens" should be terminated.

Referring to the agricultural situation, he said:

"If the government will allow farmers to grow enough food to feed the United States, they will absorb into employment thousands of their fellow farmers who have been placed on the relief rolls by the government's agricultural program.

New Cash Crops Advised.

"We should devise new crops which farmers may grow and sell for cash. I have experimented in a small way, and already on my farm we've found means of raising a new cash crop which hitherto has been unavailable in this country and has been imported in quantity."

Col. McCormick roundly criticized the administration in outlining the growth of what he termed "a vigorous opposition," but the major portion of his talk was devoted to the hypothetical candidate who will carry the party's standards in 1936.

"You can't run a platform against a platform," he said. "The campaign will be a contest between two individuals. We must avoid the forming of groups around certain candidates—groups who seek to be carried to success by the election of their candidate."

Congressman Ralph E. Church of the Evanston district, County Commissioner William N. Erickson, Judge Harry H. Porter of the Evanston Municipal court and Mayor Charles H. Bartlett of Evanston were among the guests of the club in attendance at the banquet, held in the Georgian hotel.

U. S. WAR VESSEL TO BE CHRISTENED BY FOREIGNER 1ST TIME

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—For the first time in the history of the American navy, an American ship of war is to be christened by a foreigner. The navy department announced today that the destroyer Cassin will have the traditional bottle of champagne broken over its bow in the Philadelphia navy yard next Monday by Mrs. Helen Carusi Lombard, wife of Col. Emmanuel Lombard, military attaché of the French embassy. Mrs. Lombard is the great-granddaughter of Commodore Stephen Cassin.

LAWYER ASSAILS NEW DEAL VIEWS OF CONSTITUTION

'Vaporings of Roosevelt' Under Attack.

BY PARKE BROWN.

A spirited attack on the attitude of President Roosevelt toward the constitution was delivered yesterday by William F. Struckman, former county attorney and a veteran student of constitutional history.

Speaking before the Carl Schurz Round Table at noon in the Old Heidelberg inn, 14 West Randolph street, Attorney Struckman hit particularly at assertions that there was no contention of the Supreme court's right to review acts of congress until the time of Chief Justice John Marshall, and at the Roosevelt theory that the United States constitution is unique in thus providing for judicial control over a parliament.

In addition to his analysis of the situation, Mr. Struckman enlivened his discourse with occasional bits of strong language. He referred, for example, to the "egotistical vaporings of Franklin D. Roosevelt and his chirping brain trusters."

Powers of Supreme Court.

"When the proposed constitution was before the people for their adoption or rejection," he said, "it was universally conceded by advocates and opponents alike that it conferred upon the Supreme court the final power to say whether or not acts of congress and acts of the executive are or are not constitutional.

"After the constitution had been adopted and before John Marshall was a member of the Supreme court, that court in several cases was called upon to pass upon the constitutionality of acts of congress. The court took jurisdiction, the question of constitutionality was discussed by counsel and later was considered by the court. It so happened that in each case the constitutionality of the act was sustained.

"But in some of the opinions, the Supreme court said that the power of the court to declare acts of congress unconstitutional could not be questioned."

Calls Roosevelt Mistaken.

Attorney Struckman said President Roosevelt was "mistaken" in believing that the United States is the only government in which acts of the legislative department can be set aside by the judiciary.

"This," he said, "can be done in Australia and it can be done in Canada. The constitution of the United States has been the model of most of the constitutions adopted by the republics of South America. In those republics, with variations, the judiciary has the right to pass upon the constitutionality of laws enacted by the legislatures."

Buster Keaton's Condition Unchanged, Says Hospital

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 22.—(AP)—No change was reported today in the condition of Buster Keaton, screen comedian, whose nervous breakdown brought his removal Sunday from his home to a ward at the National Military home at Sawtelle. Mrs. Mae Elizabeth Keaton, who recently divorced Keaton, tonight offered a reconcilation to the actor. "I want to tell him that I love him and that the divorce was too hasty," she said, adding that she would drop her $200,000 alienation of affections suit against Mrs. Leah Sewell.

BORAH BLAMES G. O. P. LOSSES ON DODGING ISSUES

Charges Failure to Heed Public's Interests.

Rome, N. Y., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, in a letter made public here today by John Eastland Coykendall, Rome business man, said "the Republican party is out of power because those who have dominated its policies and shaped its administration have not met the issues which deeply concern the people and which are in the interest of the public welfare."

Mr. Borah emphasized that his previous letter to Theodore Roosevelt Jr., recently made public, "should not have been considered in the light of anybody's candidacy."

The Rome resident had written to Borah about conditions in central New York and expressed belief that Republicans want a 1936 presidential nominee who is "straightforward Republican—neither old guard nor any other guard," but "an exponent of party principles which have been of long service to the country and would restore better conditions."

Not Fighting "Old Guard."

"You ask me: 'Why start a fight with the old guard Republicans who still control, and will continue to control, the conservative vote of the country?' and so forth." The reply said:

"I have not started any fight on the old guard. I am advocating certain principles I believe to be in the interest of the people at large. If it is true that the old guard are opposed to policies which are in the interest of the people, then, of course, it may be said that I have started a fight on them, but in no other sense.

"The Republican party is out of power because those who have dominated its policies and shaped its administration have not met the issues which deeply concern the people and which are in the interest of the public welfare.

Stands by Principles.

"You plainly state in your letter that my advocacy of these policies at this time would not help me to secure the nomination. Certainly, I am aware of that fact. But I think that a man who will not advocate what he believes to be sound before election certainly will not do so after the election.

"There are many instances in which candidates have advocated things in the interest of the people before election and failed to carry them out after election. But I know of no instance in which candidates kept silent upon matters in the interest of the people before election and advocated them afterwards.

"But, at any rate, my letter should not have been considered in the light of anybody's candidacy."

The letter was written from Boise, Idaho.

Argentina to Limit Wine by Destroying Vineyards

FIVE RESIGN AFTER 'INDECENT' ARTICLES BAN HARVARD PAPER

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Five officers of the Harvard Advocate, undergraduate monthly banned from the newsstands here Saturday because of the alleged obscenity of two of its articles, resigned tonight at the request of Assistant District Attorney Frank G. Volpe.

The students are John J. Slocum, '36, of Charleston, S. C., president; Gerard Piel, '37, of Salisbury, Conn., business manager; J. LeB. Boyle of Somerville, secretary; Robert S. Chafee, '36, of Cambridge, circulation manager, and Charles A. Haskins of Cambridge, treasurer.

The magazine was banned by Chief of Police Timothy F. Leahy as the result of an anonymous letter which denounced two of its articles for "indecency" and "the smuttiest of vulgarity."

6,000 TOWNSEND BELIEVERS POUR IN FOR CONCLAVE

Young Staf Shepherds Elderly Flock.

In a motley assortment of vehicles, Dr. F. E. Townsend and 6,000 followers converged on Chicago yesterday for a convention opening tomorrow in the Stevens hotel. Dr. Townsend is the Los Angeles physician whose panacea for economic ills of the country is to give $200 a month to all persons over 60 years of age with the proviso that they spend it all each thirty days.

Most of the Townsendites were arriving by train, but some came in limousines or comfortable trailer cars, while others rode in ancient flivvers or trucks.

Buses and Special Trains.

A caravan of 40 buses will arrive from Omaha today with 1,300 followers, and two special trains carrying 600 will pull in from Los Angeles.

Two women 65 years old were hitch-hiking from Turlock, Cal. They are Mrs. Hattie Moss and Mrs. Bessie Oswald, old friends who decided to take to the open road together rather than have one use the single rail fare they had between them. Last night they were reported to have reached McCook, Neb.

Two U. of C. Radical Groups Are Reinstated

The two so-called radical student organizations at the University of Chicago, whose recognition was withdrawn last year, were tentatively reinstated yesterday, subject to their compliance with certain rules and regulations set up by George A. Works, dean of students. These organizations are the National Students' league and the Students' League for Industrial Democracy. One of the reasons for last year's action was the unauthorized use by the societies of the university's name when they participated in a loop parade of radicals.

NEW DEAL PLOT TO GERRYMANDER VOTE IS CHARGED

Schall Lays 'Precinct Plot' to Tugwell.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—New Dealers are gerrymandering the farm vote by means of the rural migrations organized under Rexford Guy Tugwell's rural resettlement administration, Senator Thomas D. Schall [Rep., Minn.] charged today.

The rural resettlement administration "means the attempted wholesale removal of farmers from their legal voting precincts so they will not be able to vote except as permitted to vote for the Raw Deal in 1936," the senator declared in a formal statement. Tugwell is moving farmers from what he considers unprofitable lands.

"It places in the hands of Tugwell's crew of 24,000, under the direction of Political General Farley, the power to rearrange the agricultural population, annul the votes of the opposition, and by wholesale subsidy colonize new voting precincts to keep in power the greatest political oligarchy known to history," Senator Schall charged.

Flays Crop Reduction.

The senator also assailed the crop reduction program of the agricultural administration, asserted that it had reduced the income of farmers and at the same time, through processing taxes, increased the prices charged consumers. He recalled that Thomas Jefferson had said: "Were we directed from Washington when to sow and when to reap we should want bread."

The statement said:

"We are told when to sow and when to reap—when to plow up the crops and drown the pigs. And now the price of bread has risen another cent, and the 7 cent loaf of the Coolidge administration is now 10 cents, a price boost of 40 per cent on the wage earner and the housewives, while the farmer is getting less for his wheat than in Coolidge's time. Wallace mourns the fact that they didn't reduce the weight of the bread instead of raising the price. Anything to deceive the people and make them think they are getting a pound when they are not.

Cites Loss of Business.

"Instead of being the world's leading exporter of flour and other cereal products, we have turned that business over to Canada and Russia and Argentina and become importers of breadstuffs because of alphabetical barnacles in Washington who not only tell when to sow and reap, but levy a processing tax upon what is raised—which amounts to a government fine upon any citizen connected with industries producing the nation's food.

"Thus after process-tax levies, or unlawful federal fines, aggregating to date over $900,000,000, upon food producing industries, and inviting imports from the entire food producing foreign world, all that has been accomplished for the sowing-and-reaping industry and those who eat bread, as compared with Coolidge days, is to lower the income of the producer one-third and boost the food price to the hungry 40 per cent."

'MISTER ANONYMOUS' GIVES ANNUAL $5,000 TO COMMUNITY FUND

The annual $5,000 pledge of "Mr. Anonymous," received by the Community Fund of Chicago for the last four years, yesterday raised the total pledged to date in the $3,200,000 drive to $1,461,953.61.

Only one man in the entire Community Fund organization knows the source of the mysterious annual contribution, and he, it seems, is pledged to secrecy. Whoever he is, though, Community Fund leaders do not believe him a prominent or wealthy Chicagoan, for all under that classification are accounted for on cards in the campaign files.

The fund, which is expected to reach its $3,200,000 goal by Armistice day, will be allotted among 147 private charitable and social welfare agencies of Chicago.

MOSCOW, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Steam navigation from Europe to the Far East by way of the Arctic ocean has been put on a practical basis, Otto Schmidt, head of the soviet northern sea route department, reported today to Joseph Stalin.

More than 100 vessels plied the route along the northern coast of Europe and Asia before winter closed in, he said.

Five new Arctic radio stations have been built and eight air lines, covering 5,300 miles, have been established.

U. S. PRESS URGED TO FIGHT MUZZLE IN PENNSYLVANIA

Col. McCormick Assails Tyranny Over Inquirer.

Efforts of New Deal officials in Pennsylvania to muzzle the press were called to the attention of newspaper editors and publishers throughout the United States yesterday by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, chairman of the committee on freedom of the press of the American Newspaper Publishers' association.

Col. McCormick suggested that the American Newspaper Publishers' association, the Inland Daily Press association, and the American Society of Newspaper Editors come to the defense of the Philadelphia Inquirer in the criminal libel suit brought against it by Charles J. Margiotti, Pennsylvania attorney general.

In this suit the attorney general, one of the Democratic New Dealers in Pennsylvania, has compelled the editor of the Inquirer, John T. Custis, and the president and general manager of the paper, Charles A. Tyler, to face trial in the western part of the state on charges growing out of a story in which the Inquirer stated that law partners of the attorney general were seeking enormous profits in delinquent tax cases.

Spurns Offer to Print His Side.

The Inquirer gave Mr. Margiotti full opportunity to explain or deny the charges, but he declined and had warants issued in far away Jefferson county where he lives.

In his letter to the freedom of the press committees of the various organizations, Col. McCormick said:

"It is obvious that the purpose is to bring the defendants before a judge and a jury under the domination of Margiotti's political machine.

"This course of action, so against the constitutional principle that a defendant be tried in the district where the alleged offense was committed, is a direct repetition of the tyranny referred to in the Declaration of Independence as follows:

"'He [the present king of Great Britain] has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged under our laws; giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation; for transporting us beyond the seas to be tried for pretended offenses.'"

Text of Suggested Resolution.

Col. McCormick suggested the following resolution be sent to the boards of directors of the various newspaper organizations:

"It is hereby resolved that the action of Charles J. Margiotti, attorney general of the state of Pennsylvania, in dragging Charles A. Tyler and John T. Custis from their homes to the county where the said Charles J. Margiotti resides, to be tried for an alleged criminal libel before a court and jury under his control, is an outrage upon the constitutional rights of the defendants, the justice of the state of Pennsylvania, and the freedom of the press:

"And that the American Newspaper Publishers' association [the Inland Daily Press association—the American Society of Newspaper Editors] extend to the defendants its full support in their defense and call upon all editors and supporters of constitutional government in Pennsylvania and elsewhere to rally to the defense of the rights of American citizens imperiled by unscrupulous and tyrannous officials."

History of the Dispute.

The controversy grows out of the struggles against the New Dealers of the Democratic machine in the old Republican state of Pennsylvania. The Inquirer has fought the Guffey-Earle machine bitterly, and in September won a notable victory in the defeat of the proposal to call a constitutional convention which had for its purpose the arrogation of more power to the New Dealers.

The Inquirer led in the fight against such changes and followed this with an article exposing the attorney general's law partners. The newspaper stated that the article was the result of careful investigation.

The attorney general demanded a retraction and apology. The newspaper refused, challenging the attorney general to point out a single false statement in the article. The answer was the warants for criminal libel on Oct. 7. The Inquirer officers are expected to be indicted next week and to be rushed to trial.

German Ship, 15 Aboard, Feared Lost in Storm

KONIGSBERG, Germany, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The German freighter Insterburg of 865 gross tons and her crew of 15 were feared lost today during the week-end gale over the North and Baltic seas. The steamer left Rotterdam Oct. 17 for Königsberg. Her owners were advised from the Netherlands that the ship's lifeboats and oars drifted ashore.

SOCIALIST AIMS GUIDE NEW DEAL, SAYS COL. HADLEY

Citizens' Pockets Being Picked, He Charges.

EDWIN M. HADLEY.

The New Dealers are running this country on the platform of the Socialist party, Col. Edwin M. Hadley, national president of the Paul Reveres, charged yesterday in an address before a meeting of the Shriners at the Hamilton club. He also declared there are "Reds" in the senate and house of representatives.

"Those in Washington were not elected on the platform on which they are now standing," Col. Hadley said. "One by one they have taken up the planks of the Socialist party for their three ring circus whose sawdust smells of Moscow.

"I hold no brief for either the Republican or Democratic party. I wish that either the Democrats or Republicans were in power now. Think that over."

Col. Hadley asserted that Americans must choose either constitutional progress or radical chaos. He said we are confronted with a threat of the overthrow of a free government and the substitution of a dictatorship leading eventually to the final breakup of everything that a century and a half of work has accomplished.

"Target of Radical Theorists."

"Our country," he said, "has been made the target of radical theorists whose objective is the destruction of our institutions. We have been made the victim of a conspiracy so far reaching, so intricate and so crafty that it is difficult to realize our country is in danger, regardless of the fact we know something is wrong.

"We are as much at war today as we were in 1918. It is a war of propaganda, a war of insane ideas instead of bullets. The one is as deadly as the other. The communists and Socialists seek to overthrow our government. Both those organizations have the same objectives; the communists are merely Socialists in a hurry.

"The radicals have picked the pockets of our unsuspecting citizens by their socialistic bureaus, commissions, and absurd governmental interference with business. They have taxed the individual to a point where the burden is crushing us for the sole benefit of radical brain trusters and governmental crackpots."

Gives Figures on Spending.

The Paul Reveres' president gave figures to show that at the present time a third of every man's income goes for governmental expenses as compared with 5 per cent a generation again. He said our fathers worked one day out of every 20 for the government, but today we work one day out of every three for the government.

He pointed out that in three years the present administration has spent 24 billion 200 million dollars, almost as much as was spent in 124 years by all the presidents from Washington to Wilson, during which time government expenditures were 24 billion 500 million dollars.

PUBLIC INTEREST FIRST, LEADER OF BAKERS ASSERTS

Urges a Middle Ground on Bread Prices.

Service in the public interest is the key to success in the baking industry, as in all other industries and trades.

This is the philosophy which Henry Stude, president of the American Bakers' association, is putting into his addresses and reports at the three day national convention of the association now under way at the Hotel Sherman. Here is the way he put it in one address:

"Business is divided into two groups, one such as the utilities which operate under a franchise, and the other such as ours, carried on without franchise. We earn and hold our place by virtue of our service in the public interest.

"We ourselves will admit that there are certain things that we do that are wrong. Not malicious, not illegal, just by-products of competition and the human equation. They are wrong because they are not in the public interest.

"Dramatized by Politician."

"If you will recall the various New Deal measures you will find that the proponents have usually tried to uncover cases in which a portion of the industry they sought to regulate had neglected some one phase of public interest. The politician then dramatized, emphasized this neglect [often entirely out of proportion to its real effect], and meantime business neglected to emphasize its major service to the public.

"The baking industry by its very nature is in the public interest. Every man hour in the bakery is many less woman hours in the kitchen. We did more to give the housewife an abundant life than all the politicians—and at considerably less cost."

As to the price of bread, Mr. Stude has this advice to the bakers:

"If your price is too high you can't sell it. If your price is too low you can't pay your bills." He advised a "middle ground."

Statistics shown at the convention show that the wholesale bakers, based on prices the latter part of August, made a profit of $2.50 on each $100.

New Dealer Sends Wire.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Donald E. Montgomery, consumers counsel of the Agricultural Adjustment administration, wired Henry Stude, Chicago, president of the American Bakers' association, that he was glad to hear "that your association is not supporting a general increase in the price of bread."

Montgomery, in his wire, which was in answer to one from Stude yesterday explaining that the bakers' convention in Chicago was not trying to boost bread prices, said:

"I agree with you that the price of bread is largely a localized matter subject as you say to widely varying factors. Your statement makes it clear you agree completely that a uniform and universal increase in bread prices cannot be justified by any of the factors entering into bread production. I am requesting bakers in those cities where price increases are proposed or in effect to state fully the factors which in their opinion justify such increases."

M'CARL BLOCKS ICKES' ATLANTA HOUSING PROJECT

Balks Effort to Set Aside Rule Regarding Taxes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—The low cost housing program of Secretary of the Interior Ickes was given a setback today by Controler General J. R. McCarl, watchdog of the treasury. McCarl ruled that the housing projects cannot pay taxes to municipalities to secure police and fire protection, use of schools and other municipal services.

The decision was made in turning down a request of Ickes for permission to pay the city of Atlanta $9,600 a year in taxes on a housing project. Ickes contended that unless the taxes were paid a very serious situation would arise, pointing out that unless the tenants of his low cost housing units receive municipal benefits no one will want to live in his homes.

Foresees Private Ownership.

In turning down the request, McCarl said that while the houses now are being rented, they eventually will pass into private ownership and then will become subject to municipal taxation. At such time the lag in taxes could be made up, he said.

McCarl further held the New Deal building program has benefited the community and he took the attitude that the cities receiving low cost housing projects should recognize this fact.

Cites Established Rule.

"Aside from the foregoing," he concluded, "the rule is well established that the federal government or its activities cannot be taxed."

The McCarl decision was the first revelation of Ickes' attempt to set aside the established rule. It also was the first disclosure of refusal of municipal governments to lend their facilities to the government free of charge. Ickes' office declined to state how many communities were rebelling against the housing program.

CALL ICKES 'SPEECH CZAR'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes was twitted today by the American Liberty league for his assumption of the rôle of "federal administrator of free speech."

The league asked Secretary Ickes, who critized a league committee of 58 lawyers for declaring the Wagner labor act unconstitutional, why he had not reprimanded President Roosevelt when the latter hinted to the Supreme court in his Fremont, Neb., speech that the Agricultural Adjustment program was constitutional.

Also, the league asked Ickes, why didn't he crack down on Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace for saying, "I don't want to enforce the potato control act enacted by the last congress. I am going to do all I can to avoid enforcing the potato control bill."

Absent from Capital.

"In justice to Mr. Ickes," says the league's bulletin, "it must be said that he was absent from Washington when Mr. Wallace made the announcement that he was going to do everything he could to avoid enforcing a law duly enacted by congress. Mr. Ickes at that time was on President Roosevelt's special train speeding westward across the continent.

"Presumably, Mr. Ickes heard the President's speech at Fremont, Neb., on Sept. 28 in which Mr. Roosevelt used language which, if it had any meaning at all, expressed a hope that the Agricultural Adjustment act will be held constitutional by the Supreme court. So far there is no record of Mr. Ickes feeling called upon to take the President to task for that speech.

Cites People's Realization.

"The truth underlying the situation illustrated by the foregoing incidents is that despite all the camouflage utilized by a huge army of administration press agents—supported out of the public treasury—those high in administration circles realize that the American people are beginning to understand the utter impracticability and inefficiency of many New Deal experiments. It is that realization which hurts, and the resulting howls of anguish constitute evidence that it does hurt."

Perhaps, the league speculates, the New Dealers have made Ickes "federal administrator of free speech" to pass upon what may or may not be said with impunity.

DEATH TRIAL OPENS TODAY.

Dubuque, Ia. Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Marlo Heinz, 29, accused of slaying his nephew, David Fox, 6, will be brought to trial tomorrow.

Former Mayor Carter Harrison Spares None in His Tempestuous Book, "The Stormy Years"

Either that young man is a plain damned fool, without an idea in his head, or he is too deep for me. BENJAMIN THOMAS. (On Carter Harrison the Younger in 1897.)

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

If blunt Ben Thomas, "hard-boiled railroad executive of the old school," were alive this morning and slipped his paper knife into "Stormy Years" he would be left in no doubt as to the mentality of "that young man" of 1897, or as to the mentality of the vehement, outspoken old man of 1935 who has written it.

Mr. Harrison was not and is not "a damned fool." Even Roger Sullivan, who would say anything, never said he was.

And "Stormy Years" is stormy alright!

Released today at $3.75 a release to the more or less expectant community which its author dominated during a dozen years, it will create much talk—some of the talk resentful, most of it favorable, for mankind, as Paul of Tarsus well knew, dearly loves a bean spiller. Some of our townsmen will be sending the book as a Christmas present to the loved ones at home; others—and their descendants—emphatically will not.

A Bean Spiller He Was.

The scope of the displacement of the beans by our former mayor—Chicago's first Chicago born mayor—may be roughly estimated by the extent of the index to "Stormy Years." It fills eight double column octavo pages and contains about seven hundred references to men and events that made history in this city and this country during the last three years of the nineteenth century and the first decade and a half of the twentieth. Dozens upon dozens of those references guide you to outspoken passages.

For example, this on Charles Tyson Yerkes as a fighter whom to have beaten is Carter Harrison's abiding glory and his best claim to the gratitude of Chicago:

"Yerkes was a fighter, with the heart of a lion, the craft of a fox, the viciousness of a leopard, the watchfulness of a timber wolf guarding her young. . . . Really a gallant though perverted soul that looked danger in the face unflinchingly. . . . Of the stuff great heroes are made of; with the right moral fiber his would have been a truly superb character."

Another Characterization.

"The keenest political intellect with which I have come in contact. . . . He passed away leaving a void that never has been filled, a mighty intellect and in most respects a great soul. Unquestionably his malady, locomotor ataxia, poisoned his nature to a degree; in his likes and dislikes, the latter usually degenerating into hatreds, there was such venom that his attitude could only be treated as an abnormality. Was it the disease that poisoned his mind? That would be the charitable view. . . . In most things a clear thinker, once his anger was excited against an individual or a class, he seemed to lose all control of self—it was an inner self that broke down."

Here's a short one on Woodrow Wilson:

"A college professorship, the presidency of a great university, may have made him a weaver of words without a rival," but "an arrogant man with a self-estimate of colossal proportions."

"A roly-poly, oleaginous barrel of wind, good humor, and bonhomie; a fair lawyer of the criminal school, probably never troubled by a conscience."

Behold, also, everybody's friend, James Hamilton Lewis:

"Throughout his career Lewis has always been a free lance, something of an individual fighter, playing a lone hand principally for his own good. . . . A political soldier of fortune whose services have been indiscriminately tendered in the service of party regularity."

You may suspect from the next one that Mr. Harrison, young or old, did not take to Victor Lawson:

"Highly sanctimonious. . . . I have known few men much keener in the pursuit and the hoarding of the almighty dollar."

On Charles E. Merriam.

Now a living pundit—whom Mr. Harrison beat for the mayoralty in 1911 in what he describes as "a brutal fight"—catches it:

"I have always attributed certain actions and stratagems of the Charles E. Merriam managing committee to inexperience in politics rather than to a slight moral obliquity. . . . The professor was too prone to make charges without the inquiry that ordinary justice demanded. He was young, carried away with the glamor of newly acquired greatness, so recent that it is small wonder his head was turned. . . . Indulging in personalities and veiled charges really unworthy of a candidate posing as of the holier-than-thou category."

And so on, and on, and on with unminced words until one is minded of what former Alderman Michael Kenna [Hinky Dink] once said to Mr. Harrison, his idol, when telling him of the things the anti-Harrison Democratic gang called their enemy.

The author relishingly gives the scene:

"He often unbosomed himself in complaint of the efforts of Hopkins, Sullivan and Brennan to get him away from his Harrison allegiance. 'They put you through, Mr. Mayor, they give you the third degree! Jesus, it's awful!' Just what in his case constituted 'the third degree' I never got him to explain—he would only shudder in reply."

Now: The Comic Relief.

In a considerable part of devastating "Stormy Years" Michael Kenna and John Coughlin, long colleagues as aldermen of the First ward, are the author's comic relief. Such, also, they were to him when in many an anxious hour of his first four mayoralties he became worn down physically and sick at heart.

The best, the most priceless story enlivening these 361 pages unfolds the scene that followed the mayor's reading of John Coughlin's deathless doggerel, "Dear Midnight of Love"—"inane, outlandish conglomeration of words," Mr. Harrison calls it. He acknowledges that after reading its first seven lines he passed out—"quit in self-defense."

LIFE STORY TOLD

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Then he sought light from one who, he says on another page, "never told me a lie, never broke his word." He sought light from Hinky Dink, and asked, "Alderman, is John crazy or just full of dope?"

"Without batting an eyelash Kenna came back at me:

"'No! John isn't dotty and he ain't full of dope. To tell you the God's truth, Mr. Mayor, they ain't found the name for it yet.'"

A Classic of 1903.

Another time [page 229] the mayor was letting John Coughlin rumble along, and from the permission blossomed a malapropism that became a classic. It was in 1903, just after Mr. Harrison's victory over the late Graeme Stewart, a victory that caused the defeated man to end what had been an affectionate friendship between him and the winner. "I was," the author writes, "physically and mentally tired out." Entered, then, the welcome comic relief—"Hinky Dink" and "The Bathhouse."

"Honestly, boys," said the mayor to them, "I don't understand it. . . . Why was it that I won?" Then this:

"There was a moment of silence. Then John broke in: 'Mr. Mayor, you won because of the public satisfaction with the well known honesty that has caricatured your every administration!'"

Be assured, however, that some of Mr. Harrison's quotings of the redoubtable pair are far more than mere whimwhams. Some are the sententious utterances of very illiterate but very original men, and often it is utterances by precisely such men that are the most sententious and that shed a blazing light on the iniquities of municipal politics. Were Lord Bryce alive, the story I am about to quote from "Stormy Years"—as well as many another passage in it—would enable him to add a glowing chapter to his "American Commonwealth," a book he frequently revised and enlarged.

The "Petty Larceny" Affair.

One night in 1897 there came up for consideration in the common council what Coughlin called "a petty larceny ordinance." The mayor was determined to veto it and to make the veto stick. Coughlin and Kenna knew that. To the amazement of colleagues in gallery, but not to the mayor's, they voted to sustain the veto.

Now the author's record of what happened:

"As the roll call proceeded Billie O'Brien leaned over the back of the First warders' chairs—his seat was almost immediately behind—and said: 'John! Mike! What the hell's the matter with you? It's a good thing—there's five hundred dollars in it—get in the bandwagon.'

"John rose to his extreme stature, stuck his right hand in the opening of his heavy plush waistcoat; turning majestically about, with ponderous tones that carried to the farthest precincts he exclaimed: 'Billie, we ain't takin' no toothpicks!'"

Bad Moment for Harlan.

That was the night also when, to John Maynard Harlan's horror, Coughlin chose to espouse the cause of Harlan and purity in politics. What made it worse for pure John was that Mrs. Harrison and a group of her north side friends had come to view the proceedings. Harlan angrily—he could blaze at the touch of a wet match—repudiated the Bathhouse and his kind words. "What," he thundered, "has come over the fancy of the alderman of the First ward? Why this undreamed of change of heart?"

Now the author's words:

"Coughlin sat through it all undismayed; no sooner had Harlan, breathless and almost apoplectically flushed, taken his seat and the applause of the reformers subsided than Coughlin rose. 'John,' he exclaimed, turning to the Olympian Harlan, 'the answer is simple—I've joined the Church!' Even Harlan was forced to join in the hilarious laughter."

Sometimes wonderingly but always loyally John's colleague, Michael Kenna, obeyed the mayor's behests. Only once did "the Little Fellow" emit a grieved bleat. That was when Harrison revoked the license of a saloon and bawdy house keeper, who was also a Democratic precinct captain and who ran an outrageous dive.

In Defense of Constituent.

Almost weeping, Kenna, in defense of his constituent [here I must interject that in telling this story our author prints one word for which I leave a blank, while he leaves a blank for another term which THE TRIBUNE, ever zealous to run a family newspaper, also omits] said: "You've got him all wrong, Mr. Mayor. He never understood the orders. Give him another chance. He's one of our best precinct captains—I can always count on him—he's a good, conscientious ——— even if he does run a ———."

Mr. Harrison adds, "It was the richest, most preposterous thing he ever got off his chest in my presence."

But to Michael's skill as an organizer in 1897, Mr. Harrison, still holding it in respectful memory, pays this tribute: "Marvelous finesse as an organizer of the strange flotsam and jetsam gathered into the First ward at the outset of winter by the tides of life."

Epitome of Coughlin.

Thus:

"As I knew him he was flighty, pompous, temperamental, easily embarrassed, ambitious, addicted to a strange kind of eloquence, mayhap taken by and large a bit of a caricature, a would-be Beau Brummel as concerned manly attire. . . . Were I an analyst of human nature [you are, "Cato," you are, and you know it], I would like to figure out the probable development in John J. Coughlin, notorious alderman of the world's most notorious ward, had fate planted the roots of his earliest upbringing in a friendlier soil. I verily believe he would have traveled far and high as a leader of men."

I know not what John and Michael will say when and if they read "Stormy Years," but I do know how they will feel. They will feel hurt to the quick. For once, when both of them declined an invitation to a gorgeous political banquet which they had good reason to fear would develop Gridiron club strains of jocularity, Michael said in explanation, "We got our feelings like any of 'em."

Much though Mr. Harrison enjoys writing blistering epitomes of other people he also—unlike most blisterers—enjoys printing one on himself. He can "take it."

Here is one that harks him back to his long years of schooling at the old St. Ignatius Jesuit college on the west side:

"There is nothing of the Catholic in me, though I understand the rules and regulations of the church perhaps better even than my wife, but as Father 'Joe' Phelan once told her: 'If the Jesuits in five and a half years failed to make a Catholic of him, he's just beyond redemption!'"

Beyond redemption or not, Carter the Younger has for 65 years read a chapter of the Bible every night because, when he was a lad of ten years, his mother asked him to.

Calculating—as He Had to Be.

That lady he adored. By some observers this man, who became mayor of the second largest city in the Americas when he had just passed his mid-thirties, was and is considered coldly calculating. Calculating he is—declaring precise calculation and the keeping of a card index of the names and attributes of friends and enemies to be an essential to success in politics—but cold he is not. As a reporter I worked for him three and forty years ago and found him a considerate employer at a time when he was staring financial ruin in the face. He could justly have docked the pay of us all. He did not.

What I am leading up to is a passage on page 25 of "Stormy Years," where he writes of his dying mother: "She knew me for a fleeting moment, laid her dear hand on my head, while it seemed to me I would die in the excess of my grief. . . . A little after four the next morning she passed away. . . . Too shaken with grief to cry, I stepped to the front door. The sun was shining bright, the birds were singing, the world seemed strangely beautiful; from its beauty I could only turn away in a species of angered despair. Why should the day be fair when my mother, the very light of my life, was lying cold and dead? Never again will I know the poignancy of that hour of grief and suffering; something seemed to go out of me, perhaps the very spirit of grief itself; I had touched the pinnacle and climax of mortal suffering."

That was nearly sixty years ago, and "Cato" was a boy of sixteen.

Depth, Intensity in Wrath.

In depth and intensity Harrison's wrath could equal his tenderness. Page 199 is thrilling. It records the climax in 1900 of frantic machinations by some of the reputedly "best citizens" of Chicago—a family friend one of them was—to inveigle Mayor Harrison into an iniquitous amendment to a gas ordinance. In his own home, where they had intruded with the further purpose of cajoling Mrs. Harrison, the mayor rounded on them, shouting: "This has been the most outrageous experience of my life! . . . You have not only besieged me with wires, you got my wife in her mingled love and ignorance to take part in it. Let me tell you now I shall veto that amendment and make the veto stick if it is the last act of a misspent life."

Mr. Harrison adds, "Without another word I left them standing speechless."

The late Charles Klein, author of that resounding old melodrama of American finance, "The Lion and the Mouse," would have brought down a quick curtain on that scene. In the book Mr. Harrison names his audience—with their middle initials. There is nothing furtive about "Stormy Years."

In "the Little Front Parlor."

Another tremendous episode—the scene being "the little front parlor" of the mayor's home on Schiller street and the villains Charles Tyson Yerkes and his shameful Allen law. Yerkes, a cultivated man who could talk charmingly about books and pictures, is ushered in by the maid and he visits for a while in his most disarming strain, finally leading up to the Allen law. The mayor tells him it is "essentially vicious" and then some. When "Cato" has quite finished Yerkes leans close and "in slow, measured tones," says: "Tell me, Mr. Mayor, what do you want anyhow?"

"Mr. Yerkes," Cato replied, "you may not mean by that query what I think you mean. . . . If, however, I construe your query correctly [stylish words under stress] let me say there is not enough money on God's footstool to induce me to vary my position in the slightest degree."

All of It Overheard.

Here is Mr. Harrison's descriptive touch leading up to not a quick curtain now but a slow one:

"He looked at me steadily, probably merely for seconds, it seemed for a far longer time, then turned to lighter matters, talked of family portraits hanging on the walls, his admiration for my father, rose, and we parted. It was the last talk I was to have with him."

Meantime where was Mrs. Harrison?

Sitting in the dark on the halfway landing of the stairs with Preston Harrison—good old Preston!—Carter's brother. At the mayor's request they had quickly scurried there when the maid brought in Yerkes' card.

The author adds, "My wife and brother had overheard every word. I felt safe."

Let me put you some questions which "Stormy Years" answers:

What was William Jennings Bryan's principal failing? "The willingness smilingly but pitilessly to "dump" a political follower in a crisis if it served W. J. B.'s interest to do so.

What was Woodrow Wilson's principal weakness? Amour propre.

What were and are Hinky Dink's supreme virtues? Never to tell a lie and never to break his word.

What was Yerkes' gospel? "Every man has his price."

Who put the Everleigh sisters out of business? Carter H. Harrison the younger. And what did they look like in old age? Carter answers thus: "Gaudily bedaubed sepulchres, caricatures of human kind, poor, wretched, doddering burlesques of femininity." Indeed, Mr. Harrison's whole chapter XXIX, "A Problem Older Than Civilization"—into which the sister harridans enter—is very frank, very appalling. There is a Hogarthian quality of inexorableness in it. It is also sound literary style, in my opinion. Once he calls them "the terrible pair of sisters."

What is the group of six that "finally makes or breaks a Chicago mayor's administration?" His cabinet.

How was $25,000 in Insull money bundled into the Harrison home early one morning in 1911 and promptly bundled out again? Well, it was bundled out by the mayor's suave hint that the bundler was "probably pressed for time to reach his office."

His Best "Fast One."

What was the best "fast one" Carter Harrison ever uttered? When—in reply to Yerkes' statement in a full page interview in the Inter-Ocean, his own paper, "I cannot understand Mayor Harrison"—the mayor said "Of course, Mr. Yerkes cannot understand me—I am an honest man."

"Cato" had two hard and fast rules when he was mayor, and heaven knows he needed them, so foul were the maneuvers to destroy his grip on the confidence of his decent fellow citizens.

Rule I—"No woman except my wife is to be admitted to my private office."

Rule II—"Charles T. Yerkes is never to be left alone with me."

Subjected to that rule, Yerkes once "blurted impatiently," "Isn't it possible for us to have a private talk?"

It was not.

And thy book proves that 74 years have not dulled thy wits.

God bless thee, and mayest thou live longer and greatly prosper!

As for you, readers, part with his book and him on this explanation of how for many a year he cannily led you and your fathers:

"I have always been a little in advance of public opinion in Chicago. It is true I have not been so far ahead that the people could not see me."

Hearing Set for Tomorrow on Ashland Bridge Project

A public hearing on the proposed construction of a bascule bridge at North Ashland avenue and the river will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow in Room 425 in the new postoffice building, S. N. Karrick, acting district engineer for the war department, announced yesterday. The question of a temporary swing bridge also will be considered.

FARLEY TO MEET PRESIDENT WITH MOURNFUL NEWS

Will Report on Swing from New Deal.

BULLETIN.

Charleston, S. C., Oct. 22.—(AP)—The cruiser Houston, bearing President Roosevelt homeward from a three week fishing trip, slipped up Charleston harbor and anchored below the huge Cooper river bridge tonight shortly before midnight. The chief executive and his party will remain aboard until tomorrow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Alarmed by reports from all parts of the country of rising sentiment against the New Deal, Postmaster General James A. Farley left here tonight to meet President Roosevelt at Charleston, S. C., at the end of the sea voyage which climaxed the administration's opening of the 1936 presidential campaign in his western tour.

The postmaster general flashed his genial smile as he boarded a train for Charleston, but his brow was knit by cares of the coming political battle. Farley has been busy charting reaction to the President's pronouncements in the west and in measuring the extent of the swing away from the administration.

His preoccupied manner indicated that he will pour a doleful tale into his chief's ear tomorrow on the special which will carry Mr. Roosevelt to Washington.

Williams Has Sad Tale, Too.

The President's ears were spared further ill tidings when Aubrey Williams, who has been acting Works Progress administrator in the absence of Harry L. Hopkins, made a last minute decision not to join the welcoming party.

Williams had been scheduled to describe the collapse of the administration's drive to put 3,500,000 employables on relief to work by Nov. 1. The administration is short of its goal by more than 2,000,000 workers. Only slightly more than 1,300,000 men are now at work under the 4 billion dollar works relief fund.

Later in the afternoon Williams abruptly changed his mind. He decided to deliver his report to Administrator Hopkins, who is accompanying the President, and to let Hopkins carry the sad news to the President.

Farley is being accompanied by Assistant White House Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre and a few members of the White House secretariat. A party of secret service men left for Charleston by automobile last night.

To Speak at School.

Tomorrow the President will tour Charleston. During the tour he will make an impromptu address at the Citadel, a military school, whose commandant is Gen. Charles P. Summerall, retired chief of staf of the army. The President will then board his special for Washington. He will arrive at the White House Thursday morning.

The President's stay in Washington will not be long. In about a week he will journey to his family home at Hyde Park, N. Y., where he will remain a week. He will return to Washington and make his annual visit to Warm Springs, Ga., about Nov. 15.

Allman to Have an Office in Alcock's Old Rooms

Police Commissioner James P. Allman visited yesterday the detective bureau in the central police headquarters at 11th and State streets, and selected a suite of rooms which will be put in shape as the commissioner's "afternoon" office. Commissioner Allman said he would still maintain his office in the city hall, next to Mayor Kelly's chambers, to handle the morning routine work.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Snobbish Fowl.

Oct. 22, 1935.

THE white swans on the pond at Wheaton experimental farm of THE TRIBUNE are getting rather "exclusive" lately. I used to see them paddling around near the black swans, the geese, and other birds on the water, but when I was there the other day I noticed that they were keeping to themselves. There is a little "canal" connecting two of the ponds on the farm, and the white swans were in the little pond at the north end, while the other birds were in the big pond at the other end of the channel.

Just one Canada goose was asserting his independence by staying on the same pond with the white swans, and the big boys seemed to tolerate his presence without a squawk.

Some of the Muscovy ducks from the Half Moon pond are taking flying trips over the barnyard every few days now. The other day I noticed how they flew over John Rawlings' house and kept looking down to the ground. There are quite a few live Muscovy "decoys" in the barnyard to invite the ducks from the pond to drop for the winter, but so far none of them have responded.

The "weeping" willow trees around the pond at the Wheaton farm are more "weeping" than ever at this season of the year. During the summer they droop down, always seeming to be asking for sympathy, but with foliage thinned out they seem to be asking for sympathy because the riotous colors of the oak woods overshadow them. The willows contrast strongly with the bright browns and reds of the other trees, because the leaves of the former have the more delicate shades of light green and yellow.

The boys on the Yorkville farm have been getting their rifles in shape for a little squirrel hunting. The trees in the woodland area near the Fox river are rapidly getting to the point where squirrel hunting is good. The gray squirrels contrast in color to the yellow leaves on many of the trees, and as the boys walk through the woods they can hear the squirrels working on the nuts, making it easier to spot them in the trees.

Cider is being made at the Yorkville farm for the first time this fall. The other day Clarence and Louis Thurow and Charley Doetschman picked up the apples which had fallen to the ground, so there will be plenty of "apple juice" on hand in case they decide to have a Halloween party on the farm.

Binks, Clarence Thurow's fox terrier, evidently thinks he has musical talent. The other day a visitor drove up into Clarence's yard with the radio in his car going full blast. Binks couldn't figure it out for a few minutes and the visitor sat in his car laughing at the dog's apparent mystery concerning the music. Binks couldn't figure out where the music was coming from, but after a few minutes he let out a series of long, low howls in an effort to harmonize with the mysterious notes from the car's "music box."

LEGISLATORS SEE A LONG, STORMY SPECIAL SESSION

Governor's Call Lists Eighteen Subjects.

guards for industrial hazards was declared invalid by the Illinois Supreme court last April and attempts to put through stopgap legislation were made in vain during the latter part of the regular legislative session later in the spring.

Licensing of drivers and the insurance code were other bills which the general assembly refused to approve in the regular session. Downstate opposition stymied the drivers' license measure and while there were reports in Springfield recently that a number of the legislators previously opposed to the bill would vote for it if it were made to apply only to cities, the path to its approval is by no means open.

The insurance code, a huge bill drawn under the supervision of Ernest Palmer, state director of insurance, had a slow but eventually successful course in the house during the regular session, but was killed in the senate, failing by three votes. Its consideration by both houses was accompanied by long, controversial hearings which may be expected to be repeated in the special session.

Other Matters Before Session.

Other subjects in the call include legislation on working cash funds for boards of education in cities, changes in the law governing the issuance of local bonds and tax anticipation warants, validation of local bond issues, pension funds for city boards of election, participation in the Mark Twain centennial, and, last, but far from least in the minds of the members, appropriations for the expenses of the session.

When the session is convened Monday evening it is planned to introduce at once about thirty bills drawn by Dewitt Billman, secretary of the legislative reference bureau. These will include the social security legislation.

Whether a move will be made to have them advanced to second reading could not be learned but they will at least be printed overnight and be ready for study Tuesday morning.

SOY BEAN PLANT OWNER KILLED IN BLAST ON 1ST DAY

2 Die in Momence; Case Here Stumps Inquest.

A coroner's jury in Chicago announced yesterday its inability to determine the cause of the explosion which on Oct. 7 wrecked the soya products division of the Glidden company, 1845 North Laramie avenue, killing eleven persons. Meanwhile another explosion destroyed a soy bean plant at Momence, Ill., one hour after it opened for its first day's work, killed the owner, Varnum Parish Jr., 22 years old, son of State's Attorney Varnum Parish of Kankakee county, and fatally injured an employé, Leslie Hunter, 33 years old.

Blames Naphtha Fumes.

Two other employés, Martin Klassen and Claude Sherwood, escaped serious injury, though the blast wrecked the one story building.

Frank Seegur, deputy state fire marshal, attributed the explosion to the ignition of naphtha fumes. Naphtha is used as a solvent to extract oil from the soy beans. In the Glidden plant here hexane, which is similar to naphtha, was used.

Advise Safety Legislation.

The coroner's jury which investigated the Glidden explosion was composed of chemists and engineers. Although unable to determine the cause of the accident, the jury recommended that the city "formulate rules and regulations for providing pressure relief, adequate ventilation, and systematic testing of air for dangerous mixtures in manufacturing plants where hazardous air mixtures are likely to exist."

MYSTERY OF MISSING BABY LEFT UNSOLVED BY DETROIT HEARING

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 22.—(AP)—The fate of the son of William Greatrex was the same mystery tonight it has been during the 12 years since a nurse's error placed the baby in the hands of a shack dweller whose only object was "to get rid of it."

The father, who returned from the funeral of his wife to learn the baby had vanished, was in despair as he left court today after a hearing he had hoped would relieve the anguish in which he has lived since 1923.

That hope vanished as Alphonse Vlemminck, the felon who took away the child in the belief it was his unmarried daughter's, repeated his story he had given the baby to a strange "couple from Pennsylvania" whom he had met in a saloon.

Vlemminck, convicted last week of taking indecent liberties with a four year old girl, sullenly denied burying the baby.

"Did you tell these Pennsylvania people that the child was your child by your own daughter?" asked Louis S. Cohane, attorney for Greatrex.

"Yes," Vlemminck said.

Because this new Buick can crowd 100 m.p.h. it gives you 10-to-60 mile acceleration in 19.6 seconds!

NOTE: In a wish to assist the laudable work of safety officials aimed to discourage reckless driving, the statements below which are necessary to a description of this unusual car's performance are purposely made understatements

JUST imagine owning a motor car that could go from New York to Philadelphia in less than an hour—coast to coast in a day and a half—if good sense and traffic permitted.

Fantastic? Not a bit of it. The day of the stock car with reserve ability to crowd 100-miles-an-hour is here. This astounding Buick CENTURY ushers it in.

You will probably never want to drive anywhere near that fast, or call for the full swooping acceleration of this marvel car—10 to 60 in 19.6 seconds, 10 to 80 in 33 seconds—on anybody's stop watch.

Indeed, except in emergency or need you would be foolish to do so, for the idea back of this beautiful fleetster is far remote from merely making speed records fall.

We built the Century—as we built the Special, the Roadmaster and the Limited—to give the world tomorrow's performance today!

The fact that this phenomenal car can nudge 100 is incidental; the fact that it has the power to do it is important.

You may never need to take full advantage of that power, but if you ever do need it —it's there—in the pinch, in a traffic tight-spot, to duck a highway calamity.

Meanwhile you travel serenely knowing it's always ready—knowing it by the almost insolent ease with which this dazzling car performs every duty within the normal operating range.

QUALITY FACT: The Century is true Buick breed, through and through, powered with the matchless 1936 version of the 120-horsepower Buick engine, that world-famed, silent, oil-cushioned, valve-in-head straight-eight. Remember that when your eyes sparkle at the outward beauty of the four Century style creations—all on a maneuverable wheelbase of 122 inches, and tailored to timely perfection with the supersafe "Turret Top" Body by Fisher

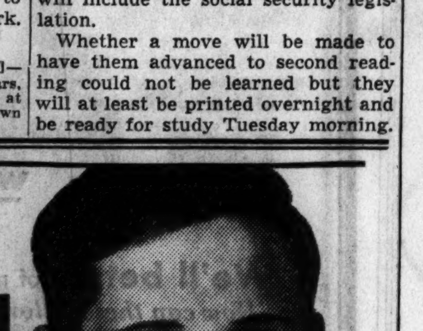
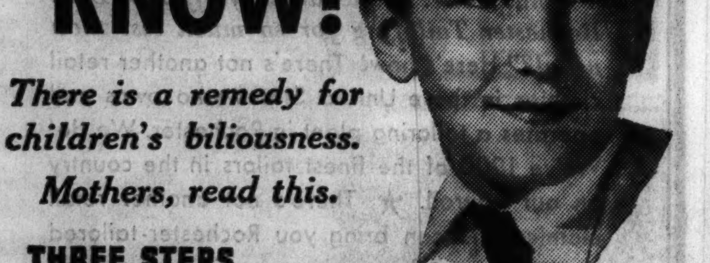
DOCTORS KNOW!



There is a remedy for children's biliousness. Mothers, read this.

THREE STEPS TO RELIEVING CONSTIPATION



Measure-out a cleansing dose of liquid laxative, regulating the amount to suit the age, condition and individual need.

Tomorrow, take less; let the regular muscular action of the bowels do part of the work—

Reduce the dose each time, until regularity has been completely restored.

A constipated child is so easily straightened out, it's a pity more mothers don't know the remedy.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult.

Doctors use liquid laxatives. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. And today, there are at least a million families that would have no other kind in the house.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a doctor's prescription, now so widely known that you can get it all ready for use at any drugstore, anywhere. It contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that form no habit.

Try Syrup Pepsin! It will make you wonder how you could ever get along with any cathartic that disturbs the system, and actually retards your return to regularity.

DUNHAM ORDERS 210 STATE WPA PROJECTS BEGUN

Chicago Is Included in Share of Made Work.

Robert J. Dunham, chief of the federal Works Progress administration for Illinois, gave orders yesterday to start 210 made work projects in Chicago and the state. The proposals were included in upwards of 400 projects that were released by Controler General J. R. McCarl during the last week.

As WPA officials in the state prepared to shift persons from the relief rolls to actual work on the porjects designated by Dunham, word was received from Washington that McCarl had released funds for an additional 142 Illinois projects with a total in federal grants of $28,139,166 as published on Oct. 12.

Decision in Next Few Days.

It is within Dunham's discretion to select the projects to be started in the light of the relief load to be shifted in various parts of the state. He is expected to make the selection within a few days of projects in the latest batch, which include $19,344,744 for rehabilitation of Chicago sewers and 24 other city proposals requiring direct WPA grants amounting to $5,213,459.

There were two projects above the million dollar mark in the McCarl list, which had been approved by the President. They were for cutting street curbs and rounding corners as safety measures for which the grant is $1,670,260 and the testing of water mains and repairing leaks with a grant of $1,073,049.

Most of Projects Minor.

The projects upon which Dunham ordered work started as soon as possible were mostly minor in character. Among them are:

SCHOOL BOARD—Binding damaged books, $29,491.

ILLINOIS EYE AND EAR INFIRMARY—Additional help, $32,879.

PARK DISTRICT—Improve 20 acres of wooded island in Jackson park, $28,751; landscape 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue in Washington park, $10,122; paint trafic lines, $16,844; modernize trafic signs, $16,332, and develop North Shore park, $68,343.

LEYDEN TOWNSHIP—School construction, $32,964.

MAYWOOD—Construction of storm sewers, $376,237.

HARVEY—Relay pavement, raise sidewalks, $27,339.

BELLWOOD—Improvements on village utilities, $38,493.

Will Ask PWA Bridge Aid.

The Chicago park board voted yesterday to ask the Public Works administration for a grant of $3,000,000 to be used in financing the completion of the outer drive bridge, work upon which was resumed recently with the aid of park funds. George T. Donoghue, general superintendent for the park district, explained that the requested grant is 45 per cent of the cost of finishing the bridge. He asserted that the bridge construction did not lend itself to Works Progress administration projects because of the great percentage of materials cost involved.

Donoghue added that although the deadline on PWA project requests is past, the park district is entering the request as a reapplication of previous PWA pridge project requests submitted by Lincoln park and south park boards before the consolidation of the park districts last year.

China's Readers of 'Gumps' Mourn Sid Smith's Death

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 22.—Large numbers of Chinese and occidentals in Shanghai were shocked by the news of the tragic death of Sidney Smith. His "Gump" cartoon has been published in the Shanghai Times for nearly 18 years, probably longer than any other American comic in this part of the world. E. A. Nottingham, publisher of the Times, commented on the wide human appeal of the "Gump" family in this unique international community and asked THE TRIBUNE to express his sorrow over Smith's untimely death.

WPA SENDS OUT ITS OWN SQUAD OF U. S. SLEUTHS

Relief Grafters Foes of New Agents.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—(AP)—WPA set out today with a squad of its own sleuths—known here as "W-men"—in an effort to track down work relief grafters.

"Our job is to keep graft out of the program, and we are going to do it," said Dallas Dort, head of the Works Progress administration division of investigation, in announcing the appointment of fifty "special field agents."

These new federal agents, working out of Washington and thirteen regional offices, will operate both independently and in coöperation with other government agencies, notably the secret service.

Other Duties Planned.

Dort, 27 year old lawyer, said he planned to take over later most of the sixty-five state relief administration investigators when the four billion dollar program gets fully under way.

Most of his agents are former "G-men." The remainder, like many of the federal division of investigation operators, are lawyers or accountants, all experienced in detective work.

Dort asserted that administrators of the work relief act, which itself makes any kind of false statement or corruption involving the appropriation a federal misdemeanor, punishable with $1,000 fine and two years' imprisonment, would expedite prosecution.

The nearly three billion dollars spent on the dole was technically state money and state prosecutors took charge of the evidence after it was worked up by relief agents. The new program, however, will be carried out entirely by federal authorities.

No Graft Promised.

Looking back to the CWA to support his assertion that graft will be kept out, Dort said that charges were found justified in only 240 of the 730 completed inquiries.

Although Harry L. Hopkins is responsible to President Roosevelt for the entire appropriation expenditure, Dort said his agents would concern themselves primarily with WPA's $1,250,000,000. The interior department division of investigation, for example, will continue to check the WPA projects, but will call on Dort for help.

PARKS TO SIGN LEASE ON FAIR SITE TUESDAY

Draft Is Given to Board; Work Awaits Approval.

Robert J. Dunham, president of the Chicago park district, presented to the park board yesterday the final draft of the lease which will turn over 180 acres of Burnham park to the Chicago Exposition authority for a permanent lake front exposition. The lease is expected to be signed at the regular park board meeting next Tuesday.

Walter Gregory, president of the exposition authority, a public corporation created by the recent general assembly, said that he had been authorized by the authority to sign the lease when the park board approves it.

Action on the lease was pushed yesterday by Mr. Dunham, following the release on Monday of $6,455,777 in Works Progress administration funds for ground development and landscaping on the permanent fair site.

Await Lease for Action.

WPA officials marked time yesterday on preparations for this ground work project awaiting action on the lease. According to Mr. Dunham the officials will requisition the procurement division of the United States treasury in Illinois for materials and supplies. The United States employment office here will be called upon to furnish relief clients qualified for work on the project, according to Dunham, and the exposition authority will supply plans and supervision at a cost of $293,500.

Under the terms of the lease draft submitted to the park board, previously prepared by James Slattery, park attorney, and submitted yesterday to the park board, an area on Northerly Island from a point 200 feet south of the Adler planetarium and on the mainland from 16th street to 34th street will be let to the fair authority for "one dollar and other good and valuable consideration for a period of 25 years.

Improvements Revert to Parks.

The lease stipulates that on its termination the land and all improvements, including buildings, will return to the possession of the park district. There is no clause in the lease providing for its renewal.

The document gives to park district authorities the power to approve or veto all plans for improvements, both in grounds and buildings. Plans for underground work, including utility lines, must be submitted to the park board not later than April 15, 1936. Plans for construction above the ground must be presented not later than July 15, 1937.

The lease requires also that all work be completed not later than Dec. 31, 1938. In the event of a breach of covenant on the part of the fair commission the park board reserves the right to terminate the lease.

55 MILLION TREES PLANTED IN MIDWEST BELT THE FIRST YEAR

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Reporting 55 million trees planted in the middle western shelter belt this year, the forestry service today shaped plans for setting as many more millions next year.

Two million dollars was set aside for the work this year in semi-arid areas.

Officials would not give exact figures on how much was sought in the budget drafted for next year. But elsewhere came the information today that at least another 2 million dollars would be asked.

Officials said that, paralleling work of the forestry service, increased private tree plantings had resulted in the areas. Nursery sales of trees in the six states through which the belt will run was said by these officials to have doubled since the work started.

POLICEMEN WHO BRAVED ROBBERS' GUNS HIT PAROLE

Demand Full Penalty for Maentanis.

Policemen who risked their lives to put Nick Maentanis in prison took issue yesterday with the statement of Parole Board Member Michael J. Howlett that Maentanis was deserving of the clemency given him last week by the parole board. Their view was that three years and eight months Maentanis spent behind bars was about as mild punishment as it was possible to mete out.

Maetanis was one of five gunmen convicted of forcing entrance into the home of the William H. Mitchells in Lake Forest while a party was in progress, and of robbing the family and guests of $150,000 in jewels. After the holdup he engaged in a running fight with policemen. He and the others were sentenced to the penitentiary for an indeterminate term of 1 year to life, but the parole board, after "special consideration," freed Maentanis in three years and eight months. The others were kept in prison.

Police Chief Comments.

"I felt that a rank injustice had been done when I learned through THE TRIBUNE that Maentanis had been freed," said Police Chief Frank Tiffany of Lake Forest yesterday. "After reading what Howlett of the parole board said, I feel twice as strongly that the parole board action was wrong.

"There were nineteen people in the Mitchell home when the five bandits forced their way in. The robbers were most abusive to the men and women gathered there. Maentanis was particularly so. He was the one who dragged Mrs. William Matthewson, wife of the Mitchell's chauffeur, out of a bathtub.

"It was Maentanis who hunted for Matthewson with the intention of killing him when Matthewson risked death by calling the police on the telephone. Matthewson's life was saved only because he hid under the bed and wasn't found.

Police in Great Danger.

"Earl Dunn, then a patrolman and now a sergeant, and a special policeman, Robert Jackson, were at the station when the call came. Matthewson spoke only in a whisper and was not specific so the policemen did not know what danger they faced when they responded. They thought there had been a stickup near the Mitchell home.

"When Policeman Dunn rang the doorbell he wasn't prepared to meet a gunman. Maentanis opened the door and pointed a pistol at him, then yanked him in. Dunn struggled with him. Jackson, outside and not knowing exactly what was wrong, fired several shots. That's all that saved Dunn's life. The bandits evidently thought the place was surrounded by police.

"By that time they had taken all the jewelry they could find and were ready to leave. They fled through a side door, firing several shots at Dunn as they went. He fired back at them and so did Jackson, but they disappeared down a ravine.

Guest Barely Escapes.

"Before the arrival of the police Leslie Wheeler, one of the guests, narrowly escaped death or injury. He is hard of hearing and at first did not understand that holdup was in progress. He didn't put up his hands when the command was given. He had an idea some kind of a joke was being played.

"Had it not been for the action of his wife and Mrs. Mitchell in getting his arms up quickly there might have been a tragedy.

"Maetanis was captured a short time later on foot and not more than a mile away. The policemen endangered their lives in capturing him. We had searched through the ravine and the forest all night for the bandits, catching Maentanis while it was dark and two others at daybreak. Chicago policemen had a duel with one of the others.

"Dunn and Jackson join with me in saying that Maentanis deserved the limit. I don't think there is a policeman in the country who would agree with Parole Commissioner Howlett's finding."

HUNT FOR COUPLE ON HONEYMOON; DISCOVER MARRIAGE IS ILLEGAL

Dixon, Ill., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—County Clerk Sterling D. Schrock today started a search for a Clinton, Ia., couple believed to be on their honeymoon somewhere in northern Illinois to tell them that they are not legally married. A marriage service was read to them last Saturday by the Rev. R. N. Joscelyn of Rockford, Ill.

The couple, Nolan V. Miller, 21, and Luella A. Henrichsen, 18, obtained a license here last Saturday and today Clerk Schrock received an affidavit from the Rev. Joscelyn stating that he had married the couple.

Illinois statutes require that marriage services be performed only in the county in which the license is issued. According to State's Attorney Edward A. Jones the couple must be remarried to legally become husband and wife.

HE OPENS A LOCK BUT THE REST IS NOT SO SIMPLE

Court Will Rule on Tricky Business.

N. J. Hill, who is in the casket business at 944 West Washington street was walking through a downtown department store last summer when he noticed a sign reading: "Pick open this lock—$100 is yours."

Mr. Hill bought a $1.25 padlock like the one attached to the sign and took it to his home at 6240 Lundy avenue. He practiced. He returned to the store on July 8, slid a thin strip of brass along the shackle into the top of the lock attached to the sign and sprung it open.

He Claims the Money.

"The $100 is mine I guess, like the sign says," said Mr. Hill to the salesman. After a general consultation, Mr. Hill was refused payment on the ground that he had not properly picked the lock because he had not opened it through the keyhole.

Today Municipal Judge Edward B. Casey is to decide whether the casket man is entitled to the $100 at a hearing continued from last week on a suit for that amount filed by Hill.

He sued the Dudley Lock corporation, which had posted the promise, and his suit also named the Fair Store, where the lock was exhibited.

Two Definitions Offered.

Attorney Milton G. Manasse, representing Hill, submitted the dictionary definitions of pick: "To open [a lock] by or as by a wire."

In opposition was the lock experts' definition: "To open [a lock] without a key by the intervention of a wire or other instrument through the keyhole."

Admits 8 North Shore Robberies; Loot, $11,000

John McAdams, 34 years old, 4107 Sheridan road, confessed eight recent north shore burglaries which netted jewelry, rugs and clothing valued at $11,000, part of which has been recovered, Evanston police said last night. Among the robberies was the $4,000 burglary of the home of George A. Peck, 927 Ridge avenue, Evanston, and the theft of $2,000 in jewels and rugs from the home of John J. Schaack in Glencoe, five weeks ago.

JOINT TRANSFERS USED AT RATE OF 25,000,000 A YEAR

Reports Show Steady Gain in Popularity.

The first official reports on the use of joint transfers in effect between Chicago surface and elevated lines shows that the new privileges are being used at the rate of 25 million rides a year, or more than double early estimates, according to an announcement yesterday by the Illinois commerce commission.

Reports filed by the surface and elevated companies with the commission discloses that more than 70,000 riders daily are now using the joint transfers. Commission engineers in their testimony at hearings held prior to the order for inauguration of the system made a minimum estimate of 33,000 such rides daily.

Progressive Increase Shown.

The reports were for the period between Sept. 22, when the transfer system was inaugurated, and Oct. 15, with supplementary data for later dates. They showed that there has been an irregular but progressive increase in the use of the transfers. The surface lines figures showed that sale of transfers for use on elevated lines, requiring payment of an additional 3 cent fare over the 7 cent surface line rate, have reached a figure as high as 41,662 on a week day. Elevated transfers collected by surface lines have exceeded 32,000 in a single day.

A statement by Irvin Rooks, attorney, and Lee A. Freeman, assistant attorney, of the commission, said the number of transfers to the elevated sold by the surface lines increased from 33,517 on Sept. 23, the first business day the system was effective, to a maximum day of 36,832 in the first week, 38,399 in the second week and 40,566 in the third week.

Similar Trends On Both Lines.

It was pointed out that these figures represent only the movement of transfer riders from the surface to elevated lines and there is a corresponding, but slightly lower, movement from the elevated to the surface lines.

B. F. Lindheimer, chairman of the commission, said he was pleased with the results of the intersystem transfer arrangement. "It indicates that there is a definite public convenience served by placing long haul passengers on the fastest available local transportation agency," he said.

QUAKE DAMAGES AREA IN INTERIOR STATE OF BRAZIL

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 22.—(AP)—A series of earth tremors rocked the interior of the state of Minas Geraes today, sending children fleeing from schools in panic.

The shocks opened huge fissures in the earth and toppled a few walls and roofs, dispatches said. No report was made of casualties or of the extent of the damage.

The temblor struck early this morning and was felt late in the forenoon at Bom Successo, on the eastern fringe of the Canastra mountain range, slightly north of the River of Death in Minas Geraes, about 150 kilometers [about 93 miles] south of Bello Horizonte, the state capital.

WIFE OF DOCTOR ACCUSES NURSE IN $100,000 SUIT

New York, Oct. 22.—[Special.]—The wife of Dr. Joseph S. Somberg took the witness stand before Supreme Court Justice Aaron Steuer today in the trial of her $100,000 alienation suit against Miss Rose Baskind, whom she accuses of first replacing her as her husband's office nurse and then supplanting her in his affections.

Mrs. Somberg, who now lives in Belle Harbor on Long Island, said her differences with her husband had not amounted to "a pinch of snuff" until after Miss Baskind went to work for him in 1926. Three years later, she said, Miss Baskind left her husband's employ and later, she said, she learned her husband had spent $10,000 furnishing a two-room studio apartment, and about Christmas, 1931, she said, her husband told her to go to Reno and get a divorce, adding:

"I want my freedom. I am tired of you and I no longer care for you."

Mrs. Somberg said that before dawn one morning in 1932, she and relatives raided a "beautiful home" at Rye, and found Dr. Somberg and Miss Baskind.

WEIRD PARADE OF THIEVES AT MURDER SCENE

Slaying of Storekeeper Told; Four Held.

Testimony given yesterday at the inquest into the death of Edward Hodgson, 74 years old, who was beaten and shot last Thursday night in his second hand store at 1554 North Wells street, indicated that the store was visited by thieves three different times that night, and that each gang took part of the loot valued at more than $1,000.

The inquest, which was held in the county morgue, was continued until Oct. 31 for further police investigation.

Police Hold Four Men.

Four men are in custody as a result of the inquiry already made, two of them suspected of being members of the gang which first entered the store and which is believed to have fatally wounded Hodgson. The names of these two were not disclosed.

The other prisoners are Joseph Javanovich, 18 years old, 238 West Division street, and Paul Ilosvay, 15 years old, 1311 Sedgwick street. Companions of Javanovich and Ilosvay are being sought.

Hodgson, who lived at 1829 North Park avenue, slept in his store Thursday night with the intention of guarding it against burglars who had visited the place several times recently. On Friday morning he was found dying from a bullet wound and a beating. He died on Monday in the County hospital without regaining consciousness.

Capt. Barry Tells Story.

Capt. Andrew Barry of the Hudson avenue police was the chief witness at the inquest yesterday. Reconstructing the events of Thursday night, Capt. Barry testified that the first gang of thieves apparently had entered Hodgson's store about 9 p. m.

An hour later, the captain said, Javanovich and a friend visited the shop, intending to sell Hodgson a stolen bicycle. They found him unconscious, according to Javanovich's confession to Capt. Barry, and sought to revive him and dress his wounds with an antiseptic purchased in a nearby drug store.

Failing in this and realizing their opportunity, Javanovich and his companion looted the store of $1,000 worth of jewelry, Capt. Barry said. On their way out they gave two watches to John Coyne, 21 years old, 1424 North Park avenue, a friend, who was passing.

Third Party of Visitors.

At 11 p. m., said Capt. Barry, young Ilosvay entered the store with James Zegan, 17 years old. Ilosvay confessed that he and Zegan found the wounded Hodgson on a cot where Javanovich had placed him and fled without taking anything. Capt. Barry testified, however, that several items which Javanovich remembered seeing in the store were missing after Ilosvay left.

The clew which led to Javanovich's arrest, Capt. Barry said, was the bottle of antiseptic which the youth bought at the neighborhood drug store. Ilosvay was arrested when the police learned that he had been seen near the store on Thursday night.

Zegan has not been found. Coyne was not held.

TOWN IS CUT OFF

Armed Sailors Patrol Kingstown Streets.

KINGSTOWN, St. Vincent, British West Indies, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Rioting Negro strikers, disdaining martial law, tonight blocked Kingstown off from the rest of the island to climax two days of disorders in which three of their number were shot to death.

While armed bluejackets from a British warship patroled the streets, the hoodlums tore down the Camden park bridge on the highway connecting the capital with the leeward district. Telephone poles were uprooted and placed across the road.

At the same time an underground passage on the highway between Kingstown and the windward district was destroyed, blocking trafic in that direction.

Gather in Hills.

Massed strikers demonstrated at Byeras hill and Camden park, near here and a grocery store in the latter place was looted. Kingstown, largely deserted after yesterday's troubles, was generally quiet throughout the day. Several families were taken to police barracks for the night.

The strikers, angered by months of labor troubles and aroused because of race feeling as a result of the Italo-Ethiopian war, retired to hillsides outside the town, after rioting had flared again this morning.

At least fourteen persons, including six policemen and two women, were injured in the hand-to-hand fighting yesterday and today.

Wreck Governor's Car.

The disorders broke out after a mass demonstration of laborers Monday. The rioters wrecked the cars of Gov. Sir Selwyn Grier, a Supreme court judge and the attorney general, and held the governor prisoner until he agreed to discuss the situation with their representatives.

The mob looted homes and stores in Kingstown, Georgetown and Chateau Belair, and invaded homes along the roads connecting the towns as the crowd marched along carrying sticks, clubs, stones and iron bars. One plantation owner frightened away the rioters by firing his rifle, wounding a man.

Mrs. Kelly and Dunhams Help Plan Flower Show

Extensive exhibits will also be held in the park district's two other conservatories in Washington and Lincoln parks.

Hair Milk

A treatment that will save the hair on your head has not only been your hope, but the hope of generations. The announcement of such a discovery by Charles Nessler is the sensational climax of 35 years' scientific research.

With PRO-KER Charles Nessler's new preparation, PRO-KER Laboratories make this guarantee.

No matter what your age—no matter how great your present hair loss—whether you suffer from such secondary conditions as dandruff, oiliness or itching scalp—PRO-KER is guaranteed to stop your hair loss from the first moment of use—and promptly to correct the secondary conditions. (For details see booklet.)

"Baldness is not due to falling hair," Mr. Nessler tells us. It is due to the fact that nature fails to replace the hair that falls. That is the simple but startling discovery on which PRO-KER is based. PRO-KER helps nature to complete the hair growing cycle—to replace the hair that falls with new, live, lustrous hair.

CUT IN CITY COST FROM 1930 PEAK SHOWN BY MAYOR

Saving Totals $9,051,552 for 1935, Kelly Says.

The cost of operating the fifty-six departments in the city government is $9,051,552 less this year than it was in the peak year of 1930, according to a report made public yesterday by Mayor Kelly. In 1930, under the administration of a former Republican mayor, the cost of government was $58,768,000 while the total corporate [operating] appropriation this year is $49,716,448.

In listing the economies effected during his régime and that of his predecessor, the late Mayor Cermak, Mayor Kelly pointed out that no necessary services for the protection and health of Chicagoans have been curtailed and that in many instances the scope of these services has widened.

Sequel to Rees' Warning.

The mayor's survey of the city's finances was an aftermath of a warning sounded on Oct. 12 by John O. Rees, director of the citizens' committee on public expenditures.

Mr. Rees said that governments in Cook county were backsliding from their economy pledge of two and three years ago. He asserted that the failure to carry out promised retrenchments combined with the present slow rate of tax collections would again plunge the local governments into financial chaos. Mr. Rees said that the county government was the worst offender as regarded violation of economy promises.

The city's total operating expenditures in 1934 were $44,185,000. The original appropriation for 1935 was $45,153,190. This amount was increased on July 1 by a supplementary appropriation of $4,563,258, making a total appropriation for this year of $49,716,448.

Reasons for 1935 Increase.

The increase in the original appropriation for this year over 1934 was necessary, Mayor Kelly said, for three reasons:

1. The board of election commissioners required a greater appropriation because of the mayoralty election, for which the city paid all expenses.

2. The board of health needed $79,300 additional for dairy inspectors because of the new pure milk ordinance, requiring all of Chicago's milk sources in the surrounding area to be carefully inspected. Together with stringent rules for Chicago dairies, this appropriation has insured the city's having the purest milk supply in the world, the mayor said.

3. The board of health's budget for medical, nursing, and dental service was increased $56,000 to take care of the constantly widening needs of people unable to afford physicians or hospital care.

Extra Appropriation Explained.

Among the large items necessitating the supplementary appropriation this year were listed these:

1. Full restoration of salaries to the Municipal court judges, officers, and employés in accordance with a ruling of the Illinois Supreme court. The court order covered not only full restoration of salaries for 1935 but also those deductions made in the last few years. The city had to pay out $1,079,512 for this purpose.

2. Partial restoration of the salaries of city employés. In 1931 all salaries were reduced and further reduced in 1932. An appropriation of $1,725,000 restored one-half of the pay cuts. The mayor has previously stated that the partial restoration was necessary as a compromise with labor unionists who had besieged the state legislature with demands for complete restoration.

Other Supplemental Items.

Other items included in the supplemental appropriation were for the hiring of 500 additional policemen and 200 more firemen, and for sewer and dock construction, electrical repairs, and additional street cleaning service.

Year—	Appropriation.	Expenditure.
1930	$63,315,563	$58,768,000
1931	62,877,070	56,215,000
1932	50,124,334	46,464,000
1933	47,878,968	44,946,000
1934	44,760,093	44,185,000

Mayor Kelly said that the appropriation for 1934 was approximately the same as that for 1923, in which year the figure was $44,519,919. During the period from 1923 to 1935 the population of the city increased 577,000, necessitating increases in city services.

20 Per Cent Population Increase.

"The population of Chicago in 1923 was 2,964,692," the mayor said, "and this year it has risen to 3,541,700, an increase of 20 per cent.

"On the other hand, taxes levied for corporate purposes in 1923 were approximately $33,138,000. The estimated corporate tax levy for 1935 is $36,000,000, or an advance in the tax levy of 8.7 per cent. In other words the population increased 20 per cent while the tax levy increased only 8.7 per cent.

"In the matter of appropriations—which includes both taxes and miscellaneous revenues received by the city—it is interesting to note that the per capita appropriation for 1923 was $15.04 while the amount allowed for each person in Chicago for the 1935 appropriation is $14.04, or $1 less per capita, in spite of vastly increased service to the public.

For Health and Safety.

"The safety and health of the people are my chief concerns. Having in mind the necessity of continuing, as nearly as could be done, the large savings made during the past years, but weighing well the necessities that must be supplied to the citizens, we caused 500 men to be added to the police force and 200 to the fire fighting force to fill vacancies in those departments which heretofore have been allowed to remain unfilled.

"We have provided for additional collection and removal of garbage, ashes and street refuse, and we have provided for a partial restoration of salaries of the firemen, policemen, street laborers and other employés. However, the salaries are not to be restored in full, nor are they as large as those paid in New York city, although the character of the work performed is the same, and, in Chicago, more territory is covered by the individual policemen, firemen and other employés than in New York."

3 PEDESTRIANS ARE KILLED BY AUTOS IN A DAY

Three pedestrians were killed by automobiles in Chicago yesterday.

Mrs. Sarah Parrillo, 40 years old, 1207 South Ashland avenue, was fatally injured late in the day when she was struck at Roosevelt road and Ashland avenue by an auto driven by George Giles, 40 years old, colored, 5757 South Michigan avenue. Police took her to the County hospital, where she died. Giles was held pending an inquest.

Sanford Dickens, 83 years old, of 1830 Belle Plaine avenue, was killed by an automobile driven by Frank Clever, 5049 North Damen avenue. Dickens was crossing Damen avenue at Warner avenue.

Karl Minkus, 71 years old, 1216 North Hoyne avenue, died in the county hospital after he was struck at Hoyne and West North avenues by an automobile driven by Stanley Czubernak, 39, of 1523 Tell place. The driver was held by the North avenue police. Minkus was the owner of a junk yard at 1505 Austin avenue.

Earl E. Williams, 48 years old, 1124 Washington boulevard, Oak Park, died in a Freeport hospital of injuries incurred Friday when he drove his automobile into a Milwaukee railroad crossing on Route 26, 2½ miles south of Freeport.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 772 persons had been killed in trafic accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. In the same period 602 persons were killed and 13,931 injured within the Chicago city limits.

WOMAN LEADERS URGE DAYLIGHT TIME ALL YEAR

Children's Health Biggest Factor to Mothers.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Influential Chicago women the last few days have joined child specialists and the board of education in their indorsement of a proposal to give the city eastern standard time. In resolutions and personal interviews they have pointed out the household and economic advantages and the health benefits of daylight saving all year.

Mrs. John Van Wakeman, president of the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Arthur Washo, an officer of the organization, will go to the city hall tomorrow morning to urge adoption of the proposal when it comes up for hearing before the city council. Yesterday the federation, through Mrs. Van Wakeman, addressed to Ald. Berthold Cronson [4th] a letter stating its official approval of the ordinance. Ald. Cronson introduced a bill for an eastern time ordinance in the council two weeks ago.

Club Leaders Give Views.

"Eastern standard time is a splendid idea," Mrs. Van Wakeman commented yesterday. "The general health of the community would benefit—not only children but adults. Besides this it is an economy, for it would save thousands of dollars annually on Chicago's light bill. The board of managers of the Cook County Federation is enthusiastic about the proposal. When a vote was taken there was only one dissent."

This sentiment is shared by Mrs. Henry W. Hardy, long time club leader who heads the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations with headquarters at 209 South State street. "The adoption of eastern standard time means that Chicago would gain 210 hours of daylight a year," Mrs. Hardy explained yesterday. "This would pay real health dividends."

"Children would get much and better sleep under the proposed system. They would get extra exercise in the open air—itself a health aid and a promoter of sleep—yet even with daylight saving it would be dark by the time the youngest child goes to bed."

Federation to Consider Proposal.

Mrs. Hardy will bring the proposal before a federation meeting Friday afternoon. The Chicago and Cook county federation has a large and representative affiliate membership throughout the city and county.

"A fine idea that should be given a trial," is the opinion of Mrs. Frank B. Staely, chairman of the American home department of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. "Club women would benefit by such a system because they could get home from their meetings before dark. But, more seriously, it would mean more sunshine time for boys and girls in the winter when they need it."

Mrs. Mark P. Mears, president of the Women's City club and a former leader of the Parent-Teacher organization, looks upon the eastern time ordinance as a safety measure.

"There is no doubt that there is a mental and physical let-down during the late afternoon," Mrs. Mears has explained. "For this reason children certainly would be safer from trafic accidents going to school in the morning by dusk, if this were necessary, than returning by dusk in the afternoon. I personally am very much in favor of daylight saving."

This safety opinion is shared by Mrs. Charles P. Schwartz, co-chairmen of the women's division of Chicago's Community fund, and co-chairmen of the Association for Child Study and Parent Education. According to Judge John Gutknecht of the Trafic court most accidents occur during the late afternoon trafic rush. During the winter eastern standard time would provide daylight rather than dark during this rush period.

Mrs. Paul Steinbrecher, vice president of the Woman's City club, believes that business people would appreciate the extra hour of daylight at the time of day when they can best use it.

Emphasizing this same point, Mrs. Marion Biel, president of the First district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, says: "The system would be of great benefit to men and women with long working days. They want all the light they can get and they want it at the time of day it will do them the most good.

"I also would like to see the adoption of the ordinance in order to put Chicago on a time parity with the east. I think this is essential."

Synchronization with New York.

Although Mrs. Edward J. Lehman, newly elected president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, comes from Sidney near Champaign she is in sympathy with the Chicago proposal. The idea of New York and Chicago having the same time basis appeals to her as a good idea.

Another leader interested in the success of the ordinance is Mrs. George V. McIntyre, president of the Big Sisters and public guardian by appointment of Gov. Horner.

"It's a splendid idea for the children," Mrs. McIntyre said yesterday.

"The children are the first to be considered, but grownups also would benefit by 210 added hours of daylight annually," Mrs. Edward E. Waful, president of the Catholic Woman's league, believes.

These same arguments have been stressed by another state leader of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. A. H. Johnson, chairman of the program bureau.

Shippers Rally to Daylight Time as Business Stimulant

Chicago manufacturers, jobbers, provisioners, and mail order houses doing business largely in the Mississippi valley area agreed yesterday that the adoption of eastern time in Chicago would prove a boon to their business.

Chicago is a manufacturing city because its excellent transportation facilities provide close contact with a vast trade territory. Speed in transportation is especially needed for the distribution of finished products to buyers throughout that territory, a movement outward from Chicago. The movement of raw materials inward requires less speed.

Advantages in Delivery.

Therefore, according to a consensus of these business men, the adoption of eastern time in Chicago brings large benefits to the manufacturer and jobber because our chief problem is fast distribution, and the earlier start of business here under eastern time means an extra hour for the delivery in the same business day, since the receiving points will close an hour later.

Chicago's raw material orders generally are placed long in advance, and the loss of an hour in transportation would not be harmful, except perhaps, in the case of highly perishable goods.

The manager of a large hardware jobbing firm saw not only advantages in the extra hours for delivery of goods, but considered it an advantage that Chicago business would start an hour ahead of that in the trade territory.

"We now must begin opening our mail at 2 a. m. to get out the day's orders," he said. "Daylight time would give us an extra hour before business opens in the trading area, and it would be invaluable."

Extra Time in Shipping.

"It is important that our shipments reach their destination the day they are sent out," said an official of a large fruit products wholesale house. "Daylight time means extra time for deliveries outside the Chicago suburban area."

"Trucks pick up our shipments in the evening, and eastern time means an extra hour of daylight for loading," reported the operating department of a large machinery distributing firm.

Tavern owners said yesterday they opposed eastern time for Chicago. "There's nothing but disadvantage in it for us," one complained. "Our business is best by night, and the extra hour of daylight means that people will stay outside that much longer. Since we are required to close at 1 a. m., this means we will lose a business hour every night."

James Howe, president of the Oak Park village board, announced yesterday that the board has unanimously indorsed eastern time for Chicagoland.

"Eastern time," the resolution said, "will promote health, safety, and the general welfare."

A poll of the employés of the Olson Rug company, Crawford and Diversey avenues, gave yesterday the following totals on the proposal: For eastern time, 708; against, 314.

RULES KEARNS HAD NO RIGHT TO DRAW FULL PAY

Clarence A. Kearns had no right to withdraw $7,000 of city funds while he was city treasurer to make up salary reductions for himself and the employés in his office, and he must return this sum to the city or face action at law, according to an opinion given yesterday by Barnet Hodes, corporation counsel, at the request of City Controler Robert B. Upham.

Mr. Kearns held office from 1931 until early this year. During that period 21½ per cent salary cuts were imposed on Kearns and his staf, which Mr. Kearns made up, according to Hodes, by withdrawals from the treasurer's funds for which he left receipts.

Even though Kearns had a legal claim upon the money, said Mr. Hodes in his opinion, his proper and only course would be to have brought suit against the city. Mr. Upham said he would study the opinion and then decide what to do.

When these glands don't work properly, all the food in the world can't help you. It just isn't turned into "stay-there" flesh, new strength and energy.

Don't dally with a cold! It may end seriously—in the form of flu or pneumonia.

A cold also calls for internal treatment, for a cold is an internal infection.

MAYOR STARTS DECENCY TEST OF ALL PLAYS

'Tobacco Road' Producers Plan Court Fight.

Lawyers were engaged yesterday by the producers of "Tobacco Road" to wage a court battle designed to put the play back on a Chicago stage. Meanwhile Mayor Kelly, who on Monday forced the play out of the Selwyn theater after viewing it on Sunday night, announced that an investigation is to be made immediately of other stage productions in the city.

"The die is cast so far as 'Tobacco Road' is concerned," Mayor Kelly declared. "As to other plays, we are going to see whether any of them have added improper lines since they were passed by the city inspector, Lieut. Harry Costello.

"I understand that this practice has been followed to some extent, so that a play which is only somewhat racy when it opens is downright obscene several weeks later.

"Some Things Pass the Bounds."

"We are not trying to make a church out of the city, but some things pass the bounds of being entertaining. I suspect that the so-called intelligentsia, trying to claim credit for ability to understand beyond that of ordinary folks, are the chief supporters of such trash."

Sam H. Grisman, co-owner of "Tobacco Road," and his attorney, Harry H. Oshrin, arrived from New York yesterday to superintend the battle to reopen the play. After conferring with several law firms they engaged that of Fisher, Boyden, Bell, Boyd, & Marshall. The attorneys said they would decide today what steps to take.

"We will fight this action of the mayor's up to the highest courts," Mr. Grisman said. "We will not take the play to a suburb or produce it on a boat in Lake Michigan, as has been rumored, because that would be admitting that it is obscene.

Charges Censor Passed Play.

"One remarkable fact is that the play was passed by Lieut. Costello after one line was changed to please him. There have been no other changes or additions since it opened here. It is word for word the same as it was in other cities. It is still playing in New York and there is another company on the west coast. A fourth company will open at Princeton, N. J., soon."

Henry Hull, actor, who has been playing the leading rôle of Jeeter Lester in "Tobacco Road" here, and Erskine Caldwell, author of the novel on which the play is based, made a spirited defense of its merits before a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Bar association yesterday.

"I gathered the material for the story over a period of 20 years," Caldwell said. "I lived with these people [the "poor whites" of Georgia], was one of them. It is a true story and therefore a universal story."

Life in Raw, Says Actor.

"That 'Tobacco Road' is vulgar there is no doubting," Hull said. "So is life in the raw. If it is a play unfit for Chicago people to see, then the Bible is an unfit book for them to read because some portions of the Bible can't be sent through the mails.

"The purpose of the play is to shock the audience. The same was true of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' which was a factor in liberating the slaves. Now this play promises to stir up public agitation helpful to the condition of the peons in the south.

"It is a play for adult minds, but now it is to be classed in Chicago with hootch dancing or nude women in the back rooms of saloons. I recall the story of a courtier in England who picked up a lady's garter in the ballroom with a leer on his face. The king said: 'Honi soit qui mal y pense' [evil to him who evil thinks—and the same holds true here."

ALIMONY CEASES

MRS. MAUDE DE MOTTE.

Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday upheld a section of the new state law limiting alimony payments under separate maintenance decrees to two years, but ruled against another section of the law which would have permitted either husband or wife to obtain a divorce on the ground of desertion at the end of that period.

The petition was filed by William C. De Motte, 50 years old, of the Lake Shore Athletic club, vice president of the National Casket company, who has been paying $100 a month alimony to his wife, Maude, 4659 Drexel boulevard, since she obtained the separate maintenance decree in 1925. The judge held that De Motte did not have to pay any alimony after last July 20, the day the new law became effective.

The court, however, dismissed De Motte's suit for divorce, holding that only the injured party, in this case, Mrs. De Motte, who brought the original separate maintenance, was entitled to the divorce. Judge Finnegan said the new law allowing either party a divorce was in conflict with previous laws. Attorneys for both sides said they would appeal the parts of the decision adverse to them.

COOKING SCHOOL LEADER PRAISES U. S. HOUSEWIFE

High praise of the American housewife's culinary prowess was given yesterday by George Rector, noted New York chef, when he opened the first of four cooking school sessions under sponsorship of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company at the Aragon ballroom. A second lesson will be held there this afternoon, and the last two at the Trianon ballroom tomorrow and Friday.

Housewives packed the ballroom as Mr. Rector revealed many of the cooking secrets which have made his cuisine famous. He said the American housewife is fast becoming the world's most expert cook because she takes advantage of all the modern scientific conveniences.

Tells a Big Story in Effort to Borrow Money; Is Held

Roberto Alvares, 27 years old, was held by the Hudson avenue police yesterday after he had attempted to borrow money on a fictitious story that he was a University of Michigan freshman and intended to place a large merchandise order for his father, who, he said, was a wealthy Guatemala merchant. He was arrested in the office of M. E. Hellman, credit and export manager of the W. M. Welch company, manufacturers of scientific apparatus at 1515 Sedgwick street. The police said that Alvares admitted defrauding other firms here within the last year by relating similar stories.

QUAKER PARLEY STUDIES EFFECT OF DICTATORSHIP

Survival Question Group's Main 'Concern.'

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Richmond, Ind., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Can the Quaker, whose faith is probably the most individualistic of all and whose church is said to be the most democratic, survive onslaughts of dictators and collectivists in a day when the swing of national and world affairs is considered favorable to New Dealers, Hitlers, and Mussolinis?

According to the discipline, or official, book of the Quaker, he represents "the logical conclusion of the Protestant reformation" from which American democratic ideals largely spring, and it is argued that if this Quaker outpost of individualism and freedom of conscience is lost, democracy's inner citadels then are likely soon to crumble.

Survival Main Concern.

This question of survival is a main "concern," as the Quaker calls his problems, at the first five year or general meeting of the Society of Friends, opening here today, since 1927. Delegates representing "annual meetings" from all parts of America and nearly every English speaking nation are present.

The problem of survival has come before the convention in two ways. First, at this morning's session, Alvin T. Coate of Indianapolis, Ind., declared his "concern," which he called a summary of many convention members' "concerns," was for the Quaker to "justify his democracy in this disturbed critical day."

"Democracy," said he, "thus far either cannot or will not function in a crisis. If it is to survive it must go to school where it may learn discipline."

The second compulsion to face this concern for survival was presented by Dr. Charles M. Woodman of Richmond, Ind., and Homer J. Coppock of Chicago, in a report on education. This report, to be considered by the meeting, cites two trends among Friends today.

Trend Points Opportunity.

One trend points out "unprecedented opportunity" for Quakers to give the nation the Quaker contribution to a broad religious base for the development of American spiritual and democratic ideals to replace the present chaotic situation.

"The other trend raises the question, why not fold up our little encampment of tents and let others have the field?" the report declared. "This fact becomes increasingly evident. The study of Quakerism awakens loyalty and the conviction that the society has a message for the world. Lack of education in this field engenders the feeling that Quakerism has shot its bolt, is only an historical relic, and had better abandon its work and become absorbed in some larger united Protestant movement. When early Quakerism ceased to protest, it, too, conformed and thereby dug its own spiritual grave."

Helena, Mont., Oct. 22.—(AP)—This shaken capital, relieved by the diminishing intensity and frequency of earthquakes which continued ten days and took two lives, started beating back today.

Only light shocks were felt. The last substantial enough to register on the weather bureau's instruments was recorded shortly after noon. It caused no damage.

Aid for the needy among 150 homeless families was offered freely. The spirit of the historic old gold mining camp again asserted itself. Bricks began to fly and the sound of hammers rang through broken structures.

BEG YOUR PARDON

A story in the early editions of THE TRIBUNE of Aug. 28 concerning the death of Mrs. Anna Stravinski, 3209 Lime street, quoted police as saying that they arrested Arthur H. Stegman, 3145 Broadway, as he was driving away after his car struck the woman at Madison and State streets, and that he boasted of his political pull. Subsequent inquiry showed that Stegman was en route to the police station when arrested and it was a companion, not Stegman, who boasted of his influence. The grand jury returned a no bill in Stegman's case.

HUNT FOR JOCKY IN SLAYING FAILS, PAL QUESTIONED

Rider's Auto Is Found in Baltimore Garage.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—E. [Whitey] Danenhauer, companion of Willie [Smokey] Saunders, the jocky of Kentucky Derby fame who is sought for questioning in a Louisville slaying, today was held by police for questioning in the case.

Meantime a widespread search was under way in this vicinity and in Louisville for Saunders, rider of the victorious Omaha in the Derby and Preakness this year. Danenhauer said the jocky was on his way to Louisville to submit to questioning. Police reported they found Saunders' automobile in a downtown garage here.

Tells of Telephone Call.

Danenhauer, who is Saunders' agent and roommate, came here yesterday with the young jocky, who was scheduled to ride at Laurel race track this week. Danenhauer said the rider received a long distance telephone call and then packed up his bags and left, saying: "I'm going to Louisville, but I'll be back in a couple of days." Saunders was said not to have appeared worried or upset.

A photograph of the jocky was identified in Louisville as that of the "Jimmie Smith" who was the escort of Mrs. Evelyn Sliwinski, pretty 25 year old wife of a Louisville tailor, whose mangled body was found in a road early Sunday.

Details of the slaying and of the party that preceded it were told to Louisville police by Mrs. Agatha Mackison, 28, who said she was along when Mrs. Sliwinski was thrown out of an automobile and run over twice.

Tells of Fatal Ride.

Mrs. Mackison said she and Mrs. Sliwinski met "Jimmie Smith" and another man she knew only as "Tommy" in a saloon. Both men spent money freely and talked extensively about racing, she said, and Tommy spoke Italian fluently.

Police were seeking Tony Sani, 26, an exercise boy and former jocky, in the belief he is "Tommy." Danenhauer told police here that Sani was with Saunders in Louisville a few hours before the gay party which preceded Mrs. Sliwinski's slaying.

Mrs. Mackison said "Jimmie" quarreled with Mrs. Sliwinski, knocked her down, and later resumed the quarrel in the car and ordered her out. As she walked around in front of the car "Tommy" stepped on the gas and ran over her, Mrs. Mackison said; then the car was turned around and driven over the body a second time.

MAYOR ASKS PUPILS TO JOIN IN CONTEST ON TRAFIC SAFETY

Mayor Kelly, in a proclamation issued yesterday, urged all public and parochial high school pupils to take active part in a trafic safety contest under sponsorship of the Keep Chicago Safe committee.

The mayor appealed for coöperation in calling public attention to the "wanton waste of life in trafic accident," and in working out methods of reducing such accidents.

Each school may enter five slogans and five posters in the contest, which closes on Nov. 12. The best in each group will be entered in the finals, and the other four will be displayed at the Automobile show in the International amphitheater which opens on Nov. 16. The Chicago Automobile Trade association will be host at the automobile show to the first prize winners, and will present trophies to all of the winners.

GIRL AND 2 MEN CONFESS HOLDUP HOAX; ALL HELD

Miss Flora Duane of the Hotel Sherman, a dancer, and her manager, Nate Krevitz of Gary, were charged with disorderly conduct by police yesterday after admitting that a robbery they reported on Sept. 26 was a hoax planned for publicity purposes.

The two reported that Miss Duane had been robbed and forced to disrobe in a taxicab driven by Jack Gottlieb, 3924 19th street, in Frontier avenue near Irving Park boulevard. Gottlieb exposed the hoax by admitting that he had been paid $10 for his part in it.

Donald Roth, 1725 East 53d street, was also booked on a disorderly conduct charge after opening the door of the room in which Miss Duane was being questioned by the police and warning her not to sign anything. All three are to be arraigned in the Town Hall court today.

Autoist Who Hit Wagon Gets 20 Days in Jail

Walter Mols, 36 years old, of Ingleside, Ill., was sentenced to 20 days in the county jail on a charge of reckless driving yesterday by Judge Albert E. Isley of Newton, sitting in the County court. Mols, unable to furnish bond, has been in jail since Oct. 10 when his automobile rammed the back of a wagon on which 23 young men and women were riding at Milwaukee and Lake avenues in Glenview, injuring three persons.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

THE REVOLUTION IN RHODE ISLAND.

If Huey Long had not advertised his misdeeds with all his genius for publicity it is likely that the country would have remained indifferently unaware that he had destroyed constitutional government. Brave men and women resisting despotism found little sympathy in other states and cynical evasion in the United States senate.

These observations are borne out by the general ignorance and indifference to the overthrow of a republican form of government in Rhode Island. No voice of protest has been raised in congress. The American Bar association's criticisms have been cast in minor key. The press associations have ignored it, so that THE TRIBUNE, having no correspondents in Rhode Island, was compelled to send a correspondent there to cover the first successful revolution in the United States.

A complete revolution it was, modeled on that of the fifth Brumaire which overset the first French republic and set Napoleon upon his bloody road.

A governor using the police force of the state capital, the sherif of the county, and the National Guard conspired with the lieutenant governor and a minority of the senate to unseat enough of the majority to transfer the balance of power. The rump senate, conspiring with the Democratic majority of the house, then voted to unseat the entire Supreme court.

The revolutionary government is in complete power. It has the sense not to advertise its crime and the ferocity to coerce the population of the state. The bar of Rhode Island and the press are kept silent by a reign of terror. Well they know that lawyers and judges who have committed perjury and overthrown the constitution they swore to uphold will not stop at any further illegalities to make their usurpation secure. Citizens of Rhode Island can place no reliance on constitutional rights which must be maintained by a court holding office and drawing its salaries in violation of the constitution.

Rhode Island has been robbed by violence of the republican form of government guaranteed by the constitution of the United States. The guaranty will not be enforced by either the President or the congress of the United States who made a scrap of paper out of the constitution of the United States until called to account by the Supreme court.

Rhode Island is left to her own resources to restore the republic. We have no doubt that she will find leaders worthy of Roger Sherman and Nathanael Greene to lead her in another war of liberation.

THIS DOES LOOK LIKE A WAR.

Whatever diplomacy may pretend as to the affair in Ethiopia, common opinion must regard it as a war. In Rome it may be looked upon as a colonizing experiment, in Paris as a neighborly adventure in the extension of real estate holdings, in London as an unmannerly disturbance on the Anglo-Sudan boundary, and in Berlin and Vienna as a putsch. Elsewhere it may be studied as a possible business opening, but the ordinary person is not to be deceived by euphemisms or evasions.

Ethiopia has a war recognizable by all the familiar signs. There are dumdum bullets and poison gas outrages against women and children. Hospitals have been bombed and Red Cross stations shot up. Captives are in slavery. From Rome we get reports of victories, large maneuvers to advanced posts, the breakdown of enemy resistance, the defection of great hordes of dissatisfied subjects of Haile, the joy of the people to whom Italy comes as a liberator, the success of bombing expeditions, the kindness of the invader to the grateful population of occupied territories, and the general success of the civilizing movement. All resistance is crumbling, the Italian troops are cheerful and happy, they all love Il Duce, and nothing mars a perfect scene.

From Addis Ababa we learn that, although there have been wanton massacres of noncombatants, no military successes of the slightest effect have resulted from the extraordinary efforts of the invading Italians. Recurring rain has bogged down their tanks, their soldiers are fever stricken and wild with thirst, mutiny is everywhere. Mussolini is bawling his generals out, his generals are pleading that they can't do the impossible. Loyal hordes of Ethiopian warriors have ambushes prepared in all the mountains, the atrocities are many, but the thing's already an Italian failure. New men and new armies constantly strengthen the defense. Italian native soldiers from Eritrea and Somaliland are deserting at every opportunity. The Lion of Judah, although grieving for the stricken women and children, is sitting pretty, with the Italian criminals welcome to hospitable graves.

The various pretenses in various countries can deceive no one about this matter. It is a war, no matter what they call it. It has all the publicity and propaganda of a first class meeting of cultured belligerents. It is not real estating, exploring, colonizing, rectification of frontiers, adjustment of differences, spread of civilization, or any other of the phony names which have been given it. It looks, smells, and behaves as a war, and that is what it is. We know it by all the earmarks.

LIGHT SAVING.

"You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you cannot fool all of the people all of the time," has stood the political test for generations, but as applied to hours of daylight it might be supplemented by, "But you can never fool babies and dogs."

Those who possess one or more of the little ones or a canine friend know well that at this season of the year our standard time throws them off schedule. They awake with the daylight, nearly two hours before the rest of the family is astir. It is merely nature asserting itself. Daylight is the great bearer of health and our time standards should be so adjusted as to make the fullest use of it.

Of course, it is true that for a relatively short period before and after the winter solstice both mornings and evenings will be darkened, but that is no fault of time standards. It merely results from the fact that the day has been so shortened as to make the available daylight insufficient under any system. Certain it is that some workers would be inconvenienced, but eastern time would be far more beneficial to those whose daily service is encompassed within what is generally considered a "normal day." Time should be adjusted to their requirements and not to those of night watchmen, milkmen, and employés of morning newspapers.

QUEER PROCEEDINGS.

On July 5 federal agents of the alcohol tax unit found, they charge, five bottles of liquor bearing counterfeit stamps in a south side hotel. On Saturday, three and a half months later, they appeared before Commissioner Walker with the proprietor of the hotel and asked that he be put under a $2,000 bond. The courts were about to close and procuring a bond in time for approval was virtually impossible. When Commissioner Walker learned when the alleged discovery was made he accepted the hotel man's personal bond and told the agents what he thought of their proceedings. They certainly called for emphatic remarks, and, in fact, a further inquiry into the methods of these agents. Why did they wait three and a half months to act and then select a time when the citizen charged, except for Commissioner Walker's good sense, would have been compelled to go to jail over a week-end merely for lack of time to get bail? The proceedings suggest an attempt at a shakedown or persecution. They have a very rank odor, reminiscent of the conditions which brought a sweeping condemnation of prohibition tyranny and corruption. Any vestiges of that régime should be rooted out.

STILL ON THE JOB.

Harry Hopkins, Works Progress administrator, asserts that "the immediate future holds tremendous responsibility for private organizations in rehabilitating individuals and families long denied the privilege of employment and normal existence," and Mrs. Lenroot, chief of the children's bureau, department of labor, wants to "emphasize the fact that the security act will not relieve the state or local community of one jot of the social responsibility it now carries."

In other words, with some twenty million employables dependent on the government for aid, the local and private relief agencies are told they must carry on. The deplorable capitalist, large and small, is not out of the picture. He must meet a rapidly growing burden of taxation, he must contrive to conduct his business in a tangle of new regulations under threat of penalties his lawyers have not yet been able to protect him against, he must meet new competition by government agencies backed by his own money, and he must continue to support all the private philanthropies he has supported in the past. The deplorable capitalist apparently is expected to carry on while the planned society proceeds to abolish him.

Editorial of the Day

MURDER IN ARKANSAS.

[Arkansas Gazette, Little Rock.]

Gov. Futrell is opposed to the easy and complaisant system that had become established in Arkansas of commuting and paroling life sentence prisoners out of the penitentiary in not more than seven years—sometimes in two or three years.

A man is convicted of murder and his punishment fixed at imprisonment for life. The practice has been that his sentence was sooner or later commuted to 21 years. Serving 21 years in the penitentiary looks like severe punishment. But the man who was sentenced for life as punishment for murder became eligible for parole after serving one-third of his commuted term. He was released in not more than seven years, or maybe in much shorter time than that.

It is conceded by Gov. Futrell that in meritorious cases the executive might commute a life sentence—and accept the responsibility for his action. But the governor declares that when a life term is commuted to a definite number of years the prisoner should serve that full time, and power to parole him after he has served a third of the shortened term should be taken away from the parole board.

Leopold and Loeb, who murdered little Bobby Franks in Chicago, received life sentences and separate sentences of 99 years. They must serve at least 20 years of their life sentence and a third (33 years) of their 99 year sentence before they will be eligible, not necessarily to release on parole, but to have their cases considered by the Illinois parole board. When Leopold and Loeb recently completed 11 years of their sentence the chairman of the parole board pointed out that they would have to serve 42 years more before they could apply for parole.

People in Arkansas have no doubt been shocked by gang murders in Chicago. But our own state has an excessive homicide rate. And Little Rock's homicide rate per 100,000 inhabitants is five times Chicago's rate.

A MODERN MAID.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

THERE'S ONE THING the boondogglers haven't thought of yet, and it's one of the grandest ways of spending money there is. Boondogglers are tap dancing in city streets, ballet dancing in the park, making lamp shades, elephants and paper panties out of crêpe paper, counting doorknobs, painting pictures of things the like of which was never seen before in the earth beneath and the sky above and acting Shakespeare's plays and making him turn over in his grave so many times he must be in perpetual motion. But the grandest boondoggling stunt of 'em all the Brain Trusters have never thought of. I'll tell 'em—amateur photography. Small box cameras are very cheap and all the government has to do is to start thousands of amateurs out with box cameras and an unlimited supply of film. An amateur with a box camera will shoot everything in sight and out of sight. Amateurs don't worry much about their pictures; they like to make the camera click. And how they will waste film. There isn't a boondoggling plan now being boondoggled that can run up into big figures so much as this amateur camera thing. And some of the boondoggling photographers may hear about pictorial photography and decide to take that up. That means safety razor blades to scrape the negatives, and camel hair brushes, and gallons of bromoil, pencils, crayons, India ink, barn paint, spraying machines and, well, anyhow, if you boss boondogglers will just try this thing out you can put a hole in that four billion eight hundred million dollars appropriation that you've got to help spend big enough to drive ten trucks through traveling abreast. I know; I'm supporting three cameras right now. I wonder if they'll let me keep 'em in the poorhouse?

CEAD MILE FAILTE!

A thousand—TEN thousand—welcomes,
Thou season of frigid delight,
Thou temps of some sense and some reason
Fair winter, I term thee all right!

Rejoice I that thou art upon us!
Extol I thy virtues beaucoup!
For thou riddest us deftly of sundry
And numerous pests, I love you!

By Zeus, thou art cold but eke honest—
Thy methods are freezing but neat. . . .
With thee in control, vanish asses
Who loll in a car's rumble seat.

No shorts-clad, non-callipygian women,
Enhorror our streets with thee nigh,
I walk upon beaches and never
A swim-suit of rubber I spy.

The windows that front our apartment-court
Are shut—pianissimo rules;
The din of the radio diminished,
No crooner, nor ball-announcer, pules.

So welcome, sweet season I cherish,
Thy icicles silliness splinter;
I revel in shivers to greet thee—
Bienvenu, and you're welcome, dear winter!

IT WAS INDEED QUITE SAD! My hostess met me at the door and said something terrible had happened and that there wouldn't be any dinner. And I had been invited to dinner. "Tush, tush," said I tushingly, "I have lost out——" I was going to say "on better dinners than I ever got here," but it occurred to me that wouldn't sound very nice and so I changed it to "before." And then I told her that after all there were other things in life besides dinners and that one should not take them too seriously. But I wanted to know what the tragedy was, anyhow. Had the cook left, or had somebody stolen the ice box, or was her husband soused again? No, no, no, I was all wet; none of these things had happened, but a great calamity had occurred that made any possibility of a dinner glimmer into nothingness—the cook had lost the can opener.

"NOHANK STATE FISH HATCHERY Has Succeeded in Educating 492,000 Lobsters."—Headline. But can you educate a lobster? I saw a man in elaborate evening dress, top hat, malacca cane, and everything, come into a restaurant the other night and, after the waiter had brought him his food, he ate the peas with his knife. And I saw another richly garbed individual tuck his napkin under his collar and spread it over his shirt front. And another one tried to pass my bus the other day when a car was traveling in the other lane at high speed and right straight at him. All three cars just missed being slammed together in one miscellaneous pile. And not long afterwards I saw a driver shoot past a big, black, screaming "STOP" sign with letters three feet high. No, it can't be done! A lobster cannot be educated or trained or taught anything. A lobster is always a lobster.

THE U. S. A. PAID twenty million dollars for the Philippines. It seemed an awful waste of money at the time, but since the Philippines have taken congress off our hands for a couple of months or so it must be admitted that those far-off islands of the sea were worth all we paid for 'em.

IRRESISTIBLE SLEEP OR NARCOLEPSY.

THERE are many people in the world who need sleep, yet who fail to win the favors of Morpheus. There are others who sleep despite every effort of will. Would that we could unite these tendencies and divide the sum by two!

The condition known as narcolepsy is often popularly associated with epilepsy. The two diseases or symptom complexes are, however, quite different. In fact, there is no known connection between them, although there have been instances of epilepsy and narcolepsy in the same individual.

Narcolepsy is not common, but it is an embarrassing situation when it appears.

* * *

The disease is characterized by a sudden, irresistible desire to sleep. This may be accompanied by extreme muscular weakness, which is the second most prominent symptom. Now and then a patient will state that preceding sleep there is a feeling of tenseness or swelling of the head. Of course, there is no such swelling, but the sensation is present. Sleep may last for a few seconds or a few hours, although it continues as a rule only a few minutes. Sometimes on waking the patient will exclaim, "I've had such a fine rest!" Occasionally certain patients will observe that symptoms of muscular weakness will appear following emotional excitement, laughter, etc. In such an attack the head falls forward, the arms drop to the sides, and the patient may actually fall to the ground. Although consciousness is not lost, the eyes are usually closed and speech is impossible. Nothing quite so clearly typifies narcolepsy as the expression, "dead on one's feet," and victims will sometimes relate that drowsiness overcame them while standing on the street.

A 35 year old clerk describes the symptoms as follows: When conversing with a friend his eyes will close and he will sleep for a few seconds. When he wakens he remembers the last thing that he said and everything that has transpired around him. If an attack comes on while he is walking, unless he is able to find something to lean against, he may fall. Another patient states that his seizures come on after eating, and that he falls asleep several times during each day.

Kinnear Wilson reports the case of a railway repair man who had his first attack when working on a signal tower. He managed to climb down, fell fast asleep, and remained in that state for half an hour. For several years he suffered two sleep periods each day. Extreme muscular weakness became manifest about a year after the onset of symptoms and the patient observed that hearty laughter would bring on a rapid weakening of the muscles of the legs. Another patient, a mason, complained that the symptoms appeared while he was at work. His thoughts would begin to wander and he would then drop off to sleep. In this patient the duration of the attack was from three to four minutes. He has often fallen asleep at meals with his fork halfway to his mouth.

In most cases no cause can be found even on a careful examination. In certain other instances, however, the symptoms have been associated with brain tumors, arteriosclerosis, multiple sclerosis, or encephalitis. Another group of patients exhibited some metabolic or endocrine disorder, and most of these were overweight.

Narcolepsy must be considered as a symptom of some sudden disturbance of the sleep regulating mechanism of the brain, or of changes in the fluid pressure in the ventricles [brain spaces]. No treatment with our present knowledge can be prescribed—other than good hygiene—that will help maintain the functions of the body in a normal state.

Many of us become so drowsy at times [with good reason] that we have difficulty in remaining awake, but by an effort of will we can do so. The victim of narcolepsy cannot resist the sleep impulse.

"CRICK" IN BACK.

Mrs. D. writes: For several years I have had a weakness in my back just below the waist. When I stoop it takes a half minute to straighten up. There is no pain—more of a "crick" in the backbone.

REPLY.

You probably have an arthritis of the spine which progresses very slowly. An X-ray plate will determine the diagnosis. Spinal vertebrae are important bones and we must not permit disease to make headway at their expense.

* * *

SPINAL TUMOR.

L. L. D. writes: A relative, 70 years old, has a diagnosis of tumor of the spinal cord. She has lost the use of her left leg because of pressure. She was told that this tumor could be easily removed by operation. Do you consider this a dangerous procedure?

REPLY.

Surgical removal of a tumor of the spinal cord is of comparatively recent development. In the hands of a competent surgeon the operation is not attended with unusual risk. Some danger attaches to every operation, no matter how simple.

BATHING EYES.

H. S. writes: I have been bathing my eyes every morning with a solution of boric acid. Some friends have advised me not to continue this practice, as it is injurious to the eyes.

REPLY.

STREET CAR-ELEVATED TRANSFERS.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—[Friend of the People.]—In the morning going to work I take a Belmont avenue car at 5200 west and pay ten cents for elevated transfer. Conductor tells us to get off at elevated station at Sheffield avenue. The ticket agent at elevated station states your transfer is no good and you should go to Logan Square station and should have transferred on Milwaukee avenue car. If I get off at Milwaukee avenue, conductor states transfer is no good at that point. At night I can get on at Grand avenue and Franklin on elevated, get a transfer, and go to Belmont and take car. Why can't I go to work the same way, or why do Belmont avenue conductors sell transfers we can't use?

C. R.

Under the order of the Illinois commerce commission 5200 west on Belmont avenue is tributary to the Logan Square station of the elevated railway. A combination transfer obtained at that point is valid at the Logan Square station only and is not valid at the Sheffield avenue station. This passenger was entitled to transfer to the Milwaukee avenue line, providing his transfer was presented before the time limit had expired.

In riding the reverse direction complainant states that the elevated railway is taken to the Belmont avenue station, thence west on Belmont avenue surface line, presumably to the same destination. The Belmont avenue station is tributary to that section of Belmont avenue, Halsted street to Milwaukee avenue. This transfer, therefore, was not valid west of Milwaukee avenue. That a passenger was permitted to ride beyond that point was no doubt due to oversight or misunderstanding on the part of the conductor.

A strict compliance with the order of the Illinois commerce commission would require a passenger covering this trip to use the same lines in both directions—viz.: Logan Square elevated, the Milwaukee avenue and Belmont avenue surface lines.

JEFFREY A. O'CONNOR,

JOINT TENANCY PROPERTY.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Deed to real estate improved by an apartment building, which is in receivership, is made out jointly in the name of husband and wife. The husband left no will at the time of death. Does the widow have a clear title to this property? 2. If not, what should be done in order that her claim be protected? 3. Should property go through Probate court? 4. Should widow keep deed in her possession?

1. Yes.
2. See 1.
3. Not necessary as to the joint tenancy property.
4. Possession of the deed is unimportant after it has been recorded.

TEMPORARY REPAIRS MADE.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—[Friend of the People.]—Due to a water pipe leakage the street directly in front of our property has been torn open. This affords an unsightly appearance as well as a hazard to the motorist. It has remained thus for nearly eight months. The ground has now settled sufficiently to allow the repair of this street, but no steps have been taken in that direction as yet. I should like to know in what way I can bring some attention to this matter.

E. Z.

The superintendent of the Thirteenth ward made temporary repairs and will continue to do so until permanent repairs are made. The street restoration forces have been requested to make permanent repairs at said locations.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY HAROLD TATAM.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES.—The unsettled political situation in Argentina has not been improved by recent federal intervention in some of the autonomous provincial governments, or by the failure of the minister of finance to introduce a balanced budget, or, indeed, any budget at all.

Argentine newspapers have been unusually outspoken in their condemnation of the administration's lapses from democratic principles, and especially of the ruling party's overriding of the electoral laws of the country which, it is charged, has no other object than that of placing formidable obstacles in the path of the radical opposition.

In fact, some see little to choose between the methods of the Yrigoyenist régime which led to the revolution of 1930 and those employed by the present government. They interpret the "persecution" of the radical party, which is estimated to embrace 70 per cent of the population, as a confession of weakness and see in it a source of certain trouble in the not distant future unless a halt is called to such methods.

"There can be only one end to such a policy, for it is common knowledge that opposition to the public will ends in one way and one way only," says the Buenos Aires Herald. "Most of us will recall the days which preceded the overthrow of the Yrigoyen administration. Waste was rampant, unsound finance dominated the country, political corruption was the order of the day, while provincial rights were overriden by federal intervention.

"But what of the government of today? Is it not a fact that the ruling party has been enabled to outrage the electoral freedom of the citizens resident in the province of Buenos Aires? Is it not also true that the country has stepped back a quarter of a century and overridden the reformed electoral laws passed under the ægies of President Roque Saenz Peña?

"When Yrigoyen and his associates were swept aside in 1930, the provisional minister of finance, Dr. Perez, declared that the country's budget ought not to exceed 650 million pesos—exactly the amount which the Association of Bondholders estimated to be the limit of the nation's taxable capacity. Today that expenditure has risen to around one billion pesos—a staggering figure worthy of the worst essays of the Yrigoyen régime. In other words, the political dictatorship is an established fact. The financial dictatorship is accepted by congress without question. And the majority of the population are opposed to both.

"Will the nation indefinitly permit a small group of individuals to increase expenditure and taxation without any real opportunity for discussion? Will it permit the deprivation of long established franchise rights and offer no word of protest? There can be only one end to such a situation."

Many observers look upon the postponement of the November general election until next March as an electioneering dodge designed to gain time in which to find means to insure victory for the minority, with the inevitable result that Gen. Justo's administration is losing out in the estimation of the people who hailed its advent to power with general satisfaction.

ITALY DEFENDED.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Permit me to reply to Will Newcomb's inquiry in today's issue regarding Italy's "betrayal" of Germany in the world war. To start with, his analogy is absurd, as Benedict Arnold had actually fought with American troops before his treachery, which was due to personal pique and thwarted ambition. Italy had taken no part in the world war, being entirely dependent on Britain for her coal supplies. The threat to cut off those supplies, plus the presence of British warships stripped for action off Italy's main seaports, forced Italy into a war she had no desire to enter.

Mussolini's desire has been to make Italy independent of outside fuel supplies, so that no nation, however strong, could ever again force Italy into offensive alliance in a war not of her own making and in which her interests were not at stake. If Ethiopia, Britain and France abide by the agreement of 1906, by which Italy was accorded prior rights in economic development of Ethiopia, Italy would have oil supplies to make her independent of outside interference. France is willing to prove her good faith, but "perfide Albion" uses Haile Selassie as her puppet so as to keep Italy dependent on Britain's coal. When the smoke blows over, Haile will find himself out on a limb, Britain having lost interest in him by then.

By the way, yesterday's reproduction of a British cartoon depicting Mussolini as an organ grinder's monkey is the nadir in journalistic indecency. Let us remember that Mussolini halted sovietism at the zenith of its menace, when Red influence in England itself was the primary threat to the empire.

WIDEAWAKE NEUTRAL.

MR. BORAH'S AGE.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Mr. Borah may be an able man and his admiriers may think the presidency should be his reward for past services. But think of his age! Counting Grover Cleveland twice, we have had 32 Presidents. Taken at the time of their inaugurations their average age was 54 4-5 years. The average age of the first 16 was 57½ years and that of the last 16 was 52⅛ years. The oldest President, William Henry Harrison, was 68. Only five were over 60 at the time of their inauguration and five were less than 50. The other 22 were between 50 and 60.

James Buchanan was inaugurated 78 years ago and he was the last one that came into office when over 60.

There are many executives, doctors and lawyers who keep in harness for a few hours each day when long past three score and ten, but even the government itself demands that its employés retire before that age. If Mr. Borah were elected he would be four years older than our oldest President, William Henry Harrison, who died in office.

Why not exercise common sense and consider the question of stamina and physical ability instead of pinning faith on a man born in 1865?

LONSDALE GREEN.

RETOUCHED.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Why is it that when you print in your newspaper pictures of men up for trial your photographic department does such an excellent retouching job? A photograph of this fellow Zenge in yesterday morning's paper was retouched so much that he looked as handsome as Clark Gable. It was plain to be seen that Zenge's mouth was touched up to make it look like he had applied lip stick to form a cupid's bow. I think that criminals should have their pictures inserted in the papers as is and not as might or could be.

CURIOUS.

WOODED ISLAND.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—A TRIBUNE contributor makes a plea for the retention of Jackson park's Wooded Island in its present state. I should like to add my plea to hers. Some sixteen years ago, as a homesick youth, I first saw Jackson park and its beauty made an indelible impression upon me. There was, particularly, a witchery about Wooded Island with its massive trees, quiet walks and enchanting arched bridges that seemed to quiet all the pangs of nostalgia.

When I visited the spot this summer I was disgusted at the ugly barrier thrown across one of the lagoons, saddened at the rose garden where roses were being riddled by insects while horsetail weeds were being very carefully cultivated, repelled at the gaudy red paint on the Japanese buildings. Yet the island still remains as one of the too few restful retreats in a city gone mad about radios and motor cars. The new Japanese gardens would be beautiful in a private estate, but are utterly impractical in a public park where thoughtless free souls bring their equally uninhibited children to tread heavily on the flowers and gayly scatter banana skins and candy wrappers in the placid pools.

CLARENCE E. ALLEN.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—As one who sketches, may I say that the erection of the wonderful reproduction of the Chinese temple, the one building at our late lamented Fair that should be preserved, will only make Wooded Island the more attractive to the general public and the artists.

ELLIS PRENTICE COLE.

ANOTHER ANGLOPHILE.

Waukegan, Ill., Oct. 18.—It burns me up the way misinformed and malicious people often use this column to spread hate and misunderstanding. To be specific, there is in today's paper a harangue entitled "British Propaganda," written by a Miss Sartori. In this emotional denunciation the writer attempts to cast discredit and shame upon Englishmen. Forgetting the greater, finer, and infinitly more important aims of the British empire, she has deliberately played up the few inconsistencies and errors common to all governments.

She should learn that people who live in glass houses do not throw stones. She intimates that there is a feeling of hate between the two divisions of the greatest race of men in the world. On the contrary, nothing is closer to the heart of thoughtful Englishmen than the desire to coöperate more and more with the great republic—our nation which stands for greater love and understanding among the peoples of the earth. If Miss Sartori is a good American she will stop pulling the tail of our friend the lion, and will adopt the principles for which her country stands.

4 FEARED DEAD IN CUBAN AREA OF HURRICANE

Jamaica's Toll Placed at 3; Crops Damaged.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Eastern Cuba apparently had weathered the fury of a Caribbean hurricane tonight with a death toll of from one to four, 29 persons reported injured and with less property damage than had been anticipated.

One woman was killed here, buildings were unroofed, and streets were cluttered with débris. A report from Caimanera said three persons were drowned there.

Reports over restored communication lines failed to show major damage in other eastern Cuba towns, however, and the Belen observatory at Havana said the storm had reached a virtual standstill in Oriente province, north northwest of Santiago.

Bahamas in Path.

The Bahama Islands, several hundred miles east of Florida, were believed to be in the storm's path.

Damage of only negligible character was reported from Guantanamo, at first believed hard hit. Several coastal Cuban towns had been evacuated before the blow and it was believed this had prevented many casualties.

Rivers were out of their banks in the Guantanamo area, but the commandant of the United States naval station there said he had heard of no casualties and the 60 mile wind did no material damage.

Santiago and surrounding towns were in darkness tonight and troops guarded banks and patroled the streets. Military authorities enforced an 8 o'clock curfew.

3 Drown in Jamaica.

Damage in Jamaica was estimated at $2,500,000, and three deaths by drowning were reported.

Banana plantations on the eastern end of the island were devastated, bridges were wrecked and many houses still were flooded tonight, with rescue parties removing inhabitants over blocked roads.

Several banana lighters were reported sunk at Port Morant and members of a marooned settlement in the Portland district were rescued from their flooded homes by boats.

BEGINS HEARING OF UNIVERSITY BEQUEST SUIT

Hearing on a suit to compel trustees of the estate of James Fentress to turn over $45,658 to the Southwestern university, Memphis, Tenn., as provided in his will, was begun yesterday before Circuit Judge Klarkowski. Mr. Fentress, head of the legal staf of the Illinois Central railroad, died in 1903.

His will provided that his estate be left in trust, the income to be paid to his widow, Mrs. Mary Fentress. At her death, one-tenth of the estate was to go to the university for "the education of young men for the ministry." The remainder of the estate was to be divided among three sons and three daughters who were named trustees.

The suit charges that since the death of Mrs. Fentress in 1933, the trustees have refused to pay the bequest to the school on the grounds that the university closed its divinity school in 1917 and is no longer entitled to the money. Dr. Charles E. Diehl, president of the school, testified yesterday that although the divinity school was closed for lack of students, the university continued its pre-ministerial training.

Approve Offer of Chapel for Hospital Grounds

The city council committee on finance yesterday recommended approval of the construction of a $50,000 Roman Catholic chapel on the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium grounds at Pulaski road and Peterson avenue with funds supplied by F. J. Lewis, retired Chicago capitalist, as a memorial to his first wife, who died several years ago. The committee was informed that Mr. Lewis stood ready to put up a $50,000 bond guaranteeing completion of the chapel and that he would spend $100,000 if necessary.

KANSAS YOUTH WINS DISTINCTION AS BEST 'FARM BOY' OF 1935

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 22.—(AP)—A youngster who made 16 pigs grow into $1,916 is tops among the nation's farm boys.

He is Paul Leck of Washington county, Kas., who was announced tonight as the 1935 Star Farmer of America. Judges picked him after studying records of farm youths the nation over.

The title, conferred annually in a contest sponsored by a Kansas City newspaper, carries a $500 cash prize.

Future Farmers of America today conferred the organization's highest honor—the decree of American farmer—on 69 farm boys from 36 states. The awards were announced during the F. F. A. national convention held here in connection with the American royal livestock show. The 69 boys voted the honor were selected from 100,000 future farmers in the nation.

GIRL DISCHARGED FROM HOSPITAL MOTHER FEARED

New York, Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Margaret Kereston, 15, the girl whose mother didn't like hospitals, so much so that it required the combined persuasions of a doctor, a police chief and a priest to get the mother to consent to an operation for acute appendicitis, today left General hospital and returned to her home at Park Amboy, N. J.

"It wasn't as bad as I thought it would be," said Margaret, "but still I'm awfully glad to get out of the hospital, and I don't want to come back again if I can help it." She was still weak, though convalescent from the operation for a ruptured appendix.

"I wasn't the one who kept Margaret from the hospital," said the mother; "it was Margaret herself. She is my baby. I am so glad she is well again."

Margaret said she was anxious to see and thank the Rev. L. J. Patrick, assistant pastor of Holy Trinity Roman Catholic church, and Chief of Police Joseph Gutowski for having persuaded her and her mother to permit the operation, without which she would have died, according to the doctors.

FARM PAPER IS TURNED OVER TO READERS TO RUN

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 22.—(AP)—The American Agriculturist, oldest farm journal in America, was formally turned over to its readers today to be published under their direction, with all profits earmarked for agricultural and home economics research work.

The transfer was effected, the publication announced, through the setting up of the American Agricultural Research Foundation, Inc., headed by a board of seven trustees.

Frank E. Gannett, Rochester publisher who recently announced formation of the Gannett Newspaper Foundation to acquire control of his newspapers after his death, is chairman of the board of the American Agriculturist.

Under the new arrangement all common stock in American Agriculturist, Inc., is being turned over to the foundation by Mr. Gannett and other stockholders.

The editor, advertising manager, and circulation manager of the paper will be directors ex-officio of the foundation, and beginning at the annual meeting next year readers of the paper annually will elect a director for a three year term.

AUTO IS CRUSHED UNDER CABOOSE; DRIVER UNHURT

Four Fire Companies Free Him from Wreckage.

Pinned beneath his wrecked automobile and a freight caboose on the Illinois Central tracks at 33d street and Cicero avenue, Cicero, Conrad Ropinske, 43 years old, 2913 North Cicero avenue, was extricated last night after his rescuers had worked for two hours. He suffered only a few scratches and his chief complaint was that he was cold.

Ropinske, who is a motion picture operator at the Marquette theater, 3157 West 63d street, was driving north in Cicero avenue at 6:15 last night when his car was struck by the train, consisting of a locomotive, box car and caboose, which was being backed west across Cicero avenue. The automobile was wedged beneath the rear of the caboose and was dragged 150 feet.

While a crowd gathered, four Cicero fire companies worked to free Ropinske. It was at first believed that he was dead beneath his car but the rescuers soon were able to see and talk to him. He assured them he was uninjured.

DISCOVER BOMB PLOT BY KANSAS INSANE CONVICTS

Lansing, Kas., Oct. 22.—(AP)—A plot of dangerous criminals to murder a guard and blast their way to freedom was frustrated today at Kansas State penitentiary.

The plot, if executed, would have opened a possible exit for 77 inmates in the criminal insane ward—40 of them convicted murderers adjudged insane.

Deputy Warden E. M. Stubblefield said that acting on a "tip" officials found two pistols fashioned from gas pipe, three bombs with fuses attached, and a quantity of explosive material—manufactured ingeniously from substances available in the prison. Stubblefield said the plan was to blast a hole in the wall.

Two suspected plotters were placed in solitary confinement.

Longshoremen's Strike Truce Called; Two Dead

Lake Charles, La., Oct. 22.—(AP)—A three day truce was reported called late tonight on the embattled Lake Charles water front, where fighting between International Longshoremen's association strikers and guards today left two dead and eight wounded. W. R. Mayor, president of the I. L. A. here, said Gov. O. K. Allen had ordered the port closed for three days in an attempt to settle the difficulty amicably. He said 75 special officers protecting non-I. L. A. workers would quit the docks early tomorrow and that picketing would be halted.

Troops Reported Called.

Beaumont, Tex., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Two companies of National Guardsmen were reported here to have been mobilized at Port Arthur tonight awaiting developments in the longshoremen's strike. In the meantime all available police reserves here were guarding the municipal docks as local authorities received word from Houston that seventy-five carloads of strikers were en route here to back up Beaumont striking longshoremen.

SCHEDULE MORE CRUISES IN SPITE OF AFRICAN WAR

Some Lines Will Dodge Suez Canal.

BY FREDERIC BABCOCK.

Thirty-four fall and winter cruises were announced this week by the steamship lines. These are in addition to those announced earlier in the season, and they embrace everything from short trips to the Caribbean to lengthy ones around the world. They indicate that, although the trouble between Italy and Ethiopia has caused some revision of itineraries, there will be no curtailing of the travel industry on account of the war.

Cunard-White Star headed the list with nineteen cruises. There will be seven to the West Indies and South America on the Georgic and Britannic, two to Nassau and Bermuda on the same ships, seven to Nassau on the Carinthia, a New Year's eve trip to Nassau on the Majestic, a 40 day tour of the Mediterranean, Egypt, and the Holy Land on the Aquitania, and a four and a half months' tour around the world on the Franconia.

Holiday Cruise to Havana.

Havana returns this season to the Cunard's West Indies itineraries, as it does to those of most of the other lines operating in the Caribbean. The opening one will leave New York Dec. 21 for a jaunt over the holidays. The Aquitania will begin its cruise Feb. 20, and the Franconia will leave Jan. 7. The latter ship will avoid the Mediterranean, going instead by way of South America and South Africa.

In coöperation with the National tours, the Holland-America line will send the Volendam to Havana for an eight day journey starting next Sunday, and in November will send it on two 14 day trips to South America and the West Indies. Its Oct. 12 cruise was a complete sellout, and the three additional trips were arranged to take care of the travelers disappointed at that time. The Holland-America line also will place its Statendam in the South America-West Indies service for three cruises in December and January.

A series of three triangle journeys to Bermuda and Nassau began yesterday aboard the Queen of Bermuda of the Furness line. The second will leave next Tuesday, and the third on Nov. 7. Each one lasts seven days, with one day each in the islands visited.

Will Use Suez Canal.

In celebration of its golden jubilee, the Nippon Yusen Kaisha line is to inaugurate a world cruise Nov. 11 aboard the Tatsuta Maru. The schedule calls for stops in Japan, China, India, and the Mediterranean countries. Unlike some of the other lines, which have decided to steer clear of the seat of war, the N. Y. K. will carry its tourists through the Suez canal and to Naples, the scene of departure of many of the Italian transport ships.

Another world tour that will take in the war zone—if the war is still on by that time—will be directed by J. Shannon White, in combination with the Dollar Steamship lines, the American Mail line, and the American Express company. It is scheduled to leave San Francisco Nov. 30, and to take in Hawaii, Japan, China, the Philippines, the Dutch East Indies, India, and the Mediterranean. Still another will be conducted by Deane H. Dickason and will depart from San Francisco aboard the Malolo Feb. 28. The Canadian Pacific Empress of Japan, the Empress of Britain, and other liners will be used in the course of the journey.

A "cruise within a cruise" is sponsored by Thomas Cook & Son. Beginning in Vancouver Nov. 30, it will include Honolulu, Japan, Shanghai, Hongkong, and Canton before proceeding to Manila, where the passengers will leave the Empress of Japan for the Mayon. On the smaller steamer they will tour the Philippines, several of the south sea islands, and Australia. The return to Vancouver is set for March 20 on the Aorangi.

Four Month Pacific Tour.

The Monterey of the Matson line will set sail from San Francisco Jan. 7 on the first leg of a trip around the Pacific. It is to be a leisurely affair of four months, with five Pacific and far eastern steamship lines coöperating.

Originally scheduled for a Mediterranean cruise, the North German Lloyd's Columbus will sail from New York Feb. 11 for a 45 day trip around South America. There are numerous trips to South America, but few around it. The Columbus is said to be the largest and fastest liner ever to make such a tour.

When the Anchor line's Caledonia leaves New York Dec. 14 for Londonderry, Belfast, and Glasgow it will carry many passengers from Chicago and the middle west, all bent on spending the holidays with friends and relatives in the old country. The journey is planned especially for those of Scotch and Irish descent. Ireland is to be reached Dec. 22 and Scotland Dec. 23. The Laconia of the Cunard-White Star line will make a similar trip, leaving New York Dec. 6, calling at Galway, and arriving at Glasgow Dec. 15.

Good Season for Egypt.

That the conflict in Ethiopia is not diverting travelers from other African lands is shown by the fact Egypt is enjoying one of its best autumn seasons. The New York office of the Tourist Development association of Egypt sets forth that the number of inquiries received there this month was 40 per cent greater than in October of last year, and that in the last three years Egyptian visas on American passports have increased more than 350 per cent. In travel time, it is pointed out, Egypt is farther from Ethiopia than New York is from Alaska or London.

The Italian line has let it be known that, despite President Roosevelt's warning that American citizens traveling on the Italian ships will do so at their own risk, there will be no change in its sailing schedules for the fall and winter.

When the Normandie, flagship of the French line, reached New York Monday it completed its last westbound trip of the year. It is to be laid up for the winter, but will resume its sailings early in March.

A series of all expense trips to the West Indies and Central and South America was announced yesterday by the United Fruit company. There are to be three points of embarkation—New Orleans, New York, and Philadelphia—and the cruises will vary from eight days to nineteen.

I have been told that in Bermuda there is a well that brings luck to bachelors. What can you tell me about it? E. J.

The well, 300 years old, is situated near Fort Catherine, on the Island of St. Georges. It is popularly believed that any bachelor who drinks even a thimbleful of its water will be married within a year. Whether or not that is good luck is, of course, a matter of opinion.

What and where is Billingsgate? T. F.

Once the principal port of Roman London, Billingsgate is now dominated by a great fish market. In the old days the district was famous for the toughness of the language used there, but today the visitor may walk through it without hearing even a stray "damn."

What are the comparative heights of the locks in the Welland canal and the Panama canal? C. J. R.

The Welland canal lowers ships 326 feet in the various locks between Lake Erie and Lake Ontario. Gatun lake, the summit in the Panama canal, is only 85 feet above sea level.

When we visit Rio de Janeiro next January, what kind of weather may we expect there? D. M.

Midwinter in Chicago is midsummer in Rio.

How old is Havana? L. S.

It was founded by Diego Velasquez in 1515.

Is this a good time to visit southern Indiana? O. B.

Many Chicagoans consider it the ideal time. The foliage has its most brilliant hues at this season.

Policemen Put 25c in Slot, Get $1.20, Arrest Owner

Sergt. Gilbert Murray of the Central police inserted a nickel in a pin ball machine in Anne's Cocktail Lounge, 55 East Congress street, and won 20 cents yesterday. Incredulous, Policeman Charles Clark inserted 20 cents and won a dollar. Then the two arrested Damian Kilavos, 2014 Indiana avenue, the bartender, on a charge of operating a gambling device.

French Bride of Wartime Divorces Ex-Capt. Krieger

JAPANESE FORCE QUELLS RIOTERS IN CHINESE CITY

Farmers Clamor for Tax Relief.

PEIPING, China, Oct. 22.—(AP)—A detachment of Japanese gendarmes, hurriedly dispatched from here, reported today that order has been restored in Hsiang-Ho, where rioting broke out yesterday in a mob besieging the government office for tax relief.

Although the hostilities are ended, reports said more than 100 farmers still are encamped outside the city gates demanding the removal of the land tax, the increase of which is the source of the dispute.

Disturbances similar to the Hsiang-Ho uprising are feared in the villages of Lanchiying and Yushuhou, just inside the Great Wall, where a mob of peasants armed with knives and clubs destroyed the tax bureau and forced the tax collectors to flee.

Planned General Uprising.

Chinese advices from the trouble zone said the revolt was instigated by Pai Chien-wu, who led an unsuccessful attack on Peiping three months ago. Followers of Pai, arrested at Tsunhua, allegedly have confessed their leader planned a general uprising in the demilitarized zone on Oct. 25.

Japanese officials were silent, but in other Japanese quarters it was insisted the uprising is only the beginning of a general self-government movement as a protest against oppressive taxation.

Martial law still prevails. The American board of missions believes the mission's Tungchow school was unaffected by the trouble.

Accept "Proposals."

SHANGHAI, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Japanese newspapers in Shanghai said today Chinese leaders have decided to accept a group of Japanese "proposals," including one for a country-wide suppression of anti-Japanese activities.

Other proposals were listed as collaboration in the economic and administrative development of North China and coöperation between Japan and China to prevent sovietization of North China and Inner Mongolia.

The Chinese leaders, including Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, were said to have refused a plan for immediate recognition of Manchukuo.

Missionaries Missing.

NANKING, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Apprehension was expressed today by friends of American and British missionaries who fled Lanchow, Kansu province, Oct. 8, before an invasion of Chinese communists.

No word has been heard from the missionaries since they boarded inflated goatskin rafts to travel by the perilous Yellow river to Paotow, thence to Peiping. They faced dangers of bandit attacks and a river freezeup.

Americans in the party include Mr. and Mrs. Francis Derk, their three children, and Ruth Lindstron of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Snyder, Goshen, Ind.; Anna Haupberg, Mitchell, S. D., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Notson, Heppner, Ore.

Hunt American Hunter Lost in Canadian Wilds

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Oct. 22.—(AP)—John Hanousek, one of a party of five big game hunters from Antigo, Wis., was lost today in the bush in the Hogarth district, 88 miles east of here. A large searching party, including several guides familiar with the Nipigon territory and led by provincial Constable John Nixon, is scouring the bush. Hanousek disappeared from the hunters' camp Sunday morning. He left with the intention of ascending a nearby rock ledge.

BISHOP SAYS JAPAN IS NOT A THREAT TO U. S. OR TO PEACE

BISHOP BINSTEAD.

The orient is no threat to world peace and Japan's imperial problems will never seriously affect the United States, according to the Rt. Rev. Norman Binstead, Episcopalian bishop of Tokio, who spoke last night in the Sherman hotel before the Church Club of Chicago. Bishop Binstead is in this country to raise funds to complete St. Luke's international medical center in Tokio. He declared Japan would stand beside the United States in its attitude toward the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, and would never reënter the league of nations. Regarding the Philippines, Bishop Binstead said their independence would not be endangered since Japan is not interested in expanding her empire in that direction. Her entrance into Manchuria, said the bishop, was justified to protect her industrial interests.

HERO OFFICER OF SOVIET ARMY TO DIE FOR TREASON

SEVASTOPOL, U. S. S. R., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Serge Muliarenok, an officer and hero of the Red army, was sentenced to death today for treason which led to the execution of ten communist leaders fifteen years ago.

Muliarenok, convicted in the Crimean Supreme court, gained the confidence of the Bolshevists after the defeat of the Gen. Wrangel forces, which he is alleged to have served. He joined the communist party and won the Red banner decoration for heroism in battle. In recent years he has occupied important posts in the Crimean military command.

The court found that it was on the strength of information supplied to them by Muliarenok that the White Russians apprehended ten members of the military section of the Sevastopol Bolshevist organization and executed them in 1920. Muliarenok insisted he gave the information to the Whites only after his capture and as a ruse to gain an opportunity to escape and rejoin the Red forces.

16 Police Share in $750 for Breaking Up Gang

Sixteen policemen of the state's attorney's staf were given $750 in rewards yesterday for their work in breaking up the gang of "golf club" bandits which recently preyed on country clubs in the Chicago area. Sharing the rewards were Lieut. Charles Egan, Sergt. Walter McGloon, and Policemen Albert Bruns, Harold Engler, Joseph Healey, Patrick McNamara, Charles Prybl, Stephen Tyberski, James Shields, John O'Keefe, Frank West, Micholas Hrdalo, George Wanland, Edward Griffin, Patrick McInerney, and Nicholas Disteldorf.

Dies of Burns After Using Turpentine to Start Fire

DANISH ELECTION SEEN VICTORY FOR PARTY IN POWER

Farmers' Demands for Devaluation Lose.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Incomplete results from today's election of a new lower house in parliament indicated that the government won additional support.

Challenge to Extremists.

When Premier R. A. M. Stauning dissolved the lower house, forcing the election, it was considered a direct challenge to farmer extremists who have demanded further devaluation of the krone.

The present government group holds 76 seats in the lower house, divided between 62 Socialists and 14 radical lefts. In the opposition seating of 62 members the Conservatives hold 27 votes and the Peasant's left party 35. The remaining 11 seats are divided between unimportant parties.

Sought to Build Exports.

The farmer extremists insisted on devaluation of the krone to 30 to the pound [about 16 cents per krone], compared with 22.40 krone to the pound at present, in order to receive more in krone for their export to Great Britain.

Government parties, seeking new trade treaties and trying to foster domestic industry as compensation for blocked export markets in agriculture, are vigorously opposed to further devaluation, which they say would hamper imports of raw material.

GARROTE USED IN FIFTH EXECUTION BY SPAIN'S CODE

GRANADA, Spain, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Manuel Vargas, the fifth man to be executed in Spain since reëstablishment of the death penalty in 1933, died today by this country's unique method of execution—garroting. He was a convicted slayer. Vargas was married yesterday in the prison chapel to make his child legitimate.

He heard early morning mass and received absolution from a Jesuit priest. When the hour arrived for application of the iron collar and tightening of the screws which would throttle him, Vargas walked to his death quietly. Only three minutes elapsed from the time he took his seat in the garrrote until the body was removed.

Though there had been threats of a general strike in protest against the execution, none materialized.

WRIST SLASHES PROVE FATAL.

George Smith, 56 years old, 1228 South Wabash avenue, died in the County hospital yesterday of complications that developed after he slashed his wrists in a suicide attempt on Sept. 26.

MORE FEDERAL AID PROMISED TO CRUSH REVOLT IN MEXICO

HERMOSILLO, Mexico, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Indications that northern Sonora's political troubles might not yet be settled was seen today in the return of Gov. Ramon Ramos from Mexico City with the announcement President Cardenas had promised military aid to crush the incipient rebel movement.

It was announced federal troops already had moved into several towns and restored to authority local officers recently ousted by rebel raiders.

Ramos, whose inauguration several months ago was met with a demonstration of protest, said he is in "complete accord" with the federal government and has no intention of resigning. During Ramos' absence 15 or 20 mayors said to be his supporters were swept from office. At least four were slain when they refused to resign. Most of the others fled to Hermosillo.

BRITAIN LEADS IN RECOVERY, SELFRIDGE SAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ripon, Wis., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Harry Gordon Selfridge, world known London merchant, was back today to receive honors at his birthplace, a mid-Wisconsin city in which he lived with his mother until he was between 1 and 2 years old. He came to receive an honor from Ripon college, the degree of doctor of humane letters. He was given a dinner at the Grandview hotel and recently the city council had renamed the city's public park, Selfridge park.

England has surpassed the United States in the solidity of its economic recovery, the London merchant told the reception committee and interviewers who were at his hands most all day. His opinions were drawn from many visits with businessmen in this country, big business men in the big cities, and smaller merchants on occasions like today when he gathered information as eagerly as he willingly gave it.

Gulps Dope to Conceal It from U. S. Agents; Dies

Louis De Bartello, 23 years old, 669 North Clark street, a former convict, died in the County hospital yesterday from the effect of dope he swallowed Monday night in order to dispose of it just before federal narcotic agents arrested him as a dope peddler.

Miss Grace Duncan, 32 years old, 542 North Clark street, arrested with De Bartello, told police that on Sept. 26 her companion similarly foiled federal agents by swallowing his supply of heroin as the operatives were about to arrest him.

Cablegrams were sent to 14 foreign countries and dominions yesterday by Herbert McComb Moore, president of Lake Forest college, to announce internationally the William Bross Foundation's $15,000 prize to be awarded in 1940 for the best manuscript showing the relation between any branch of knowledge and the Christian religion and confirming the Christian faith. Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, Pope Pius XI, and European government heads were among those addressed. The foundation was established at Lake Forest college in 1879. The award in 1940 will mark the 50th anniversary of Bross' death, the philanthropist having ordered that such a premium be given every 50 years.

HITLER MAKING REICH 'BARREN,' SAYS AL SMITH

Pleads That Aid Be Given German Refugees.

New York, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Prefacing his remarks with the declaration that "Germany is becoming a barren nation, intellectually, culturally, and scientifically, under Hitler," former Gov. Alfred E. Smith tonight appealed for financial aid for non-Aryan Christian and political refugees from Germany.

He was joined in his plea by Dr. Albert Einstein, the scientist, at a dinner held under the joint auspices of the American Christian committee for German refugees and the emergency committee in aid of political refugees from Naziism.

"I am informed that at this very moment, 2,500 German refugees are on the verge of starvation," the former New York governor said. "Centers now operating and serving these refugees in Europe must be supplied quickly with money. They need aid, or will be forced to discontinue their work."

Persecution Fostered by Myth.

Dr. Einstein said that German Fascism is directed most "against my Jewish brothers."

"The reason given is to purify the Aryan race in Germany," he continued. "As a matter of fact, no such Aryan race exists, and the myth has been invented solely to motive at the persecution and robbery of the Jews."

"Most people do not realize that the problem of Christian refugees from Germany is just as serious as that of the Jewish refugees," Smith said in his appeal. "There are fully one million people in Germany who fall into the classifications of non-Aryan, and whom the Nazi régime is determined to crush along with the five hundred thousand Jews.

Aim to Exile All Liberals.

"In connection with racial persecution, Naziism is attempting to exile from Germany the great intellectual and political leaders of liberal thought. Men like Albert Einstein, even if he were not a Jew, would be persecuted for his liberal thinking and his tolerance.

"These conditions are in no way a criticism of the German people, for they are helpless to enter any form of protest.

"In a report on conditions in Germany, we read the following:

"'Bitterness against the Nazi régime has become noticeable among all classes. The army remains the dominating factor, and the army is interested only in more time to complete the rearmament program which will make Germany the controlling force on the continent. Debt is mounting, public works are hampered, and only armament industries are going at full blast. That kind of government cannot last, because the army will eat up the sustenance required for the family and in a land of plenty the wolf of famine will be stalking on the doormat.'"

REPORTS NAZI BISHOP ASKED TO RESIGN POST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 22.—The Rev. Martin Niemoeller, one-time submarine commander and leader of the Confessional pastors who are fighting Nazi control of the Protestant church in Germany, addressed his followers today at Dahlem, a Berlin suburb.

He expressed hope that the church council appointed by Nazi Church Minister Hans Kerrl would be short lived and urged his followers to remain true to the ideal of a free creed. He also voiced misgivings over the manifesto issued by Kerrl's church council, which expressed its faith in the slogan, "Blood, Race and Soil" and failed to disassociate itself from the German Christians, whom many accuse of being more interested in race than religion.

Niemoeller said Kerrl had written a letter to National Bishop Ludwig Mueller suggesting that the latter resign. Mueller replied in a six page letter that he felt that he still had the confidence of Reichsfuehrer Hitler and that, therefore, he refused to resign.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Lieut. Gen. Hunter K. Liggett, commander of the first American army corps to enter the fighting lines during the world war, was critically ill here tonight. Physicians said they feared he might not survive.

Gen. Liggett, now retired from the army, entered Letterman General hospital at the Presidio on Sept. 17. It was said he has been growing steadily weaker from infirmities of old age and other ailments. He is 78 years old.

During the war Gen. Liggett had charge of the sector in the Soissons-Chateau Thierry salient. Under his leadership the First corps maintained a continuous advance for 23 days, beginning July 18, 1918, and drove the enemy back from the Marne.

Successive victories of his forces brought his name into prominent mention everywhere in France and there was little surprise when Gen. Pershing placed him in charge of the First American Army. This elevation carried the responsibility of commanding 250,000 men in battle.

Gen. Liggett was born at Reading, Pa., on March 21, 1857. Within the year he graduated from the United States Military academy in 1879 at the age of 23, he participated in actual battle. He led a platoon of the 5th infantry against hostile Sioux Indians in Montana and was victorious despite his youth and lack of experience as an Indian fighter.

FRENCH CITIZEN SENTENCED FOR SLUR ON HITLER

METZ, France, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Emile Jolas, a French merchant of Stiring-Wendel, France, was reported today to be in jail at Lerchesflur, near Saarbrücken, on a charge of insulting Reichsfuehrer Hitler. French authorities' efforts to have him released have been futile.

Jolas, who is understood to have brothers in Louisville, Ky., and Chicago, was said to have been sentenced to eighteen months in jail for making a remark about Hitler in a discussion with a Saarlander while standing near the frontier.

The report had it that the Saarlander called the Nazi police, who crossed the frontier and seized Jolas.

PROMINENT NAZI IS FOUND DEAD; SUICIDE HINTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAMBURG, Germany, Oct. 22.—Max Oboussier, who became director of the Hamburg-American line after the Nazis assumed control of Germany, died yesterday. Reports circulated in Hamburg say he committed suicide in his villa in the suburb of Reinbek. The company said it understands that he died of a stroke. Oboussier's relatives said they were not allowed to speak of the cause of his death.

Oboussier, who was 47 years of age and a member of the Nazi party of long standing, had several disagreements with his party friends and relinquished his post as director of the ship line at the end of 1934.

It was rumored in Hamburg that the disagreements were of such a serious nature that Oboussier was taken prisoner last year, but was promptly released. Relatives refused to speak on this subject.

Mrs. Bott and Daughter, Suicides, Leave $19,894

The estate of Mrs. Alice King Bott, who drowned herself in Lake Michigan on June 13, 1934, in a suicide pact with her daughter Margaret, yesterday paid a tax of $295 to the Iowa state treasury on an estate valued at $19,894. The daughter, who was 22 years old, committed suicide eight days after her mother's death, shooting herself in the home of her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Pearson, at Des Moines.

LORD CARSON DIES; LED FIGHT FOR ULSTERITES

British Cabinet Member During World War.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LORD CARSON.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The death today of Lord Carson at 81 years of age of lymphatic leukemia removes one of the strangest and most enigmatic figures from contemporary British politics.

Born Edward Henry Carson at Dublin, Feb. 9, 1854, Lord Carson became a prominent lawyer and then turned to politics. In 1892 he was made solicitor general for Ireland and elected to the house of commons for Dublin university, a seat which he held until 1918 when he won the seat from the Duncairn division of Belfast. That he retained until he was made a life peer as Baron Carson of Duncairn in 1921 and went into the house of lords.

He had the gift in the highest degree of rousing his followers to a frenzy of admiration and loyalty.

Aided Partition.

Lord Carson was responsible more than any other for the partition of Ireland which has led to so much bloodshed and ill feeling. He was a Protestant southern Irishman.

When Col. Sanderson, leader of the Ulster party, died, Carson was asked by the Ulsterites to become their leader and he at once became more extreme than any of his followers. He organized and led the threatened Ulster rebellion in 1914 against the home rule bill and secured its postponement when the war broke. He turned his army to the battlefields of France.

During the war Carson was first lord of the admiralty in the Lloyd George cabinet in 1917 after serving from 1915 as attorney general in the Asquith coalition. He was minister without portfolio in 1917-'18.

Influence Continued.

After the war Carson threw himself into the fight against the establishment of the Irish Free State and succeeded in securing the partition by which the six Ulster counties separated from the rest of Ireland.

In the last few years Carson has been in poor health.

Carson will be buried Saturday in St. Anne's cathedral, Belfast. The Ulster parliament passed a special act authorizing the burial, which will be the first interment in the cathedral. It is proposed to make his tomb a shrine for Ulster pilgrimages.

GEN. FOREMAN'S ESTATE SET AT $100,000 IN WILL

The will of Milton J. Foreman, former major general in command of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard, and prominent attorney, was admitted to probate yesterday by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge O'Connell. The estate, valued at $100,000, ultimately will go to Knox college at Galesburg, Ill.

Gen. Foreman, who was 72 years old, died Oct. 16 at his home at 1367 North State street. During the lifetime of three of his sisters, Blanche, Stella, and Agnes, who lived with him, they will receive the income from the estate. On the death of the last sister the principal of the estate will go to Knox college, where it will be used for scholarships for needy and worthy students. The fund will be known as the Mary Foreman scholarship in memory of the general's mother.

Attorney Lazarus Krinsley, one of Gen. Foreman's law partners, who filed the will, said that the general became interested in Knox college five years ago and during that period had been helping three needy students there each year. Gen. Foreman was given an honorary degree of doctor of laws from the college several years ago. Another sister of the general, Mrs. Gertrude Hirschbein of New York, is not mentioned in the will. Attorney Krinsley said the general had provided for her before his death.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A prediction was made here the other day that this season might bring stardom to several of the newer feminine singers—since several of the established soloists are relinquishing their positions in the radio firmament. Dorothy Page, Jane Froman, Gertrude Niesen, Vera Van, Annette Hanshaw, and Gladys Swarthout are among the names missing this year.

Well, who may achieve stardom in their places? First it ought to be made clear that it is not always the girls with the best voices who land the choicest jobs. It must be remembered that sponsors or their representatives usually pick the songstresses slated for high salaries. And their judgment is by no means infallible.

Among the young hopefuls this year at New York network headquarters are several Chicagoans. At CBS Deane Janis, who used to sing with Hal Kemp here over W-G-N, is the subject of press agentry on a national scale this season. She is singing with Glen Gray on that cigaret show. And there's Jane Williams at NBC [she was Rowene Williams when she was here].

Among Chicago's most promising are Sally Jo Nelson of W-G-N, Vivian della Chiesa at WBBM-CBS, and Gale Page, Lyn Martin, and Grace Dunn at NBC.

W-G-N's new "Radio Playhouse," launched last night, made a hit with the audience in the new studios. It probably was equally well liked by airway listeners. The program featured an original spy drama by Morrison Wood, a newsreel, and original music by Harold Stokes. Don Ameche, well known radio actor, and Kay Storey played the leading rôles in the play. Ameche surprised many of his listeners by displaying considerable proficiency as a singer.

Jack Hylton, English maestro, will arrive from New York today to begin rehersals for his new CBS commercial show which will go on the air next Sunday evening from the Civic theater.

LEWIS WILDER DIES AT AGE 92; BORN IN AURORA

Lewis Wilder, 92 years old, a native born resident of Aurora, died yesterday in his home at 65 Southview street following a stroke of apoplexy. Mr. Wilder was a brother of Bert Wilder, Aurora's oldest resident, who observed his 100th birthday anniversary last July 26.

The Wilder family came to Aurora 98 years ago from New York. Lewis Wilder was born in a log cabin on the west side of the Fox river when friendly Fox Indians roamed the area and their chief, Waubonsie, was a welcome visitor in the homes of the settlers of that period.

Mr. Wilder was a civil war veteran. Mrs. Edith Mombleau and Mrs. Mae Honey, daughters, and two grandchildren are among his survivors. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning in the chapel at 213 North Lake street, Aurora. Interment will be in West Aurora cemetery.

WM. G. JENNINGS, VETERAN IN DRUG TRADE, DIES AT 67

William G. Jennings, identified for more than half a century with the pharmaceutical business of the city, died yesterday at his home, 1903 East 73d street, after a long illness. He was 67 years old.

Mr. Jennings was brought to Chicago as a baby from the Canadian home of his parents. He entered the employ of the old Halsey Brothers' drug store as a messenger and in 1892 became the sole owner. He sold his interests in 1902, when he founded S. E. Young & Co., another drug firm. He retired from this firm in 1931.

Surviving are two sons, William G. Jr. and John H. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the chapel at 316 West 63d street, with burial at Oak Woods cemetery.

Widow of George Ross Dies at 80 in Louisville

Mrs. Virginia Ross, 80 years old, former Chicagoan and widow of George Ross, an official of Sprague, Warner & Co., died yesterday at Louisville, Ky., friends here were informed. The body will be brought to Chicago today and buried in Graceland cemetery. Mr. Ross died twenty years ago. Mrs. Ross had lived in Chicago until a year ago, when she went to reside with her son, R. H. Ross, at Louisville.

Frank W. Pangborn, Dairy Union Official, Dies at 60

Funeral services for Frank W. Pangborn, 60 years old, 6001 Warwick avenue, secretary-treasurer of the Dairy Employés' union, who died at home Sunday after a six months' illness, will be held this afternoon in the chapel at 4332 Elston avenue. Burial will be in Mount Emblem cemetery. Mr. Pangborn had been with the union since its inception in 1919. His widow and two sons survive.

LINCOLN—John Lincoln. In memory of our dear son and brother who passed away one year ago today, Oct. 23, 1934.

We sigh and shed a tear,
And think of him, still as the same.
He is not dead; he is just away.

Street Coat in Kelly Green

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Sleek Lingerie Is Styled for Fitted Clothes

BY RHEA SEEGER.

No one appreciates glove silk lingerie as she should. We sort of subconsciously know that we can get the smart well fitting pieces in any fashion-wise shop whenever we need them and let it go at that. See some of the new early winter models if you think the designers have been neglecting their opportunities. These new models will revive your shopping interest in the sleek stuff that is a perfect foundation for suavely fitted clothes of either wool or silk.

Nightgowns are supercomfortable without losing a bit of femininity. . . . This season you'll find them with long sleeves and sufficiently good looking to make you stop and spend a lot of your allowance. Tiny round and high collar lines match the simplicity of the narrow cuffs. These new "longs" are of the glove silk mixture that makes them a bit heavier than the all silk and are good numbers for cold winter sleeping. The same silk mixture material is used for short sleeved models with a high neckline that ties demurely with a narrow ribbon bow.

The new all-togethers are new and neat and slim enough to stay unwrinkled under the most form revealing dress you have. They come in all silk as well as the silk mixture. The well designed and smooth fitting brassiere is lined with net for fitted firmness and trimmed with lace. The panties have cuffs and are well tailored.

Separate vest and French panties styles, smoothly fitted and styled for wear with the clothes of today, are waiting for the shoppers, slim and lovely lingerie for everything in your winter wardrobe.

Fashion photograph . . . dark brown Persian lamb fashioned in a tricky swirled collar accents this vivid wool winter coat of Kelly green. A wide brown suede belt accentuates the slim fitted waistline. Brown costume accessories and a brown hat trimmed with a twist of green complete this striking street ensemble. It is available in a Chicago shop.

St. Luke's Style Show Will Be Given Today

Afternoon and Evening Performances.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THIS afternoon at 1:30 o'clock the doors to the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel will be opened and hundreds of women who want to see the ninth annual St. Luke's fashion show will start finding places at the 250 unreserved tables that will be set for tea. Only the tables in the 73 boxes will be reserved so for those who are not going to sit at box tables it will be a case of "first come, first served."

By 2:30 when the parade of youth and beauty and fashion will start there will not be an unoccupied chair at any of the tables, if today's show draws as large an audience as the other eight have done and there is every indication that it will.

The severely modern decorations of the stage this year will be a particularly effective background for the opulent and gorgeous display of clothes. Mrs. John L. Cochran and Mrs. Robert M. Adams have planned the decorations and their plans have been carried out by Peter Diem, a young man who is here from Hollywood. A silver curtain will hang from the ceiling and when it is draped back there will be exposed a white platform and white steps down which the manikins will walk to the runway. The lighting will be entirely new and different for the Marquis de Veyrac has arranged it. Tonight he will be a guest of Mrs. Augustus W. Eddy in a box party she is giving for Miss Elizabeth Arden.

The show will be repeated tonight at a dinner-dance, which will start at 7:30 o'clock. Reservations for it will be taken until 4 this afternoon and tickets for the afternoon showing and tea will be on sale at the door.

John Nash Otts Parents of Son.

Mrs. John W. Gary, president of the woman's board of the hospital and chairman and treasurer of the fashion show committee, probably will make a trip to St. Luke's this morning, but it will have nothing to do with the fashion show. It will be to see her newest grandnephew, the son of her namesake niece, Emily Gary Fentrees Ott and John Nash Ott Jr.

The baby was born yesterday morning and is to be named James Forgan Ott for his father's maternal grandfather. Tiny Master Ott has two half brothers, two year old Richard and four year old Robert Stocking, sons of Mrs. Ott by a former marriage, and he has two great-grandmothers living, Mrs. James B. Forgan and Mrs. Thomas R. Lyon.

Lydia Swift Selects Dec. 14 as Wedding Date.

Although arrangements for the small wedding have not been completed Lydia Swift has set Dec. 14 for her wedding to Paul Rowan. The wedding will take place at the home

Front Views and Profiles

A NORTH SHORE family recently employed a French governess for the children. The day of her arrival her employer talked with her of her duties. When she was upstairs she was told she must be as quiet as possible; the grandmother of the family was bedridden.

Explanation—
Celebrities—
School stuff.

"Bedridden," she repeated, half to herself, her face showing her perplexity. Then it brightened and she exclaimed sympathetically, "Ah, ces wagon-lits."

CELEBRITIES—men and women of arts and letters—keep arriving in town, more proof than the weather that the winter is getting under way. Barry Faulkner, the New York artist who did the mosaics at Rockefeller Center, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank for a week or so. The other day they motored from Lake Geneva to Madison to take luncheon with President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin. Mr. Faulkner's stay at the Lake Geneva place of the Fairbanks brought to mind the comment made by Daggett Harvey when he served as toastmaster at a dinner his parents gave for Kellogg Fairbank Jr. and his bride some weeks ago. When he called upon Mrs. Fairbank he said he was introducing a woman whose home was such a meeting place of the great literary folk, artists and thinkers that it was spoken of as the "Athens of the North Woods."

THEN, while we're gossiping, there was Edward J. O'Brien, who for twenty-one years has been putting out his collection of the best short stories of the year. Mr. O'Brien, who lives at Oxford, gray haired, with a straggling lock across his brow, a bushy mustache and a bow tie, saw Chicago friends, including John T. Frederick, founder of the Midland magazine, a magazine from which he has included a story in nearly every one of his yearly collections. He never before had met Mr. Frederick. They went down to Notre Dame to have luncheon with Father Leo L. Ward, English instructor, who has had several stories in Mr. O'Brien's collection. Mr. O'Brien is a widower. His wife was ill in the same hospital and died at the same time as did the girl about whom Ernest Hemingway wrote in "Farewell to Arms." A personal bit relayed because of the intense interest of readers who wondered if Katherine in the book were a real person.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

My greatantaliza! If they're not asking us to step out evenings now with our lashes a rich, ripe Botticelli green! If you're a hazel-eyed honey, or grey-green eyed, you're guaranteed a success unheralded with the green come hither on your lid trimmings. Maybe we had better leave it with the green and hazel eyed sirens to work havoc as they may with the green fringes. That's really for whom the color note was intended, anyway. And for those who can be exotic in the grand manner in a clime that is neither that of Egypt nor of sunny California.

I'm just passing on the news, anyway. You don't have to go green of lash if you don't want to. But they do say it does things to and for the green eyed witch in a renaissance hued gown.

Neither do you have to wear stockings I saw the other day with lipstick toes all painted on to save you the price of a pedicure. These are for wear with your evening cutouts. But they're an amusing note in an extravagant era.

Speaking of stockings and extravagant gestures, did you hear that juicy morsel about the Hollywood screen star appearing at a stocking counter and asking for size 7½? A diminutive stockings size, to be sure. The store had none for her, but told her if she'd pay for alterations necessary on the stocking making machine they could accommodate her. The star said: "All right, and I'll take fifty pairs!" The stockings cost $5.50 a pair.

True to my Irish character, watch me leap from that dizzy height down to the depths of acquainting you with the fact that you can get a grand little product endorsed by the bureau of standards that will make your sheers and service weights live longer.

You just rinse your stockings out first in this product with the necessary water added, and runs promise to stop making life unbearable. Also, you're promised no rain spots, too.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

"Here's to Romance" is an entertaining comedy romance to which the glorious voice of Nino Martini lends the grace of distinction. I don't know much about music, but I do know that I love to hear him sing.

He's pleasing personally, too. The slim, dark, sensitive type. And he acts with a simplicity, an unfeigned naïveté, that is appealing. The producers have been generous with him. He sings several operatic selections and a number of popular songs.

The story of "Here's to Romance" is woven 'round the "sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander" motif. One Emery Gerard, wealthy and handsome, is a patron of the arts in that he is forever taking attractive and clever young girls as protégées. His wife, pretty and with money of her own, decides that what papa does mamma can, too. So she calls up Madam Schumann-Heink, seen as a teacher of voice, and speaks as follows:

"Madam, I want to help some talented—handsome!—young man. Do you know of anybody?"

"I will bring him right over!" says madam. . . .

Donelli is poor but proud, and taking money from a woman doesn't set so well with him. But Mrs. Gerard's enthusiasm over his voice, her anxiety to be of aid, finally cause him to accept her kind offer. And so he goes to Paris. . . .

Here he studies under the greatest teacher of them all . . . and falls in love with a charming young dancer, Lydia Lubov. . . . When the Gerards come to Paris—Mr. Gerard to look up one Rosa, whose training he's been financing, and Mrs. Gerard to drop in on Donelli—each makes a discovery. Rosa is honeymooning! AND Donelli's heart is irrevocably in the keeping of Lydia!

But the pretty New York woman doesn't give up easily—and by now she is convinced that she loves Donelli. Her delicate manipulation of affairs results in misunderstandings between the lovers, and one terrible quarrel between them which sends Donelli to his big chance—a début (arranged by herself at the Opera Comique)—so utterly wretched that he breaks down. . . . Lydia becomes Gerard's protégée. Donelli, who has refused to accept any more favors from his ardent benefactress, is out in the cold. . . .

Eventually everybody lands back in New York. The Gerards separate. . . . One day Mrs. Gerard discovers her, so to speak, million dollar baby singing in a five and ten cent store. . . .

Let the picture unravel the rest of the plot for you.

The playing is all highly commendable — and Madam Schumann-Heink sings once, endearingly. The production has been nicely directed and staged.

(Suppose you tell me if you think it's too long.)

See you soon.

MARSHALL FIELD & COMPANY

BORDER BREED

By William MacLeod Raine

SYNOPSIS.

Young Dan Clifford is driving a mule team carrying freight when he meets and befriends 17 year old Milly Sutherland. She and a young brother and sister are en route to Los Pinos, wild border town of the untamed west. Their father died on the way. In Los Pinos Dan, through Polly Doble, gets Milly work washing, and Ah Sin, a Chinaman, to help her. Jasper Ford, gambler and killer, forces his attentions on Milly. Dan publicly humiliates him. Ford challenges Dan to a duel. Dan can't shoot. Sam Jones of the rangers advises Dan to choose bowie knives as weapons and he'll circulate reports of his prowess at slashing. Ford backs out. Sam gives Dan shooting instructions. Dan wins another victory over a friend of Ford's named Le Page. Milly gets another job, teaching school. Dan and his teamsters, String Beans and Yorky, leave for the salt lakes. When they return to Los Pinos an attachment is put on the wagon loads of salt. It is claimed the salt lakes, long public property, have been taken up by one Zack Black, representing the gamblers. Dan dumps the salt in the muddy road. A Mexican, Chaves, suspected of intentions to take salt from the lakes, is arrested. Ford has him bailed out, but holds him hostage. Dan kidnaps Ford and forces him to order Chaves' release. Ford again challenges Dan. In the encounter Dan is shot, but by Le Page, who is killed by Ford. Dan's friends believe Ford arranged the shooting and killed Le Page to prevent his talking. Black, Lou Stone, and a group of gamblers are besieged at the salt lakes by Mexicans. Dan and Sam Jones act as peacemakers and accomplish their rescue, but they are forced to give up all claim to the salt deposits. Lou Stone breaks with Ford. Jonathan Edward Hart, a famous killer, who was sent to prison 16 years before because of Ford's testimony, arrives in Los Pinos. Dan meets Hart at Polly Doble's hotel. In prison Hart studied law and got religion. He tells Dan he is through killing. Dan is appointed sherif.

INSTALMENT XXXIII.

DAN TAKES A JOB.

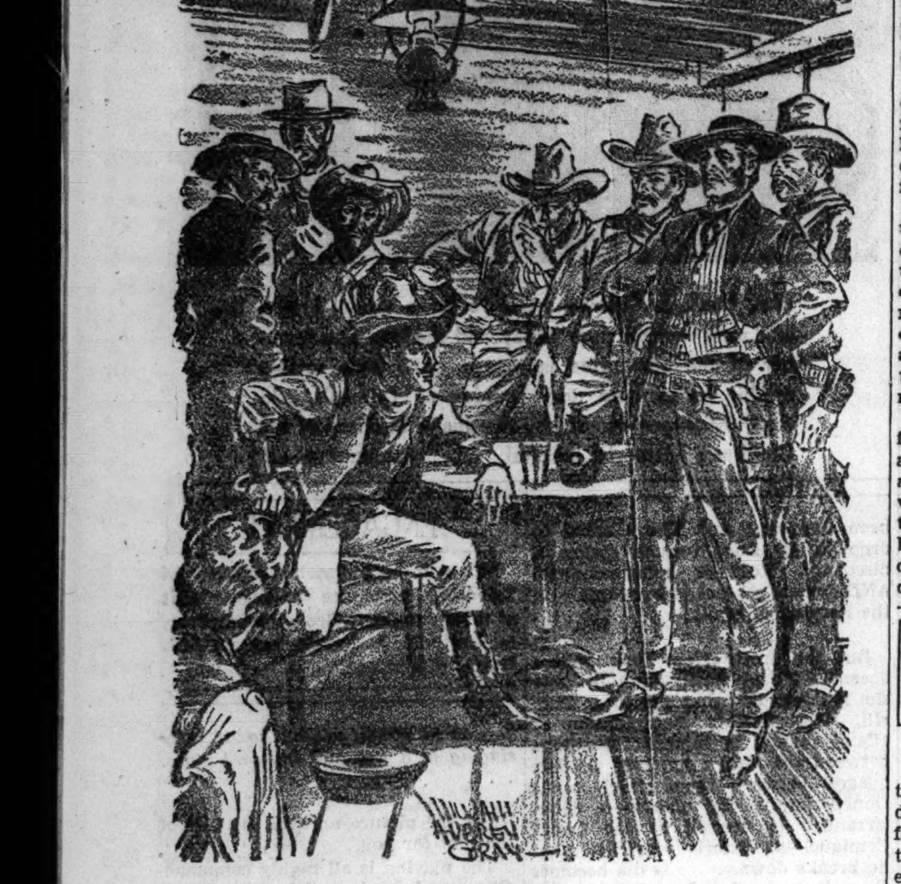
Dan knew it was all very well for these friendly citizens to offer their backing now. They meant what they said. But when he walked up to a gun to arrest a desperado he would be alone, just as he would be when he walked down some street at night with no assurance that an assassin was not lying in ambush a few yards away to destroy him.

Lon Stevens tugged at his mustache, smiling at Dan. "Young fellow, here's something. You'll be playing a lone hand most of the time. No use loading you about that. We'll help if you call on us. But the way it is liable to be is that trouble will jump up at you when you're not looking for it. I'm not strong for sawing off this job on you. If I was you I wouldn't take it."

"Nor I," chimed in the minister, catching sight in imagination of Milly Sutherland's white strained face. "You are too young for the place, and you haven't had enough experience. I think we had better get an older man."

"I'm as old as I was last night when you figured I would do, Mr. Washburn," Dan remarked.

"I hadn't given the matter enough consideration then."



"I'll take the job, for three months," announced Dan."

"Why ask this young fellow to do what we don't want to do ourselves?" Stevens demanded abruptly. "I don't like it."

"But you're on the committee inviting me to butt in to this trouble that is ready to jump up at me," Dan said.

"Sure I am. We need a good marshal. If you want to take it, that will be all right with me. But I wouldn't want to send you in blindfold."

"You wouldn't have to do that," Waller explained. "Get another teamster. All you need to do is to rustle up business and give your men orders. Won't take half an hour a day. You can do it while you are on duty."

"I name my own deputies," Dan said.

"Fair enough," the mayor agreed. "How many?"

"Two will be enough now. More if the town grows fast. I'll take the job for three months," announced Dan. "By that time we will have made a good start on the cleanup or I'll be known all over town as a four-flusher."

"Congratulations, Mr. Clifford," the gambler greeted him ironically. "I hear you have a job."

Dan said blandly: "Don't congratulate me but the city, Mr. Stone."

"Perhaps you're right. There are good jobs and bad jobs." Stone lifted an eyebrow appraisingly. "You haven't been what the insurance companies call a good risk for some time. Probably they won't rate you a better one now."

"Just a friendly warning?" Dan asked, with a touch of answering sarcasm.

"You might call it that," Stone assented. "I could name some who won't throw up their hats and yell at your appointment."

"Including Mr. Stone?" Dan said lightly, his eyes steadily on the other.

"Not including Mr. Stone," answered the owner of the name quietly. "I'll put my cards on the table. For myself, I like an open town. It's good for business."

"Especially your business," Dan slipped in.

"Right, but for others, too. But I don't hold with murder and robbery. So I'm supporting you, Mr. Marshal."

"That's bully," Dan drawled. "It's good citizens like you I am asking to aid me in cleaning up the town."

A ghost of a smile flickered across Stone's impassive face. "I sure appreciate your approval," he said.

"My approval doesn't extend to all your friends," Dan carried forward. "Unless of course you can convert them to your way of thinking."

"Did I give you a list of my friends?" the gambler inquired, carelessly.

"How about Jasper Ford, your partner?"

"He isn't my partner. He was in the salt lakes business."

"Not now?"

"Not now. I signed a paper quit claiming any rights I had. Jas didn't see it my way. So he is in, and I am out. I don't reckon you could call him my friend, either. We had a difference of opinion, and we have gone different ways."

"Shook hands and said 'adios'? That the way of it?"

"Said 'adios,' but didn't shake hands."

"Funny," Dan said. "I had you both pegged right. I kinda expected you to stand by your agreement with the Mexicans and I was dead sure Ford wouldn't."

"Smart as a whip, aren't you?" Stone jeered.

Dan did not resent the sneer. He knew that Stone considered himself a tough and hardboiled hombre and he did not expect him to make any admission in words that he had changed front.

As he walked down the street an idea jumped at Dan and stopped him dead in his tracks. Why not ask Stone to be one of his deputies? Very likely he would not accept. The offer would have to be put to him diplomatically. But if he could be persuaded to take the job it would be a blow to Jasper Ford and his clique, since it would be tantamount to an open admission of the fact that the gamblers no longer held an united front against the reform element.

Dan found a note waiting for him at the jacal. It was signed by Milly, and it said that she wanted to see him at once.

The first words of Milly were: "You're not going to take it." She flung them at him like a blow.

He nodded. "Yes, I'm taking it."

"Why? So you can show off and let everybody see what a big man you are? So you can strut around and say, 'Who's afraid?'"

Dan was startled at her ferocity.

"Maybe that's the reason," he said stiffly.

"You told me yourself that you had been lucky in your trouble with Ford. Do you expect always to be so?"

"I wouldn't know about that, but I can hope, can't I?"

Adult Clashes Over Discipline Bad for Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Divorce—financial stress—lack of work for the man of the family—the need of his wife going out to earn money often leads to people with children seeking refuge with the older folks. "We have to go to live with my people," or "my husband's people" is the refrain of many a letter.

This doubling up works hardship on both the younger and the older family. Every young woman likes to have a home of her own, and many older women who have raised one family find it hard to raise another.

But the children suffer, too. Far too often there is a pulling in two directions about the management of them, and the innocent "bones of contention" get some bruising as a result. Certainly they must be quite confused when their grandparents or aunts handle them in one way and their mother, when she returns at night, tries something different.

A really bad situation is created for the child whose mother is loving and wise with her but must be away all day long, so that all the child's waking hours are spent with relatives who are loving but unwise, being either easy and gushingly indulgent, or overly strict. Many children are in such situation as this, and I am asked by their mothers just what is to be done.

One thing I suggest [without much sense of conviction, I must confess] is that the mother try in entire friendliness to make her family see what she is driving at in her method. I do know of a number of alert and interesting grandmothers who are completely "sold" on the new child training.

My other suggestion, when no headway has been made by discussion and feeling runs high and argument flares back and forth is, that young children be put for part of the day in a good nursery school.

According to CULBERTSON

ADVANCEMENT IN LEADS.

It is no exaggeration to say that the opening lead is 50 per cent of the defensive side of contract bridge. Unfortunately not nearly enough attention is paid to this department by either the average player or the near-expert. Perhaps they feel that it is pretty much a matter of luck to select, "blindly," the right suit to open. Perhaps they are even resigned to that ancient bit of defeatism that old-timers will remember: "The opening lead probably will cost a trick."

Considering the "theories" which were held regarding opening leads not so many years ago, the word "probably" probably was superfluous. They had so many taboos, the ranking players of a decade or so ago, the wonder was that they could ever find a card to lead. Singletons, doubletons, and low cards from suits headed by a king or by an ace all were heinous crimes. When one of these leads defeated declarer's bid, it was considered undeserved luck.

* * *

They must have felt relieved when they had an opening lead to make against no trump. It was a set rule to lead the "fourth highest of the longest and strongest suit." This mandate was much more highly regarded than any of the ten commandments. The longer of two suits came first, no matter which was stronger. It may have occurred to a few bold revolutionaries, in the lead with that the spade king might be a better opening lead than the three of diamonds, but few indeed ever actually perpetrated such heresy.

♠ K Q J 10, ♥ K 5, ♦ J 9 6 3 2, ♣ 5 3

With the modern theory of leads, which I advocated after years of research, we have discarded such balderdash. We now use the opening lead to perform different duties at different times. Sometimes we have only to preserve winning cards which cannot escape us unless we ourselves cut their throats. With such hands we observe the principle of the "economy of honors," and make a protecting lead which can cost us nothing. At other times we realize that the time factor is all important. We must make haste to establish our potential winners, and take tricks with them, before the declarer can establish and win enough tricks to make his contract. In such cases we boldly attack, risking what we must risk in the process. Still other situations arise that are truly desperate, and here we call upon the unexpected and unorthodox lead to save the day.

* * *

Let us suppose that you are to make the opening lead, after the bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
2 N T	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠ (Final bid)

You are West, and your hand is:

♠ Q 10 9, ♥ 8 5 2, ♦ Q J 6 2, ♣ A Q J,

You do not fear that North's diamonds will be easily established, so declarer cannot discard whatever losing cards he may have in clubs, but you cannot lead a club, if declarer has the king, nor a spade, if declarer has A K J, without forfeiting a trick. Your proper lead is the heart eight, waiting for the lead in the other suits to be made by another player.

If, after the same bidding, your hand is:

♠ K 7 5 4, ♥ A 6 3, ♦ 8 6 3 2, ♣ Q 8, you fear, because you have four tiny diamonds, that your partner has too few diamonds to stop the suit. Whatever tricks you could win in hearts by opening the suit, you probably can win as easily after getting the lead later in spades. Your best hope is to look for club tricks, and you lead the queen of clubs.

And again, if on the same bidding you hold:

♠ 6 5 3 2, ♥ 7 6 4 2, ♦ Q 7 4, ♣ K 3,

Here your case seems desperate indeed. The diamond situation again is menacing, and unless your partner can win three tricks in hearts and trumps, the club king can be worth no more than the saving of an extra trick. You lead the club king, for if your partner has the ace, you can win two club tricks and then ruff a club, and any other trick that your partner may be able to win will defeat the contract.

The old theories of opening leads have, for the most part, been dissipated. Even the underlead of an ace often can be advantageous yet not dangerous. All proper opening leads can be thought out. Whatever you do, think before you lead.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: If you have decided to open an unbid suit consisting of 8 6 3, which card would you lead?

Answer: Against a no trump bid, always lead the eight. Against a suit bid, either the eight or the six may properly be led. If you lead the six, then on the next round you may play the eight and your partner will not think that you had a doubleton in the suit. But if the holding is 8 3 2, the eight is a better lead, for partner may think that the three, if you lead it, is the fourth highest card of a long suit.

of the bride's parents, the Alden B. Swifts on Lake Shore drive. It is probable that the couple will have only two attendants. A small reception will follow the ceremony.

Friends were surprised to hear of the marriage about ten days ago of Mrs. Gardiner G. Hammond and Vincent Garrity. The former Kathleen Sheriff and her bridegroom left a week ago Monday for San Francisco where he has been transferred in business. They were accompanied by Mrs. Garrity's three children, and will stay at a hotel until they find a house.

Mrs. Garrity, whose first husband died three years ago, is the daughter of the late Mrs. Marguerite Mitchell Sheriff and the late Andrew Sherriff. Mr. Garrity is the son of Mrs. Michael V. Garrity of Chicago.

Assembly Ball to Be Dec. 6.

The governors of the assembly ball have selected December 6 as the date for the annual function. There has been considerable discussion as to the choice of either the first or second Friday of December for one of the most exclusive parties of the social calendar. The crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel has been reserved for the ball.

Now that the date has been settled plans for the usual large number of dinner parties to precede the ball are expected to be announced by the various hosts and hostesses soon.

Interesting Items About Travelers.

Mrs. Walker Szukalska and her little daughter, Kalinka, will leave on Nov. 2 to spend the winter at Del Ray, Fla. Kalinka is recuperating splendidly from infantile paralysis and it is hoped that she will be entirely well after a winter in the south.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Morris are among other Chicagoans enjoying a fall vacation at White Sulphur.

Mrs. Robert Stevenson and her debutante daughter, Miss Ethel Husband, will be going east next month for the last three of Harvard's football games, for their son and brother, Thomas B. Husband, is on the team. Young Mr. Husband is a junior. Miss Husband plans to visit in Boston for several weeks before returning home.

Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw has left on a river trip similar to one she and the late Mr. Shaw took 20 years ago. After trips on the Ohio, Tennessee and Mississippi rivers, she will leave the boat at St. Louis and go east to remain until mid-November.

The former Jeanette Hill and her husband, Harry K. Wells, have gone to England after a year in Munich, and have taken a cottage in Cornwall.

Dr. Wilhelm Tannenberg, German vice consul, with Mrs. Tannenberg and their two children, left Monday for a three months' vacation in Germany.

Bette Rich in East to Attend Wedding.

Miss Bette Rich is in New York today to act as maid of honor for Miss Kathleen Mayer, daughter of Mrs. E. Henry H. Simmons of 812 Park avenue, and the late John Mayer, when she becomes the bride of Bryan De Forest Sheedy, son of Mrs. Bryan De Forest Sheedy of 995 Fifth avenue and the late Mr. Sheedy. The wedding will take place in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's church and a reception will follow at Sherry's.

One of the most sensational features of the ball the South Shore center of the Infant Welfare society is giving Saturday night at the Palmer house, according to Mrs. Henry Kennedy, chairman, is a colored boy, 10 years old, who is coming up from southern Illinois to play the piano in the cocktail bar.

Mrs. Roosevelt Will Give First Lecture of Blackstone Series

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will come to Chicago Nov. 1 to open a series of lectures known as the Blackstone series in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. Mrs. Roosevelt will be heard at 8:30 o'clock that evening on the topic "Ways to Peace."

A committee of 53 well known Chicagoans is sponsoring the series. The audience for each of the eight lectures will be limited to 500.

William Lyon Phelps, professor emeritus and patron of the arts, will give the second lecture the evening of Nov. 14. The capitalistic and industrial régime will be defended by Ogden Mills, former secretary of the treasury, on Nov. 29, while Heywood Broun will have "White Collars" as his subject when he speaks on Dec. 13. Donald Richberg and Gov. Harold Hoffman of New Jersey will discuss the pros and cons of constitutional government as the fifth program Jan. 10. Other speakers to be heard are John Erskine, Robert Maynard Hutchins, and Cornelia Otis Skinner.

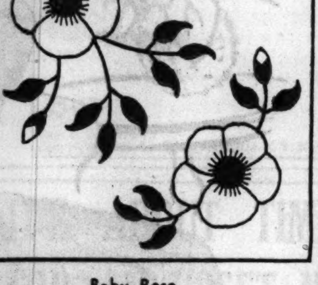
Quilt Possesses Unequaled Charm and Daintiness



Baby Rose.

BY NANCY CABOT.

For unequaled daintiness and charm there is scarcely a quilt block comparable to "Baby Rose." The fragile delicacy of the wild rose is ideal for this appliqué block, and especially for a baby's or a small child's bed.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Stock Makes Show of First of Matinees

BY HAZEL MOORE.

The opening program of the Tuesday concert series presented by Dr. Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon again showed a gratifying increase as to the size of the audience and the musical interest displayed.

The subject of live music as expressed by the symphony orchestra is a vital one. In a way it was answered by the surprising response to the open air free concerts presented in Grant park last summer. It was found that the best was none too good for the throngs who came from all parts of the city to satisfy the craving for good music. The orchestra concerts drew better than the band concerts, and the better the music played the greater the applause. That this spreading interest in symphonic music should extend to the winter indoor concerts of our own great symphony orchestra is to be expected, and the two programs already presented by Dr. Stock are splendid examples of what symphony patrons may expect during the season.

Yesterday's program was built on display lines, a program of stand-bys of the répertoire, chosen to exhibit the orchestra as a whole, and to sweep the symphony season into being.

It was good to hear again the magnificent sweep of Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony and the revitalized tone that emanated from the string section of the orchestra, good to hear again the somber themes of the second movement, and the simply beauty of the Valse. Here again in the tricky sixteenth note passage for strings and woodwinds the clarity with which Dr. Stock brought out the inner voices was especially noted.

The symphony was preceded by a brilliant performance of the Brahms Academic Festival overture, based on the student songs of the period.

The second section of the program was made up of the Dohnányi Suite for Orchestra, opus 19, one of the fine items of the répertoire, and by selections from "The Damnation of Faust," by Berlioz, also a frequently played number.

The San Carlo Opera company's performance of "Tannhäuser" at the Auditorium last night became a part of the music appreciation course presented by the University college of Northwestern university.

The opera was preceded by a lecture by Felix Borowski on the history of opera to the time of Wagner. Those registered for the lecture course arrived at 7 o'clock and the regular operagoers swelled the number by 8:15 to the usual overflow proportions.

Bread a Major Nutritive in Balanced Diet

BY MARY MEADE.

That bread is a substantial, accepted, and important part of the human diet is an undisputed fact. Ever since the early Egyptians learned the art of breadmaking and tutored the Greeks, who in turn passed their learning to the Romans, bread has played this star rôle in our eating.

There have been times, of course, when an actual shortage of bread slowed up our bread eating tendencies. Skeptics who doubt the importance of bread have only to review their history to find out what excitement the lack of bread can stir up in a people. You probably have read about the big bread riot in Milan, in 1629, which resulted in a couple of jolly hangings before the raving populace could be quieted. The part bread played in the French revolution is another chapter in its historical importance. And, only a hundred years ago in New York, the high cost of bread excited a great mob demonstration, in which a thousand bushels of wheat and five hundred barrels of flour are said to have been destroyed.

Even toast has been a part of our heritage and literature. More amusing than tales of bread riots is this squib from the "Book of Nonsense," by Edward Lear of London [1862]:

There was an old man of the coast,
Who placidly sat on a post;
And when it was cold he relinquished his hold
And called for some hot buttered toast.

There have been slight ups and downs in bread consumption during recent times, too, as the hold of fad diets on the public strengthened and waned. Faddists have condemned bread as the cause of acidosis, as fattening, as lacking in "roughage" or vitamins or what have you. But good old public common sense, plus reassuring and authoritative statements from the greatest nutritionists in the country, has refused to be frightened away from one of its best loved staples.

For instance, there is this statement by Dr. Oliver T. Osborne of the medical department of Yale university: "White bread, made from flour that has been whitened by processes that cannot contaminate the flour by the chemicals used, made with a pure yeast and with bacterially clean milk, contains enough nutriment and vitamins to make it one of the best sources of nutrition we have. In other words, it is a food that it would be a hardship for most people to do without."

The fact that bread [either white or dark] is included in the most scientific, safe, and efficient reducing diets is, naturally, proof that it cannot be termed a "fattening" food. Its energy value is important in maintaining the health of the reducing patient, and although its amount is governed, so is that of every other food in these diets.

In disarming the acidosis bogey we have this statement of Dr. James A. Tobey: "Any person who consumes a sensible mixed diet, with the protective foods, milks, green vegetables, fruits, and eggs, as a foundation, and with such other valuable foods as bread, meat, and vegetables as supplements, need never have any fear of the mythical condition known as acidosis. Such a wise consumer can forget all about acid-base balance, which will be automatically taken care of by the most wonderful machine in the world, the human body."

While bread was, some years ago, more generally made in the home than in these times [when most of us depend upon our bakers rather than our own kitchens], it has been, almost from its beginning, an important market commodity. Special bread markets used to be the fashion, with salesmen selling the loaves from door to door. It was in those ancient times that the expression "baker's dozen" originated. These salesmen derived their profit by pocketing the price of each thirteenth loaf they sold.

Neckline Is Distinctive Detail

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

This charming dress of black crêpe is designed along simple but distinctive lines, and you surely will want to add it to your wardrobe. Isn't the neckline pretty? The little points at the front and the jeweled buttons accent the interesting pointed shoulder yoke. The smaller view shows another suggestion for making it a two-piece dress with peplum. Note that the convertible neckline forms tiny revers. This is an especially good design for rabbit's hair woolen.

The pattern, No. 2553, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material.

Light Comedy Marks Jubilee of Play Group

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of theatrical activities at the Jewish People's institute, out on the west side where thousands of young folks and their parents seem to prefer the drama, even in amateur form, to the movies, is being celebrated by an excellent production of a Hungarian comedy called "The Bride of Toroszco."

Shaindel Kalish, the pretty and gifted girl who sprouted professional wings in "Girls in Uniform" and "Sixteen," has returned to the scene of her training for this occasion; and Charles K. Freeman, ex-director of the group, also figures in the birthday party as producer of the play and an actor of one of the most important rôles in the cast.

Freeman's able stage direction and suave character study of a gentle Jewish innkeeper and Miss Kalish's spirited acting as a Rumanian peasant maid about whom the amusing story centers make "The Bride of Toroszco" an interesting event, even for downtown playgoers. The play is a whimsical treatment of a situation in which racial prejudices are involved, completely devoid of the bitterness that often enters into this problem.

The heroine, adopted from an orphan asylum in infancy and reared as a true bred Rumanian Catholic, is turned into a Jewess by official papers from the asylum; then, after complications, the error is corrected and she is certified as a gentile, but a Protestant, not a Catholic. The latter revelation comes after she has become an eager devotee of Jewish religious observance.

The light mood of the play may be suggested by Miss Kalish's outburst after she has resumed gentile status:

To which her kindly patron, the Jewish innkeeper, answers in a deprecating way:

"Two weeks—that would be long enough."

The play is such a hit at the institute that its original three performances have been extended to five. It will be repeated, therefore, tonight and tomorrow night.

The Mummers, energetic and completely non-arty group of amateur actors whose focus is in Rogers Park, have selected the Chicago Woman's Club theater for their downtown activities this season. A lively production of "The Front Page," the profane jape at the newspaper business by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, was staged at the last week-end. The next play, to be given early in December, will be "La Malquerida" ["The Passion Flower"], a Spanish drama by Jacinto Benavente.

Stubbornness Seen in High Ridged Noses

Owners Likely to Clash, Says Physiognomist.

BY HUGO WESTERBERG.

MAUREEN O'SULLIVAN.

It is natural that persons who have the same outstanding desire are less suited to each other than those with different purposes. If husband and wife each has a feeling of superiority, indicated by high ridged noses, there will be times when one must yield and will find it difficult to do so gracefully. A clearly understood division of responsibilities is then necessary. Most of us could be expected to submit to such an arrangement if the need were seen.

Occasionally a person is found who will not give way and then there is trouble. A man had lived happily with his wife and when she died he felt the loss deeply. After some years of loneliness he listened to the urging of his friends that he again marry, and began a search for a companion.

However, some years later he was still single and explained that women were too hard to manage and even wanted to dictate. Now, his wife had willingly carried out his suggestions, always showed that she held him entitled to first consideration, and had been a real companion. The reason could be found in the fact that her nose was inward curved.

There are no statistics on the subject, but observation seems to indicate that few women with inward curved noses remain single. The widower had difficulty finding one like his wife who was of that type. The others available for marriage had noses that denoted the desire to dominate.

Maureen O'Sullivan may be described as a self-controled young woman who has perseverance without becoming obstinate; she has courage in contact with people without being crude or offensive; she has a frank and impulsive interest in people who are congenial. Her dislikes can be deep-seated. Her opinions are flexible and she is amenable to reason, but she would resist any attempt to regulate her conduct according to pattern; willing to please when it does not encroach on her independence. A competent person and still a lovely one.

Plan Bigger, Better Battle in 1936.

BY ARCH WARD.

Chicago's three leading charity organizations have been enriched by $24,937.15 as a result of the second annual all-star football game between the College All-Americans and Chicago Bears at Soldiers' field Aug. 29. This amount, added to the $21,000 which was cleared in the 1934 game, boosts the total raised for charity from this enterprize to $45,937.15. Checks for $8,312.38 will be mailed tomorrow to the United Charities, Catholic Charities, and Jewish Charities of Chicago.

The attendance at this year's game, 77,450, was slightly under the 1934 figure, but the receipts were $12,000 more. After deducting federal tax, the gate at the 1935 contest amounted to $94,481.40.

Expenses Are $60,000.

Expenses were greater this year because the roster of the college squad was increased from 35 to 43 and the players were in training at Northwestern university nearly a week longer than in 1934. The total cost of assembling, training, and equipping the teams and staging the event was approximately $60,000. This figure does not include a share of the profits which went to the Bears.

More fans had a hand in the 1935 All-Star football game than ever before were connected with a sports event. The members of the college squad were chosen in a nation-wide poll in which THE TRIBUNE had the coöperation of 105 newspapers in all parts of the United States. More than 737,000 votes were cast. The coaches' poll, conducted in the same fashion, drew in excess of 7,300,000 votes. Frank Thomas of Alabama, the winning coach, received 165,000 more votes in his home state than President Roosevelt collected there in the Democratic landslide of 1932.

Governors Boost Game.

Governors of two middle western states urged support for their favorites in radio appeals. Alumni groups went to work everywhere in the greatest display of collegiate loyalty football has known. More than 300,000 votes, representing nearly 11 per cent of the population of northern California, were cast for Slip Madigan of St. Mary's through the San Francisco Chronicle alone. The other members of the coaching staf, Charles Bachman of Michigan State and Dr. C. W. Spears of Wisconsin, received equally as enthusiastic support in their own communities.

The Bears won the game, 5 to 0, on a field goal by Manders and a safety by Shepherd of the All-Stars. The college squad almost clinched victory in the third quarter with a drive that was stopped on the Bears' four yard line.

Repeat Game in 1936.

The game will be repeated in 1936. A new group will represent the colleges, for only players who have finished their careers the previous June are eligible. Their opponent will be the strongest available team in the National Professional league.

The fact now has been well established that it is possible to elect an All-American football team, assemble it, train it for three weeks, and have it strong enough to play the greatest of the professional elevens on practically an even basis.

Hereafter more attention will be paid to making the game itself more spectacular. This can be accomplished by requiring coaches of the college team to use all or at least most of the players at their disposal. This department has two or three plans in mind to accomplish that result.

LANDIS MAILS RECORD CHECKS TO 24 TIGERS

Record world series checks of $6,544.76 each were mailed to 24 members of the world's championship Detroit Tigers yesterday by Commissioner K. M. Landis. The checks broke the old record for individual shares set by the New York Giants in 1923, who received $6,143.49 each for beating the Yankees.

No checks were mailed to the Cubs, but Commissioner Landis explained it did not mean their individual cuts were being held up because of possible fines over their heated quarrels with Umpire George Moriarty.

Each of the Tiger regulars, coaches, and trainer received full checks for $6,544.76. Four others were given smaller amounts. Pitcher Roxie Lawson and Outfielder Hubert Skelley, who did not play the entire season, were given $1,636.19 each, as were the two clubhouse boys, Bob Conway and Alex Okray. Neal Conway, groundskeeper, received $3,272.38.

Mrs. Vanderbeck, Former U. S. Golf Champ, Dies

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Clarence H. Vanderbeck, former women's national golf champion, died today. Mrs. Vanderbeck suffered a stroke ten days ago. She won the United States title in 1915 at Lake Forest, Ill., defeating Mrs. W. A. Gavin, 3 and 2.

IT'S ABOUT TIME FOR AN UPSET IN BIG TEN FOOTBALL

Defeat of Gophers or Buckeyes Would Be Surprise

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The western conference football race, which gathers momentum this week-end with four games scheduled, apparently will run to form. At least there have been no indications in the five games completed or in the nonconference games which affect the general consensus that Minnesota and Ohio State are ranking favorites.

This doesn't mean, of course, that both of these teams will complete their Big Ten routine undefeated. Minnesota hasn't met a conference foe, while Ohio State's victory over Northwestern is its only credit mark. But if either loses, that defeat undoubtedly will be classed as an upset.

Buckeyes Look Ahead to Notre Dame Game.

Ohio State, by whipping Northwestern, 28 to 7, certainly should expect to beat Indiana, beaten by Michigan and by Cincinnati. Probably the Buckeyes are now more concerned with their battle with Notre Dame next week than they are with this week's engagement or with subsequent conference contests.

Minnesota opens with Northwestern this week and the Wildcats may prove a more worthy foe than the Gophers imagine after reading of Northwestern's defeats by Purdue and Ohio State. Northwestern outgained Purdue in yards gained by line plays and three of Ohio State's touchdowns resulted from forward passes. In other words, Minnesota, only tested so far by Nebraska, and now without Seidel at quarter back, isn't at all certain of winning.

Michigan Faces Three Hard Conference Games.

Michigan is undefeated in conference play, but the Wolverines' toughest opposition is ahead. Illinois, Ohio State, and Minnesota remain on Michigan's schedule, and the Wolverines probably would like to settle for one victory in the three contests.

Wisconsin, Indiana and Chicago must fight it out for last position. In the bracket behind the leaders are Purdue, Iowa, and Illinois. Purdue's chance for a conference title, or share in a championship, hinges first on the game with Minnesota on Nov. 2. The Boilermakers, with a fast team, excellent open field runners, and above average forward passing, may rate equal with the Gophers by game time. Purdue always has been difficult for Minnesota as the 7 to 7 tie in 1933 and Purdue's one touchdown victory in 1932 indicate.

The winner of this week's game between Iowa and Illinois may chase the leaders down the stretch. Illinois has a slight advantage in schedule over the Hawkeyes. Both play Northwestern. Illinois at this time rates superior to Michigan and Chicago, at least in offensive power. Ohio State, anxious to gain revenge for Illinois' 14 to 13 victory last year, is the hardest assignment ahead. Iowa, rated superior to Indiana, meets Minnesota and Purdue in other major contests.

Neither Illinois nor Iowa has sufficient replacements in event an epidemic of injuries occurs. So in any forecast of final standings, an element of luck enters that is out of proportion to the effect of injury on teams having more substitutes of high caliber.

An Upset Is Due; Watch for It.

Somewhere along the conference battle front an upset quite likely will appear. Last fall Wisconsin's victory over Illinois, 7 to 3, was the season's surprise in the Big Ten. In retrospect, it's always easy to explain how an upset occurs. This second guessing is the spectators' privilege, but nine times out of ten, when an upset does occur, the losing coach doesn't need a second guess; he saw the signs which indicated defeat.

Loss of players by injury sometimes is underestimated by the average fan. The coach knows the team value of each player. Spectators are

JOIN CUBS, SEE AMERICA! RECORD TOUR ANNOUNCED

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs yesterday announced the most extensive spring exhibition schedule ever arranged by a Chicago team—a calendar approached in the past only by the Yankees' See America First tours when Babe Ruth was baseball's biggest attraction.

According to yesterday's bulletin the record exhibition arrangement will open with games against the White Sox in Los Angeles on March 13, 14 and 15. The pre-season show will close with three games with the Sox in Chicago, April 10, 11 and 12. In between will be games in Texas, Louisiana, Alabama, Florida and Tennessee with the Pittsburgh Pirates, Cleveland Indians, Detroit Tigers [whom they met recently], Cincinnati Reds, New York Yankees, Brooklyn Dodgers, Philadelphia Phillies and Boston Red Sox.

Three Weeks on Catalina.

The team will spend three weeks on Catalina Island in physical conditioning activities. A frosty attitude assumed last year by some of the alarmed officials of the Pacific Coast league had indicated that ball parks would not be available for any major league exhibitions. The booking of three games with the White Sox in Los Angeles, therefore, was a slight backing away from the hostile attitude of the minor leaguers.

But the Cubs will not hang around the sacred precincts of Los Angeles for long. After the Sox game on March 15 they will take off for San Antonio, Tex., where they will engage the Pirates on March 18.

Face Indians at New Orleans.

On March 19 the Cubs will play the Houston Buffs at Houston, then will move right on to New Orleans for a game with the Indians on March 20.

On Saturday, March 21, the Cubs will join up with their beloved enemies, the New York Giants, for a half dozen contests in Florida and Alabama. They will play in Pensacola March 21 and 22, in Selma, Ala., March 23, in Dothan, Ala., March 24, and back in Pensacola on March 25. They will conclude the set in Tallahassee on March 27, and the following day will tie up with the Tigers at Lakeland, Fla.

On March 28 the Cubs and Reds will entertain the fans in Tampa, Fla., and the next day the Cubs and Yankees will appear at St. Petersburg.

Call on Cards, Dodgers.

On March 30 the Cubs will drop in on the Cards at their training base in Bradenton, Fla., then will move over to Clearwater for a game with the Dodgers. By this time they probably will have had enough sea air for the nonce and will move inland to Winter Haven, Fla., to play the Phillies on April 1. On April 2 the Cubs will be back on the Florida west coast for a contest with the Boston Red Sox. The next four dates are open, but will be booked soon.

On April 7 and 8 the Cubs will play the Birmingham Barons at Birmingham, after which they will go to Nashville. They then will come into Chicago for three games with the Sox.

When the calendar is complete it will call for the playing of 29 games. The 25 announced yesterday will be played in 18 different cities in 7 different states.

March 18—Pittsburgh at San Antonio, Tex.
March 19—Houston at Houston, Tex.
March 20—Cleveland at New Orleans, La.
March 21, 22—New York Giants at Pensacola, Fla.
March 23—New York Giants at Selma, Ala.
March 24.—New York Giants at Dothan, Ala.
March 25—New York Giants at Pensacola, Fla.
March 26—New York Giants at Tallahassee, Fla.
March 27—Detroit at Lakeland, Fla.
March 28—Cincinnati at Tampa, Fla.
March 29—New York Yankees at St. Petersburg, Fla.
March 30—St. Louis Cardinals at Bradentown, Fla.
March 31—Brooklyn at Clearwater, Fla.
April 2—Boston Red Sox at Sarasota, Fla.
April 3, 4, 5, and 6—Open.
April 7, 8—Birmingham at Birmingham, Ala.
April 9—Nashville at Nashville, Tenn.
April 10, 11, 12—White Sox at Chicago.

ARMOUR DEFEATS WATROUS; PLAYS FOR TITLE TODAY

Revolta Wins Semi-Final Pro Golf Match.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 22.—Tommy Armour, Chicago's Silver Scot, tonight found himself on the threshold of his second National Professional championship in the 17th annual tournament at the Twin Hills Golf club. Medinah Country club's gifted host moved along to tomorrow's title match by eliminating Al Watrous, Detroit veteran, 2 and 1, in one of today's 36 hole semi-finals.

The way to that championship which the handsome, gray thatched Armour won from Gene Sarazen in 1930 is not quite clear. Barring his path is Johnny Revolta, Milwaukee's western open champion. This 24 year old Italian of the rampant locks and jutting jaw, who never had traveled this far in the pros' world series, today defeated Al Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., by a score of 4 and 3.

Old School vs. New.

The championship struggle will bring together two of the ablest of the game's practicing workmen, each representing a different school. Armour stands for the Hagens and Sarazens, while Revolta, sixteen years his foe's junior, will come out fighting for the Runyans and Smiths of the younger set.

Armour has held every major championship open to a professional, a record unparalleled by any of his fellows. Revolta, on the other hand, has fought his way up from the caddy league. He has been on the winning side of his last 19 important matches including the international four ball meet at Miami, the Inverness Invitational, the Ryder cup series, and five battles in this show.

Revolta Holds Edge.

Armour and Revolta are no strangers to each other in competition either, for both are professionals at Shriners' clubs, Armour at Chicago's Medinah and Revolta at Tripoli. The two clubs annually engage each other in a team series, with the pros and their assistants meeting in foursome matches. In two of these at Tripoli this summer they were even, but John took the argument held at Medinah.

The Armour-Watrous match contained none too much of elegant golf, and Armour spent the greater part of the afternoon bawling out Armour for the manner of his play. The weather was well suited to the Scottish born Armour, for it must have reminded him of bleak, raw days on his native heath. The morning round was played in the teeth of one of those skin tightening Oklahoma zephyrs that are like to blow a man down.

Armour 4 Up At 9th.

For the first nine Watrous couldn't cope with Armour, who flung a handsome 34, one under par, at him for a satisfying four up lead. Tom faltered somewhat on the back nine. He might have been able to do it safely against all but the genial, gum chewing Watrous, who has been around a bit himself, having finished second to Bobby Jones in the British open one year. Al trimmed Tom's lead to two up at the intermission. The afternoon saw Armour still two up at the turn, and four up at the 31st, apparently an easy winner.

Watrous thought otherwise, and a bold stratagem on the 580 yard 34th won him that hole and left him only two down. He appeared to have the 35th wrapped up and ready for mailing when Armour took up his liaison with the Twin Hills traps twice in a row, but the Detroit star then missed one of those putts which duffers blow, a small matter of one foot, and it was all over.

Zimmerman Always Behind.

Zimmerman, the Oregon blond, who had been running through the field for four days, was left at the post by Revolta, who romped into a three hole lead on the first three greens. He held that edge to the turn, and increased it to five up at the 27th. Zimmerman made a brave rally to

In the WAKE of the NEWS

WAKE MAIL BOX.

DEAR WAKE: I read with interest the comment on "Running Up Scores." I witnessed the Ohio State-Drake game Oct. 12. Coach Schmidt used 44 of 48 players in that game, the remaining four being on the injured list.

Third and fourth string subs eager to show their ability often do more than the first and second teams, especially when the opposition is worn down. It is difficult to hold down those subs who yern for a chance to make good. . . . I see no more wrong in men doing and giving their best in a football game than in business or the game of life.

In the Drake game this year and Western Reserve last year Schmidt used every substitute available. I have heard the remark, "Schmidt teaches them to score."

I recall one large score not included in the comment, a game 'way back in 1902 when Michigan beat Ohio State, 86 to 0. No one criticized Michigan or seemed to pity Ohio State. It is rather amusing to hear the ravings over Ohio State's large scores and remember the laughter and amusement when Ohio State happened to be the victim. R. E. Tilton.

Here's Referee Joe Magidsohn's explanation of the large Ohio State-Drake score Oct. 12:

"Their plays just clicked, that's all. Ohio State players were not bearing down at any time in the game after the first five minutes. They were working easily."

Here is the explanation made by a player: "If you were trying for a place on the team, the team which we all hope will be Ohio State's greatest, what would you do—go out there and fiddle around or try to make touchdowns? Well, so did we. H. K. S."

They Call It Bridge.

She may kick my battered shin,
Bruise each inch of tender skin,
Or may glower and shake a bowed and knowing head;
But I still remain at sea,
Playing on quite hopelessly,
Every brain cell having suddenly gone dead.

Bridge has got me on the run,
Daggered looks obscure the sun,
Life in many ways is now complex;
I sit blankly and confused,
Other players seem amused
As she hurries up my hand with urgent pecks.

I sincerely breathe a prayer
While she yanks my thinning hair,
Fighting bravely to the finish of the game;
Nudged and poked at every turn,
Till eternal rest I yern—
Compared to bridge the gridiron sport is tame.

FIND SKORONSKI PLAYED IN 1931 AT GEORGETOWN

One of Star Centers in Middle West.

ED SKORONSKI.

The ruling followed receipt of information that Skoronski, while enrolled as a special student in the school of foreign service at Georgetown in the fall of 1931, had played for a few minutes as a reserve on the Georgetown eleven. The few minutes, according to Big Ten rules, count as one year of competition, automatically terminating Skoronski's football career at Purdue.

Marshall Makes Announcement.

In announcing the disqualification of Skoronski from further play, Prof. William Marshall, chairman of the Purdue faculty athletic committee, issued the following statement:

"Proof having been presented to the committee on athletics that E. J. Skoronski had participated in football while a special student at Georgetown university in the fall of 1931, this committee immediately declared him ineligible for further competition."

On the Purdue campus Skoronski was regarded as not only an outstanding center, but one of the greatest football leaders that the Boilermakers have had in years.

Skoronski's unfortunate predicament came as the result of a peculiar combination of circumstances. The investigation by the Purdue faculty athletic committee revealed that he competed for those few minutes at Georgetown before he had been graduated from high school.

Football Star at Bowen.

The records show that Skoronski enrolled at Georgetown before completing his course at Bowen High school, Chicago, where he was an outstanding football star. He attended Georgetown during the academic year of 1930-'31 and entered again in the fall of 1931, but withdrew before the end of the semester and returned to Chicago to complete his high school studies. He received his diploma from Bowen just before he matriculated at Purdue in the fall of 1932.

With Skoronski out, center duties for Saturday's homecoming game with Carnegie Tech will fall to George Bell, rugged junior major letter man who has been splitting the time with Skoronski so far this season and is accounted an outstanding performer. In order to build up the reserve strength at the center position, Coach Noble Kizer is expected to make some shifts in line assignments tomorrow.

DISCOVERY WINS $10,000 HANDICAP AT CONEY ISLAND

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Alfred Gwyne Vanderbilt's Discovery today won the $10,000 Cincinnati handicap, closing day feature at the Coney Island track. Discovery, the year's handicap champion, splashed through heavy mud to a twelve length victory over Golden Rock. Open Hearth was third.

Discovery paid $2.40 to win and $2.80 to place. No show tickets were sold. Golden Rock paid $3 to place. The winner's time for the mile and a quarter was 2:06 2-5.

HELENE MAYER AGAIN DENIES OLYMPIC BID

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Miss Helene Mayer, famous as a fencing expert, now an instructor at Mills College for Girls in Oakland, says she has received no invitation from Germany to join the German Olympic fencing team. A few weeks ago a report was current that such an invitation had been extended and the same denial was made by Miss Mayer at that time.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Freddie Miller of Cincinnati retained his world featherweight championship by beating Vernon Cormier of Worcester in a 15 round title bout before 4,500 tonight at the Boston garden. Miller weighed 124¾ pounds, and the challenger, 125½.

BLUE BUD BEATS 2 YEAR OLD STARS AT SPORTSMAN'S

Comes Up in Stretch to Win by Half Length.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Blue Bud, a royally bred filly from Col. Edward R. Bradley's Idle Hour farm in Kentucky, became the leading candidate for 2 year old honors at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon when she scored an easy, yet exciting victory in the Brookfield purse.

It was the second triumph she has rolled up over the half mile course and in each instance she has turned back a band of the best juveniles quartered at the track. She made this one a thriller by galloping along well back of the leaders all through the early stages of the race.

She delayed her challenge until the field headed into the stretch turn. Her backers, who had made her the odds on favorite, were frantic when she failed to make up ground earlier.

Races for Chicagoan.

They sent out a mighty shout, however, when Jocky L. Wilson at last gave her some encouragement. Wilson knew what he was doing. She dashed on past Building Trades and Speed Limit in a manner that made them appear to be standing still.

Once in front she took things easy again, but was in such complete command of the situation that her backers did not worry. She eventually won by a half length with Lovely Spy second and Yes Polly third. She had whipped Building Trades and Speed Limit so soundly they dropped back and brought up the rear guard.

Blue Bud ran the seven furlongs over the slow track in 1:31 3-5 and paid $3.40. She carried the silks of Mrs. E. E. Keller of Chicago, Col. Bradley having sold her a few weeks ago.

Sarilla Wins Thriller.

Another mare, bred right in the purple, Sarilla, a daughter of Sir Gallahad III.-Sari, romped home the winner of the second best race on the program.

Sarilla jumped into the lead at the start and was in front all the way, except for a few seconds at the head of the stretch. She was the favorite in the seven furlong dash, but when she faltered slightly turning for home and Levi Cooke and Slip Knot both rolled on past her, most of those in the crowd groaned. They figured Sarilla was all done and might not even finish in the money.

The daughter of Sir Gallahad III. apparently was playing a joke on Levi Cooke, Slip Knot and her backers. She charged on in a new rally and it took her less than 20 strides to take the lead again. She was drawing away at the finish and finally won by the length of her neck.

Nellie S. Wins.

Despite the stout backing that developed for her, Sarilla paid $7.40 for a two dollar ticket. She appeared to be a bargain at the $1,000 claiming price for which she ran, but no one took her from Mrs. Lucille Stark, her owner.

The real high spot in the program came in the first race when Nellie S., sporting the silks of that noted turf firm of Yack & Peters, turned up as the winner.

Nellie was a 3 year old maiden and was making the 23d start of her career when she went into this race. She was about a thousand pounds the best. She was all but left at the post, raced wide on the first turn, then found an opening near the rail heading into the home stretch. She dashed on to win by a length and paid $37. Never before in all those 23 starts had Nellie S. been as close up as third.

Time, :25 1-5, :51 4-5, 1:20 2-5, 1:28. Two dollar mutuels paid: Nellie S., $37.00 straight, $11.80 place, $4.80 show; Aunt Bruce, $22.40 place, $10.60 show; Morvue, $3.60 show. Winner trained by L. Peters. Went to post at 2:04. At post 3 minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same.

NELLIE S., much the best, almost unseated her rider at the start, gained rapidly after three-eighths and, lucky to have ample racing room in the stretch, was up to win in the final strides. AUNT BRUCE, away well and placed forwardly under punishment, offered good contention but could not withstand the winner. MORVUE, sent to the front early, continued under occasional pressure and held on gamely while submitting. MIRA, far out in the track from the start, closed resolutely.

SECOND RACE—Five furlongs out of chute. Purse $600. Net value to winner, $475; second, $75; third, $30; fourth, $20.

Time, :24 2-5, :49 4-5, 1:03 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Porter Call, $3.40 straight, $2.60 place, $2.40 show; Rain or Shine, $4.40 place, $3.20 show; Galeway, $3.40 show. Winner trained by A. Singer. Went to post at 2:34. At post 2 minutes. Start bad from gate. Won driving; place same.

PORTER CALL hesitated slightly at start which enabled him to avoid interference, moved up fast after three-eighths, took command approaching the stretch, then stood the drive gamely to outfinish RAIN OR SHINE. Latter, a strong facter after the opening eighth, gained steadily and finished fastest. GALEWAY benefited when she broke quickly and impeded the inside horses, of which TECHNOCRAT and RAIN OR SHINE suffered the most, then raced in the contention for the remainder of the trip, but weakened near the end.

Time, :24, :49 2-5, 1:03 2-5. [Track slow.] Two dollar mutuels paid: Montaris, $82.40 straight, $19.00 place, $15.40 show; Jacob's Ladder, $3.60 place, $3.20 show; Hydromella, $7.60 show. Winner trained by J. D. Larkin. Went to post at 3:01. At post 3 minutes. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving.

MONTARIS, well handled, was taken to the leaders gradually, came through on the inside entering the stretch, drew out and won in hand. JACOB'S LADDER, hustled to the lead early, disposed of LITTLE STEIN, but was no match for the winner. HYDROMELLA closed fast under strong punishment.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs out of chute. Purse $700. Net value to winner, $550; second, $90; third, $40; fourth, $20.

Time, :24, :49 4-5, 1:17 4-5, 1:31 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Sarilla, $7.40 straight, $4.20 place, $3.00 show; Levi Cooke, $4.40 place, $3.20 show; Slipknot, $5.00 show. Winner trained by B. Johnson. Went to post at 3:30. At post 1½ minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same.

SARILLA displayed good speed from the start, was cleverly rated while setting the pace and, strongly handled to hold sway, outgamed LEVI COOKE in a strenuous drive. Latter, a strong contender all the way, bore out on the turns, finished with good courage, and was gradually wearing down the winner. SLIPKNOT, subjected to punishment maintaining a forward position, improved her position gradually and held on gamely in the drive.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs out of chute. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

BLUE BUD, taken in hand for the early racing, was taken to the lead gradually, responded gamely to strong riding and outfinished LOVELY SPY. Latter, slow to attain her best stride, gained steadily when subjected to strong pressure, offered good contention, but was not good enough. YES POLLY, suddenly improved, closed strong under hard riding but was no menace to the first two.

PILLNITA moved up stoutly after half a mile, took command, stood a long drive gamely, and won thereafter. CABOTIN, rushed to the lead early, continued gamely under occasional pressure, stood the drive gamely. LESSING overcame early interference and closed resolutely in a good effort.

DO YOU OWN A PLYMOUTH?

It gives you about everything you could ask for, doesn't it? A great car, and it deserves Eveready Prestone in the radiator—the anti-freeze that's approved by car manufacturers and guaranteed by National Carbon Company, Inc. It provides "one-shot," winter-long protection against freeze-up and rust.

Eveready Prestone will not evaporate no matter how warm the weather gets between cold spells. Has no odor, contains no alcohol or glycerine. And Eveready Prestone has again reduced prices, thanks to biggest sales in its history. Now only $2.70 a gallon. Your dealer has a chart showing exact cost for all cars in any temperature down to 62° below zero.

Put in Eveready Prestone now. Get the freeze-up question (and the rust problem) settled for the winter. According to the 20 year average, freezing weather should reach Chicago about Oct. 19.

Can Any Team Stop Gophers or Buckeyes?

prone to misjudge material because they do not have all the facts.

Spirit, or morale, plays a large part in any game. Dr. John Sutherland, of Pittsburgh, says morale counts 30 per cent. It is difficult for a team to reach the same height of enthusiasm week after week. For example, Notre Dame was on edge for Pittsburgh last Saturday, a factor that had much to do with victory over the Panthers. It remains to be seen if the Irish will have, or can have, the same spirit for this week's game against the Navy at Baltimore.

On occasion the result of a game, which is widely called an upset, is due to one team's defensive weakness dovetailing an opponent's greatest offensive strength. For example, a team which is extraordinarily weak against forward passes, because of back field inexperience, or because the secondary is slower afoot, may escape unless the opponent has passing strength. This defensive weakness will not be noticeable. The opponent may be held satisfactorily while line plays are used. But if the opponent strikes the weakest point with accurate passes, there's nothing much that can be done about it.

Fumbles Often Decide It.

Lastly, mechanical errors, fumbles which halt scoring marches, or mental misplays, such as indifferent generalship or mistake in assignment on a play which then loses ground instead of gaining, account for upsets. In this category, probably most common of all, are those games in which one team outgains and outpasses the other runs up an advantage in first downs, but loses to an opponent which capitalizes on a few opportunities.

When a team can gain 300 yards in a game yet scores only one touchdown, it is vulnerable to an opponent that is not considered its equal. Michigan's victory over Indiana is example of an alert team capitalizing on one mistake and checking an opponent which was superior when measured by yards and first downs.

Some Saturday afternoon this fall, the Big Ten will have its upset, and that time and place will coincide with the above conditions.

PLACE KICKING MASTERS MEET IN BEAR GAME

Manders Vs. Schwammel of Packers Sunday.

The Bears returned to hard work at Wrigley field yesterday, preparatory to meeting the Green Bay Packers at Wrigley field Sunday. The drill was devoted largely to defensive maneuvers by which the Bears will attempt to block field goals.

This method of attack is apt to figure prominently in Sunday's game. Jack Manders, the Bears' full back, whose play Sunday went a long way toward making Chicago fans forget the loss of Bronko Nagurski, is one of the most accurate kickers in football.

Ade Kicks Long Ones.

His effectiveness will be matched by Ade Schwammel, Packer tackle, who kicked two field goals, 39 and 42 yards, respectively, against Detroit last week. Schwammel is considered better at long kicks. Manders usually limits his efforts to attempts inside the 30 yard line.

In addition to Schwammel's kicking, the Packers present a dangerous threat at all times in their passing game, which is among the best in the league. They have thrown 112 passes in six games, completing 42 of them.

That Touchdown Pass.

The most important pass in this list of completions was the 83 yard toss, Arnie Herber to Don Hutson, on the first play of the Bear game at Green Bay. This pass went for a touchdown, by which the Packers defeated the Bears, 7 to 0.

The Packers have been beaten only twice in six games this year, losing to the Cardinals twice and defeating the Lions, Giants, and Pittsburgh.

The St. Louis Cardinal pitcher polled 66 points. Arky Vaughan, Pittsburgh shortstop, was third with 45, and Billy Herman, Cubs' second baseman, fourth with 38 points.

Five First Places.

The committee of ten writers from the association reported that Hartnett received five first place votes. Dean was given two first choice votes, and Wally Berger, Boston outfielder, one. Berger tied for sixth place with 20 points. Members of the committee voted for ten players, the first choice receiving 10 points, second nine, and down to one point for the tenth player.

Joe Medwick, St. Louis, 37; Carl Hubbell, New York, 20; Wally Berger, Boston, 20; Bill Terry, New York, 20; Augie Galan, Chicago, 18; Pepper Martin, St. Louis, 16; Hank Leiber, New York, 11; Lon Warneke, Chicago, 9; Ernie Lombardi, Cincinnati, 8; Frank Frisch, St. Louis, 7; Cy Blanton, Pittsburgh, 5; J. Passage Booked for U. S. Winter Olympic Teams

New York, Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Three teams of American athletes will sail from New York on Jan. 3 to compete in winter sports events of the 1936 Olympic Games in Nazi Germany. Passage for them already has been booked on the United States liner Manhattan.

This news, a slap in the face for the thousands who have protested against American participation because of the alleged discrimination against Jewish and Catholic athletes by the German Olympic committee, was disclosed today at the offices of the American Olympic committee.

The committee was unanimous in voting to send the teams abroad, said Dr. G. H. Hammond, a member of the committee as president emeritus. The approval was first voted a year ago, it was said, and the committee is standing by that decision.

In direct contrast to the decision to compete in the Berlin games in view of recent more friendly pronouncements by the Nazi authorities, came a denunciation of conditions in Germany by Stella Walsh, noted Polish-American sprinter, who has just returned from Germany where she competed with a Polish track team against a German girls team.

"There was a Jewish girl on our team," said Miss Walsh, "and at first the Germans refused to compete against her. They finally did, but when we were leaving, a big crowd kept hissing and booing us. The crowd would yell the Jewish girl's name and when she would look up they would shout "Jew" and spit. We all felt badly. No one can compete in an atmosphere like that."

"It's ridiculous," she said. "Why, they won't even let a Jewish girl or boy into the regular sport clubs where you train and compete. Then they won't let the Jewish clubs compete with the German clubs. When I was there one women's club was disbanded because they had a track meet with a Jewish girls' club."

HITLER HEAD MAN.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Oct. 22.—Chancellor Adolf Hitler will play the leading rôle at the opening of next year's Olympics in Berlin.

When athletes from all over the world have been assembled in the polo field, just outside the main stadium, the president of the international Olympic committee and the president of the organizing committee for the eleventh Olympics will enter the hall of honor. In the hall they will present to Hitler the chairmen of the various national Olympic committees. Hitler, surrounded by the chairmen, will then be conducted to his box in the Olympic stadium. When he arrives the games will be declared officially open.

Much Olympic literature issued by the German organizing committee points out that the games will occur under Hitler's patronage. The whole Olympic scene is dominated by the 249 foot Fuehrer tower.

JOE LOUIS' CHECK SQUARES UP FOR RELIEF TO FAMILY

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 22.—(AP)—The Brooks family, through the fistic magic that marked Joe Louis' sensational rise in the boxing world, evened financial accounts today with the Detroit welfare department.

Mrs. Lilly Brooks, mother of Joe, delivered to John F. Ballenger, welfare superintendent, a check for $269 in full payment of the aid given her family of twenty during seven months of 1927-28.

"I'm very happy to be able to repay the welfare department for what it did for my family when we needed help so badly," smiled the portly mother of the young colored fighter.

At the time the aid was extended the Brooks family consisted of Mrs. Brooks, her husband, their nine children, and Mrs. Brooks' nine children by a previous marriage—among them Joe, 13 years old at the time. Joe's real name is Joe Louis Barrow. His father died when he was a small boy.

NameUzcudun Louis' Foe in GardenDec.13

New York, Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Paulino Uzcudun of Spain will be the next opponent of Joe Louis. They will battle in a bout scheduled for fifteen rounds at Madison Square Garden Dec. 13 under the joint auspices of the Garden corporation and Mike Jacobs, who holds a contract on Louis.

This was announced today by Jacobs and confirmed by Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of Madison Square Garden, after a meeting of the board of directors, which approved the transaction.

The move bringing together the two most important rivals in the promotion of fights in the country caused a mild sensation in boxing circles. The agreement, as a matter of fact, calls for Jacobs to promote two fights in the Garden, the other to be held some time in March, in which Louis will be one of the principals, with the date and opponent to be named later.

Jacobs First Outsider.

This marks the first time that the Garden corporation has leased out its boxing privileges or taken in an outsider in the promotion of a professional fight and is regarded by some as forecasting a change in policy. If Jacobs succeeds in the two promotions planned it is possible that he will put on other fights for the Garden.

Under the terms agreed upon the Christmas fund is to receive 10 per cent of the gross receipts after taxes have been deducted. From the balance the Garden is to receive 12½ per cent as a rental, Louis 40 per cent and Paulino 20 per cent. What remains as a profit after expenses are taken out will be divided equally between Jacobs and the Christmas fund and Jacobs will, in turn, divide his share equally with the Garden.

Prior to entering into negotiations with the Garden management Jacobs had planned to hold the Christmas fund fight in the New York Coliseum in the Bronx. It was found, however, that the cost of renovating the building for the show would reach $30,000 and Jacobs turned to the Garden.

Paulino Arrives Oct. 31.

Paulino has agreed to terms and will sail from Spain on the French liner Lafayette, arriving here Oct. 31, when he will go into training at once, probably at Orangeburg, N. Y. Louis will arrive a short time later to begin training.

Uzcudun has fought most of the best heavyweights in this country and has never been knocked down, much less knocked out. He is one of the most durable of all heavyweights.

Paulino's last fight in this country was against the late Ernie Schaaf, to whom he lost a decision. Since then he has had numerous fights in Europe, among them two battles with Max Schmeling and one with Primo Carnera, held in Italy. His last fight was with Schmeling in Berlin, last June, when he lost the decision.

PLATAK TO PLAY HANDBALL AT MEDINAH CLUB

Joe Platak, national handball champion, will be featured in a match on the opening program of the 1935 handball season at the Medinah club of Chicago tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock. His opponent will be Maurice McCarthy, former Central A. A. U. champion.

In the preliminary to this event Art Shinner, former national champion, will oppose Sid Miller, present city titleholder from Milwaukee, home town of both men.

Louis J. Nelson, athletic director of the Medinah club, will complete the program with a short instruction exhibition in the court game.

PLAY AT PROVISO.

Talking It Over

ELMER LAYDEN says Fromhart's feat of jockying with Randour's three blockers in the Notre Dame-Pittsburgh game until Shakespeare and Carideo could come up from behind to make the tackle was the first time he had seen this done since Don Miller maneuvered similarly against Slagle of Princeton in 1924. . . . St. Philip to Battle Leo Before 25,000

A crowd of 25,000 is expected to watch the game between St. Philip High school's football team and Leo, Catholic league champion last season, at Soldiers' field Sunday afternoon, according to advance ticket sales. Proceeds of the contest will be donated to the Sisters of Mercy fund.

The annual cross-country championship of the Chicago Public High School league will be decided at Washington Park Nov. 9, A. H. Pritzlaff, director of athletics, announced yesterday.

Harrison Tech's football team, now in third place in the City league, drew a bye this week and will meet Mooseheart Saturday. It will be the 11th annual game between the two schools.

Hyde Park will play its central division game against Kelly Saturday morning on the University of Chicago practice field. Permission to use the Maroon gridiron was granted to Hyde Park yesterday.

The following elevens have yet to score points in their leagues: Sullivan in the City league, Morton in the Suburban and St. Michael in the Catholic league.

De Paul of the Catholic league leads in team scoring in the Chicago district. The north siders have scored 91 points in three games. Oak Park of the Suburban league is second with 74, while Leo and Harrison Tech are next, each with 62 points.

Layden Stands Pat on Irish for Navy Game

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's varsity went to work today preparing for Saturday's game with Navy at Baltimore. Navy, although outplayed both years, won 7 to 0 in 1933 and 10 to 6 last year.

The varsity had its first look at Navy formations in today's dummy scrimmage and will see them tomorrow in a scrimmage against freshmen. Since the team leaves early Thursday afternoon for Washington, D. C., a light limbering up drill at Griffith stadium Friday will be the only other workout this week. The team will stay in Washington until shortly before game time.

NAVY STRESSES DEFENSE.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—The Navy football squad put in a hard afternoon of practice today in preparation for the Notre Dame game in Baltimore Saturday. Its main features were a defensive scrimmage against squad B and running back kicks, a department in which Navy displayed a weakness against Yale.

Coach Tom Hamilton expects to start nearly the same team against Notre Dame that opened against Yale.

Iowa Eleven Loses Hallom for Season

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Yawrence Hallom, quarterback, has incurred a hernia which probably will keep him out of action all season, it was learned today. Joe Richards, veteran halfback, will be out of the Illinois game with a pulled leg muscle. Dick Bowlin, quarterback, also is expected to be missing from the lineup Saturday.

X-ray pictures revealed that Bowlin's shoulder injury in the Colgate game Oct. 12 had resulted in a bone separation. The Chicago sophomore has been withheld from all contact work since that time and there is a slight possibility that he may be fitted out with a special cast which will enable him to play. Bowlin gained 208 yards from scrimmage in the first three Iowa games, averaging 6.3 yards on each trial.

Hawkeyes Hold Scrimmage.

The Hawkeyes went through another two hour scrimmage today showing more snap than at any time this season. Coach Solem used the first string line against a freshman team but worked regular backs who have been on the casualty list sparingly as a precaution against further injuries. Capt. Dick Crayne and Dwight Hoover saw only a few minutes of action in scrimmage.

The Iowa squad will leave Friday morning for the Illinois game. Players will work out at the University of Chicago Friday afternoon and proceed to Danville, Ill., Friday night.

ILLINI USE YOUNGSTERS.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Ed Skarda and Bill Bennis, reserve ends, appeared in the first team lineup today as the Illini went through brisk paces for the Iowa game here Saturday.

Bennis, a brother of Chuck Bennis, last year's co-captain and star guard, and Skarda both have been developing rapidly.

Les Lindberg again played in his half back position and seems to be regaining condition. It looks as if the veteran back will play a large part of the Iowa game, although he may not be started. Lindberg's punting, passing, and running ability will greatly strengthen the Illini.

Coach Zuppke, still on the search for full backs, promoted Joe Brown, sophomore, from the "B" squad. Brown may be worked as reserve to Wilson and Theodore. Bob Seiler, sophomore quarter back, took part in the scrimmage until retired with a bump. After an offensive practice against the "B" squad the varsity went on defense against the freshmen, using Iowa plays with Leo Stasica impersonating Oze Simmons.

WOLVERINES ALERT.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Eleven of the smallest and fastest Michigan freshmen demonstrated to the Wolverine regulars this afternoon just how the intricate Columbia attack functions. The result of their efforts was nil as the big varsity ends and linemen crashed through to stop plays before they could get under way. But, it served to warn coaches and players that the magic Lou Little manufactures will be dangerous to Michigan's ambitions unless two or more Wolverines are able to spend most of their time in the Columbia backfield Saturday at New York.

Neither John Viergever, tackle, nor Sol Sobsey, guard, worked on offense because of slight injuries, but both were on the team that worked on defense against the Lion plays.

Bierman Shifts Wilkinson, Guard, to Seidel's Post

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Bud Wilkinson, Minnesota guard, was shifted to the back field today to make up for the loss of Capt. Glenn Seidel, who suffered a broken collar bone Saturday. Wilkinson worked at right half back as Coach Bierman tried to strengthen his back field in preparation for the homecoming game with Northwestern here Saturday.

Wilkinson prepped as a back field star at Shattuck academy. He was shifted to the line because of his size, and he remained on the line through his freshman and two varsity years at Minnesota. Standing 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighing 195 pounds, Wilkinson is one of the fastest men and best down field blockers on the squad. He also proved ball handling ability Saturday by picking up a blocked punt and scoring Minnesota's second touchdown against Tulane.

Because of a drizzle the squad was forced to divide its time between the fieldhouse and Northrop field today.

N. U. LINE STRENGTHENED.

Northwestern's football team jumped into the midst of preparations yesterday for another hard contest Saturday against Minnesota, defending conference champions, at Minneapolis.

The Wildcats will probably be strengthened in the line by the return of Sam Papich, veteran tackle, who has been out since early in the season with a knee injury. The return of Papich will give the Purple more speed at the tackle positions.

One of the biggest problems confronting the coaching staf is the ends, where injuries and inexperience have caused much trouble. The shifting of John Kovatch, sophomore quarter back, to left end, has relieved the situation somewhat. He turned in a fine performance against Ohio, being on the receiving end of two passes that paved the way for the Wildcats' one touchdown.

12 TO START FROM SCRATCH IN ELGIN TO CHICAGO RACE

Twelve riders in the field of 247 entered in the ninth annual Elgin to Chicago bicycle road race Sunday afternoon, yesterday were placed on the scratch mark by the handicap committee of the Amateur Bicycle League of America. Among this small group will be found several who are almost certain to make the Olympic team that will compete in Germany next year. Henry Sima, Illinois state champion for three years, leads the list of riders who will leave South State and Chicago streets in Elgin 18 minutes after the 72 riders with the limit handicap, and head for the finish in Humboldt park.

Charles Yaccino, Danish-American Athletic club star, will try to even the score with the state champion, who is competing unattached, for the trimming he gave Yaccino last year in the 60 mile grind.

MAROONS DEPEND ON PASSES TO BEAT WISCONSIN

Badgers Expected to Use Similar Tactics.

The University of Chicago's preparations for the Wisconsin game gave further indication yesterday that the battle will be punctuated by frequent forward passes. Against their respective opponents last week, Purdue and Michigan, Chicago and Wisconsin threw a total of 57 passes. Passes filled the air yesterday as the Chicago varsity, bouncing back to work after a day's layoff, rehersed on both offense and defense.

Three sophomore backs, Fred Lehnhardt, Bob Fitzgerald and Omar Fareed, figured largely in yesterday's doings. Only one of the three is likely to start, but all will see considerable action. Sam Whiteside, center, who had been expected to remain on the sidelines a few days because of a charley horse, was in action.

Maroon coaches expect no such whirlwind of speed as Purdue brought to the Midway last week, but they are respectful of Wisconsin's bulky line, its end sweeps and its forward passes. Wisconsin outplayed Michigan in the second half last week, scoring twice on passes from Tommerson to Wilson, the latter a sophomore who will probably start against Chicago.

BADGERS TO USE WILSON.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Johnny Wilson, 155 pound sophomore half back from Richland Center, who seemed to generate the spark for Wisconsin's last half attack against Michigan, has earned a place on the first team, it appeared this afternoon. Coach Spears may elect to start Wilson, but it is probable he will be sent into the game if and when a scoring opportunity presents itself.

The Badgers this afternoon began work toward improving their forward pass defense following the disastrous first half against the Wolverines, in which Bill Renner passed to three touchdowns. As much time this week will be spent in offensive air tactics, Spears indicated.

Plan to Use Passes.

Wisconsin's chief source of encouragement against Michigan was its success through the air. The Badgers completed 14 of 16 forward passes for a gain of 273 yards and Spears intends to throw plenty of passes at the Maroons Saturday.

Spears intends to stand pat on the lineup, with the possible exception of starting Erv Windward at quarter back in place of Bill Parrott.

OHIO DRILLS IN RAIN.

Columbus, O., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—The Ohio State team showed by its intensive training period today that it does not take the game with Indiana Saturday lightly. Rain again hampered the Buckeyes.

The hospital list, which has been unusually low since the season opened has been mounting until today nine Buckeyes were out of uniform. Only one, however, Jim Karcher, a guard, will be unable to play if called upon in the Hoosier battle.

George Brungard, left guard, has a hip bruise; Merle Wendt, end, a broken nose; Frank Fisch, Bill Boston, and Charles Hamrick all have leg injuries. Pincura probably will not be called to start the Indiana game.

INDIANA SHIFTS STAND.

Rain again forced the squad to work in the fieldhouse and precluded a kicking test of Capt. Reed Kelso's injured right foot.

New York, Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Rail issues regained favor in today's bond market and price advances were general in a turnover considerably heavier than in recent sessions. Transfers aggregated $14,262,000, par value, compared with $9,709,000 the day before.

Missouri-Kansas-Texas bonds continued as a pacesetter in the second grade rail group, although the spotlight was shared by Baltimore and Ohio, whose convertible 4½s moved ahead sharply, transactions in that issue involving large blocks. High grade rails also met increased demand and prices stiffened perceptibly in this bracket. Other sections of the high grade group also disclosed a noticeable pickup in investment buying.

Several issues of New Haven bonds worked higher, buyers apparently having no inkling of the disturbing conclusions reached by the interstate commerce commission, which announced after the market closed that it had declined to approve New Haven's application for a RFC loan for $5,000,000 to meet pressing obligations.

United States government bonds ran into profit taking early in the session from which only partial recovery was made, leaving closing quotations 5-32ds lower to 10-32ds higher. The 2⅞s of 1955 were the most active, losing 8-32ds. Treasury 3⅜s were 10-32ds higher.

Industrial bonds failed to present a united front. Murray Body 6½s dropped 3 points following the sensational advance of Monday; Studebaker 6s were a point lower and Warner Brothers 6s eased ¾ point. Higher prices were paid for Consolidation Coal 5s, American Rolling Mill 4¼s, and Republic Steel 4½s.

National Life Ins. Co. of Vermont.

Investors' Guide: I am considering the purchase of an annuity in National Life Insurance Company of Vermont. Since you have been so helpful to me regarding other investments, I am writing to you.—Miss L. A. P.

Answer: National Life Insurance company, Montpelier, Vt., a mutual company, began business in 1850. It has since grown to be one of the major life insurance companies. Insurance in force has shown a downward trend from the $616,888,000 peak established in 1930. On Dec. 31, 1934, it was $514,140,000, against $536,547,000 the year before.

Admitted assets, however, have increased steadily, totaling $158,814,000 on Dec. 31, 1934, against $151,796,000 the year before. At the close of 1934 21 per cent of admitted assets was in policy loans; 25 per cent in mortgages; 11.7 per cent in real estate; 28 per cent in United States government, state and municipal bonds, and 15.4 per cent in other bonds. Cash represented 2½ per cent of assets.

The company set up a $2,000,000 reserve to absorb possible losses on investments, but so far has not had to resort to it. Such losses as have been sustained have been met from operations. Average net yield on its real estate, the company reported, is fully as favorable as can be secured on short term investments.

Mortality ratio in 1934 was the lowest since 1930. The company earned a return of 4 per cent on its assets in 1934, against 4.1 per cent in 1933 and 1932.

Mexican Central Ry. Securities.

Investors' Guide: Perhaps you can tell me something about Mexican Central Railway Securities Company, Ltd., and its 100 pound sterling debentures.—G. R. J.

Answer: The assets of Mexican Central Railway Securities Company, Ltd., consist of securities of National Railways of Mexico. On Jan. 31, 1935, these were carried on its balance sheet at cost, 7,550,000 pounds sterling, but based on recent quotations their liquidating value was little more than 216,000 pounds sterling.

This indicates a value of only about 4½ per cent of outstanding debentures. The B debentures are junior to the A debentures, so it appears that the B series has only a remote speculative value.

The last quotation we find on the B debentures was 0.31 per cent of par value bid, 0.05 per cent asked.

The outlook for the debentures, both the A and B series, is very poor, particularly in view of the present attitude of the Mexican government.

PENNSYLVANIA TELEPHONE ISSUE OFFERED TODAY

Expect Two Large Utility Deals Soon.

An issue of $5,200,000 first mortgage 4 per cent bonds of the Pennsylvania Telephone corporation maturing in 1965 will be offered publicly today at 101 and accrued interest by a banking group consisting of Bonbright & Co., Paine, Webber & Co., and Mitchum, Tully & Co.

The company, which is controlled by General Telephone corporation, will use the proceeds of the new issue to retire three outstanding issues of first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, aggregating $5,200,000. The new bonds are dated Oct. 1, 1935.

Expect Two Large Issues.

Registration statements are expected to be filed with the securities and exchange commission soon by the New York and Queens Electric Light and Power company for an issue of $25,000,000 thirty year 3½ per cent bonds, and by the Southwestern Bell Telephone company for an issue of 3½ per cent bonds to refund $48,826,000 in bonds of a higher interest rate. Both of these issues will be underwritten by a syndicate headed by Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc.

The utility issue is expected to be the next offering by the Morgan firm, and, according to present plans, will be marketed late next month. The Southwestern Bell issue probably will not reach the market until December.

Buffalo Bonds Offered.

The city of Buffalo, N. Y., awarded a issue of $4,000,000 refunding bonds to a banking group headed by Edward B. Smith & Co. on a bid of 100.3599. Reoffering was made by the successful syndicate at prices to yield from 1.00 to 3.30 per cent, according to maturity.

An issue of $1,000,000 state of West Virginia 3 per cent and 2½ per cent road bonds is being marketed today by a banking concern headed by the Northern Trust company. The Harris Trust and Savings bank is a member of the group. The 3 per cent bonds mature $40,000 each year from 1936 to 1948 and are offered to yield .50 to 2.60 per cent. The 2½ per cent bonds will mature from 1949 to 1960 and are priced to yield 2.50 to 2.70 per cent.

COTTON PRICES RISE 4 TO 5 POINTS ON TRADE BUYING

Trade buying continued active in cotton yesterday. Strength in Liverpool was more than sufficient yesterday to offset hedging sales. Closing trades on active deliveries in Chicago were 4 to 5 points higher, while other markets gained 2 to 11 points. Speculative interest was not large. The E. H. Miller-J. E. Bennett & Co. ginning report showed a total of 6,670,000 bales ginned to Oct. 18, compared with 6,744,000 bales last year. The census bureau report on ginnings is due today. Spot cotton closed 5 points higher, with New Orleans and Galveston 11.05 cents, Houston 11.00 cents, and New York 11.20 cents per pound. Prices follow:

BOSTON EDISON BOARD APPROVES NEW ISSUE OF CAPITAL STOCK

Boston, Mas., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Directors of the Edison Electric Illuminating company of Boston today voted to recommend the issuance of 89,146 new shares of capital stock, to be offered to present stockholders at $140 a share, at the ratio of one new share to six of the 534,875 now outstanding.

The only opposition was recorded by Lewis H. Weinstein, assistant corporation counsel of the city of Boston, who questioned the wisdom of the management in asking for a stock issue instead of a bond issue. He contended that the cost of a stock issue, considering federal taxes and other expenses, would be $400,000 greater.

Frank D. Comerford, president of the Edison company, said the issuance of the shares will provide approximately $12,500,000 which will be sufficient with the treasury cash available to meet the maturity of the $16,000,000 notes due April 15 next year.

"Issuance of this stock will complete the permanent financing of the plant investment of the company on a very favorable basis," he added. "The company will have no bank loans and no debt except the $53,000,000 of thirty year 3½ per cent bonds sold a few months ago on an extremely favorable basis to the company.

Loses Steam Through Valves.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—I am operating a round "Arco" steam heating plant in a two flat building. The plant is about twelve or fourteen years old and is satisfactory, but I think it could be operated more economically if I knew just how to equip it with the proper vents for the radiators. The returns at the boiler are equipped with a very small vent, which allows the steam to escape nearly all the time. Is there a good vent I could use on the returns at the boiler? I am told a good deal of heat can be saved by having the proper vents on the radiators, etc.

Any vents I have priced have been so high that I did not feel that they would pay for themselves for a long time. In common with many people I am trying to hold the building in the face of constant loss in operating expenses and do not feel able to put much money into the place. Would it pay to have the boiler covered with some kind of insulating material? If so, what would be the approximate cost? H. K. B.

Answer—If the air vents on your radiators and return lines on your boiler allow steam to escape it is because they are defective, and there may be a considerable loss of heat from this condition. They should be replaced with new valves. A still greater loss of heat occurs when a steam boiler and its pipe lines are not covered. Without knowing the size of your boiler and its lines we cannot estimate the cost of covering, but we are sure it would be a good investment.

PLAN OFFERED TO REORGANIZE MEDINAH CLUB

Action Taken by Master When Litigants Disagree.

A plan to reorganize the Medinah Athletic club, owner of a 42 story club and hotel at 505 North Michigan avenue, was submitted to Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday by George E. Q. Johnson, special master.

Johnson said he had held many hearings in connection with the reorganization, which is proceeding under section 77 B of the bankruptcy act, but that no plan had been submitted which was satisfactory to all litigants. He therefore submitted a plan of his own.

Plan New First Mortgage.

It provides for the sale of an undetermined amount of new first mortgage bonds to raise $300,000 cash for taxes and for additional amounts to pay reorganization expenses and provide working capital.

Assets of the company would be transferred to a new corporation with capitalization consisting of the first mortgage bonds, $2,377,500 of 20 year general second mortgage bonds, $100,000 of non-interest bearing income certificates, and 24,143 shares of common stock.

Each $100 old first mortgage bond would be exchangeable for one new $50 general mortgage bond and half a share of common, involving a total of $2,100,000 of new bonds and 21,000 shares of stock.

Junior Lien Offer.

The $655,000 present second mortgage would be exchanged for $244,715 of new general mortgage bonds, 2,815 shares of stock and the $100,000 of income certificates. The second mortgage is owned by the Seneca Securities company.

The $655,704 of general unsecured debt would be satisfied with one new $50 bond and a half a share of stock for each $1,000 claim, a total of $32,780 of bonds and 328 shares of stock.

The plan contemplates five directors for the new corporation, three to be named by first mortgage bondholders, one by the second mortgage owners, and one by the court.

First mortgage bonds outstanding total $4,200,000.

CORD CORP. GIVES UP CONTROL OF AMER. AIRLINES

Another step in the segregation of the airplane transport and manufacturing properties controled by the E. L. Cord interests was taken yesterday. The Cord corporation, a holding company, authorized the distribution to its stockholders of its holdings in American Airlines, Inc., and Canadian Colonial Airways, Inc.

Cord holders of record Nov. 2 will receive 36-1000 share of capital stock of American Airlines and 18-1000 share of capital stock of Canadian Colonial Airways for each share of holding company stock. The dividend will be distributed Nov. 22.

Cord corporation's holdings in the transport firms represent the stock it received recently from Aviation Corporation of America, of which it was the largest owner. Cord remains the largest stockholder in Aviation corporation, whose business is now confined to aircraft manufacturing companies and aeronautical enterprises other than domestic air mail contractors.

The distributions by Aviation and Cord are being carried out in compliance with the provisions of the air mail act of 1934 which ordered the segregation of the manufacturing and the air mail transport branches of the industry.

Elmwood Park State to Pay Depositors 9 Pct. Return

Repayment of another 9 per cent or $52,178 to depositors of the Elmwood Park State bank was authorized yesterday by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett. This brings total returns to 19½ per cent. Of the current distribution, 7½ per cent will be paid out of funds obtained in ordinary liquidation and 2 per cent from stockholders' liability collections. Receiver William L. O'Connell announced that $202,168 has been paid on old bills and $14,373 to preferred creditors in addition to depositor payments.

CABELL CALLS FOR SHOWDOWN ON TAX BURDEN

Says Public Must Pay New Deal Bill.

R. H. Cabell, president of Armour & Co., yesterday demanded a "showdown" on the subject of taxes and their effect in raising the prices of things the public buys. His address, the first on business and governmental conditions since his recall from England to head Armour, was made before the Institute of American Meat Packers at the Drake hotel.

R. H. CABELL.

He attacked the practice of forcing business of every description to serve in the rôle of tax collector without that fact being apparent to the people from whom in large part the taxes are being collected. The net result is that business draws undeserved criticism, he said.

Public Must Pay Bill.

"Every one knows that our federal government is spending sums of money so vast as to be beyond the comprehension of ordinary mortals," Cabell continued. "I do not feel that it is my place to say the money shouldn't be spent, but I wish I could record, in a voice that could be heard throughout the nation, the fact that the individuals who make up the nation are paying the bill. That they are not aware of it is due to the manner in which it is collected.

"Business has no hidden treasury out of which it can obtain money to pay taxes. It has only one way to get the money, and that is to include the taxes in the cost of operations. The money will have to come from consumers, producers, and stockholders, and it means that the margin between the price of meat and the price of live stock will have to be widened to just that extent."

Asks Experiments End.

There is abundant reason to hope that the government will, at an early date, cease experimenting with the control of production and give us a free field in which to operate, Cabell declared.

G. F. Swift, chairman of Swift & Co., and Thomas E. Wilson, chairman of Wilson & Co., lauded the "outstandingly efficient service" packers gave to consumers, cited the small profit per pound of meat handled, and pleaded for a better public understanding of the packing industry and its problems.

Donald D. Davis, president of General Mills, Inc., urged all business to apply direct sales advertising to acquaint the public with the situation brought about by processing taxes, the regimentation of farm production, and other governmental policies.

Assails Policies.

These, said Davis, have disorganized our sources of supply and placed the products of industry at a distinct competitive disadvantage. "Our quarrel is not with the objectives of the present plans, but with the unsound fundamental theory and present questionable practices," he added. "When fear of bankruptcy becomes greater than fear of political persecution, we can look toward effective presentation of real facts to the American housewife, and not continue to permit the deceptive half-truths of political demagogs even in high places to be the only side of the story heard."

Frank A. Hunter of East St. Louis was reëlected chairman of the board and William Whitfield Woods was reelected president of the institute at its closing session. Thomas E. Wilson was reëlected chairman of the plan commission. The five vice chairmen renamed include E. A. Cudahy Jr. of Chicago. H. Harold Meyer, Cincinnati, president of the H. H. Meyer Packing company, was reelected treasurer.

Moulton Views Show New Deal on Wrong Tack

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president of the Brookings institution, has just completed the expenditure of $150,000 and many months intensive labor seeking to discover the causes of prosperity and depression. He arrives at a set of conclusions which would indicate that if the politicians in Washington had tried to prevent the return of prosperity in this country they could not have adopted a better economic program than that which they have followed.

Dr. Moulton's fourth volume, "Income and Economic Progress," completes a series in which he presents his findings and conclusions. It correlates much of the material contained in the preceding three volumes, "America's Capacity to Produce," "America's Capacity to Consume" and "The Formation of Capital."

* *

These works by Dr. Moulton, who was formerly professor of banking at the University of Chicago, and his colleagues, present an academic viewpoint on present day economics almost completely at variance with the shibboleths of the brain trusters in Washington. They represent the latest arguments for the laissez faire school of economics.

The chief findings reported in the four volumes are:

1. That there was no "overproduction" in the United States even during the boom days of the late twenties.

2. That the failure of the nation to use its full productive power has been due mainly to maladjustment of the distribution of income, with resultant inability on the part of people in the low income groups to consume as much as they would like to consume or as much as could be produced.

* *

3. That schemes to increase the cash incomes of certain groups of the populace solve nothing because they do not increase the incomes of all groups and because the resultant rise in the cost of living offsets even the increased incomes of the particular groups benefited, thus preventing any increase in production.

4. That curtailment of production, either voluntary or by government decree, results in no improvement in the standard of living because the standard of living is measured by goods consumed rather than cash income.

5. That "share the wealth" schemes are economically fallacious because they do not provide for a satisfactory standard of living for everybody, the problem being not to divide existing wealth but to create more wealth.

6. That cartels, monopolies, codes and other instruments to peg prices at artificially high levels are the greatest hindrances to prosperity.

7. That the way to increased consumption—and hence greater utilization of production facilities and increased employment—lies in reduction of prices.

* *

"The price reduction method of distributing income," says Dr. Moulton, "has an outstanding advantage over other methods in that the benefits are extended automatically to the entire population. An increase in money wages, with prices remaining stationary, will enlarge the buying power of the wage earning group, but it will not directly improve the position of the equally important portions of the population which do not work for wages.

"Similarly, profit sharing may bring higher standards of living to that particular section of the population which is in a position to share in profits, but it will be of no direct value to the agricultural population or to persons whose incomes are derived from salaries. But a reduction of prices gives to every purchaser a larger return for his money.

* *

"The broad highway along which continued economic progress must be sought is the avenue of price reductions. When this road is followed the benefits of technical improvements are conferred automatically upon all divisions of the population.

"Maximum opportunity for expansion of production and the free interchange of goods, both between different divisions of our domestic economy and between nations, is thus provided. Such a method, instead of centering upon a redistribution of an existing amount of income, promotes the progressive erection of additional income and its prompt and thorough dissemination among the entire population."

He cites as an illustration the automobile industry, which has continuously improved its product and lowered its prices, thereby enabling an increasing number of people to consume the larger and better product.

U. S. Imports Farm Produce at Record Rate

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—The commerce department today reported record imports of farm products during the first nine months of this year, with records approached in some other instances.

This reversal of the United States' traditional position as an exporter of agricultural products extends to almost every line in the total figures for the year to date, experts said.

Exports of farm products continued at a low level in September. Barley, oats, and cotton were the only export commodities listed which showed gains for the month as compared with the same period in 1934.

Imports of Meat Increase.

Imports of meat products, lard, canned meat, barley, oats, wheat, and condensed milk showed a further gain from August, although corn, butter, ham, bacon, beef, and veal imports receded somewhat.

So far as exports were concerned, there was a decline last month in meat products, canned meat, lard, ham, bacon, butter, and corn. The usual seasonal trend upward of farm exports at this time of year managed to produce some gains.

Meat products imports were 21,800,000 pounds larger than a year ago; beef and veal, 7,500,000 pounds more; ham and bacon, 2,200,000 pounds more; canned meat, 27,000,000 pounds more; lard, 13,200,000 pounds more; butter, 21,400,000 pounds more; wheat, 10,000,000 pounds more; corn, 34,000,000 bushels more; wheat flour, 1,100,000 pounds more; unmanufactured tobacco, 1,900,000 pounds more, and raw cotton, 28,800,000 pounds more.

Figures For Nine Months.

Only oats and barley were exported in greater quantity during the nine month period than last year, while imports were greater right down the list.

Most striking export declines for the nine month period included drops from 193,000,000 pounds of meat products to 123,000,000; 403,360,000 pounds of lard to 88,720,000; 2,442,000 bushels of corn to 156,447; 16,727,000 bushels of wheat to 155,938.

Most noticeable import increases were: 45,151,000 pounds of meat products to 86,989,000, 626,000 pounds of ham, bacon, etc., to 2,846,000, 308,000 pounds of lard to 13,506,000, 816,000 bushels of corn to 34,309,000, 152,000 barrels of wheat flour to 1,277,000.

SAYRE TO SPEAK AT WORLD TRADE MEETING TONIGHT

Dr. Francis B. Sayre, assistant secretary of state, will speak tonight at the Palmer house before the conference on world trade, which opens this morning under the sponsorship of the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Export Managers' club of Chicago. Clifton M. Utley, director of the Chicago council on foreign relations, will also speak at the evening session.

Other speakers on the program today are Harry Tipper, American Manufacturers' Export association; Edward L. Bacher, United States Chamber of Commerce, and Kenneth H. Campbell, National Association of Credit Men.

RESERVE MONEY BOARD MEETS BUT TAKES NO ACTION; HANDS TIED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Rendered impotent by the huge block of government securities which they dare not sell, the open market committee of the federal reserve system met briefly here today without taking any action.

The committee of reserve bank governors which determines whether the reserve banks shall intervene in the money market by buying or selling government bonds met largely to satisfy the legal requirement that they assemble four times each year.

Huge gold imports, which are pushing excess reserves of banks to dangerously high levels, make the purchase of government bonds by the reserve banks, an operation designed to build up reserves, unnecessary.

On the other hand, the reserve banks dare not sell any of their abnormally large government bond holdings lest they break the shaky government market, thus jeopardizing the solvency of all banks holding government paper.

Confronted with this dilemma, the committee held only a perfunctory meeting. After it had adjourned early in the day a reserve board attaché said that only "routine affairs" were discussed.

The reserve banks now hold, as a result of the easy money policy, a record breaking total of 2 billion 430 million dollars' worth of government securities.

RFC PROMISES EARLY ACTION ON COUNTY FUNDING

Bond refunding plans now under consideration by the Cook county board have been placed before the Reconstruction Finance corporation, principal holder of county obligations and early decision as to the attitude of the government agency toward entering into a refunding plan has been promised. This was revealed yesterday by Clayton F. Smith, president of the board, following his return from Washington.

In company with other county officials Smith had conferred with officers of the RFC on the proposals for refunding $48,000,000 in bonded debt. The RFC holds more than $13,000,000 of the bonds. The county board has four refunding plans. Nearly $10,000,000 of its debt is past due.

RFC officials, Smith said, gave no indication of the attitude which directors might take on the proposals. Jesse H. Jones, RFC chairman, was not present at the conference.

Chicago Mail Order Co. Declares Extra Dividend

The Chicago Mail Order company yesterday declared an extra dividend of 12½ cents and the regular 25 cent quarterly dividend, payable Dec. 2. A similar extra dividend was paid in the three previous quarters. E. M. Schnadig, president, was elected chairman of the executive committee and R. L. Arnheim, secretary, will assume the duties of treasurer.

Burlington to Seek Speed Record Today

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—An attempt will be made tomorrow to break all American train speed records when the Burlington railway will try out its new streamlined train, the Mark Twain, over a 53 mile stretch of track between McCook and Oxford, Neb. The new train, powered by a 3,600 horse power Diesel electric engine, will be placed in service between St. Louis and Burlington, Ia.

Witnesses to the tests will be twelve directors of the railroad, including Gen. R. E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Frank B. Kellogg, formerly secretary of state; Charles F. Glore of Field, Glore & Co.; Laird Bell, Chicago attorney; R. Douglas Stuart of the Quaker Oats company, and a number of guests, including Gen. Charles G. Dawes, formerly vice president of the United States.

The group left Chicago this morning on the Mark Twain for a four day tour. As their special covered the 393 miles between Chicago and Creston, Ia., in 398 minutes the group considered business in the private car of Ralph Budd, president of the road. The time made by the special was an hour and a half faster than that of the fastest mail train between the two cities. At the conclusion of the meeting President Budd said he expected the directors will take important action on the road's policies Thursday.

Budd said the high speed of the directors' special may be a forerunner of new fast service between Chicago, Omaha and the west, although no decision has yet been made on increasing speed.

The party were guests at a dinner tonight attended by 200 Omaha business leaders.

Appeals Court Bans Vote on N. Y. City Power Plant

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—A referendum on a proposal for the erection of a municipal power plant in New York City will not be on the ballot in the election next month, the Court of Appeals decided unanimously today. The appeal was that of the New York City board of elections from the decision of the Appellate division, which had upheld a ruling of Justice Edward S. Dore that the proposition was invalid as it called for the financing of the plant by a bond issue to which the credit of the city was not pledged.

GREYHOUND LINE TESTS LEGALITY OF LABOR BOARD

Hits Wagner Act in Union Dispute.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Attorneys for the Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines, Inc., challenged the constitutionality today of the government's new national labor board in another case heralded as the start of a fight that ultimately may reach the nation's highest court.

J. WARREN MADDEN.
[Acme Photo.]

The board, created by the Wagner labor act to take jurisdiction in industrial disputes involving the worker, was called upon to hear a complaint that nine employés were discharged from the bus line for affiliating with a union. It is the first case to come before the three man board, headed by J. Warren Madden.

Charges Constitution Violated.

At the outset of the hearing, Ivan Bowen, general counsel for the bus line, submitted his answer to the charges and set forth three alleged violations of the constitution which he claimed were involved in the creation of the board. His grounds were:

1. That the national labor relations act is invalid because it delegates legislative power to the labor board.

2. That it delegates judicial powers to the board.

3. That it violates the constitutional amendment prohibiting involuntary servitude, seeks to abridge the freedom of speech of the employer, and denies the company the right of trial by jury.

Dismissal Plea Denied.

The board immediately denied Bowen's petition to dismiss the complaint, which was filed formally by counsel for the Pittsburgh regional labor board.

The complaint, in addition to citing the discharge of the nine men, declares the Greyhound company attempted to restrain other employés from joining the union and threatened discharge to workers who contributed to a so-called "company union"—outlawed by the Wagner act.

Counsel for the American Federation of Labor charged in their complaint: "The Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines, Inc., and Greyhound Management Company, Inc., have engaged and are engaging in unfair labor practices."

WILLIAMS NAMED HEAD OF GREAT LAKES DREDGE

John R. Williams has been elected acting president of Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company, it was announced yesterday. He succeeds John F. Cushing, who died recently in an airplane accident near Cheyenne, Wyo.

John A. McCormick was elected chairman. He has been a director of the company for seventeen years, is a banker, and is chairman of the Independent Pneumatic Tool company.

Williams has been identified with the company for the last twenty-four years. He was in charge of eastern operations until the early part of this year, when he was transferred to the Chicago office.

Directors declared a regular dividend of 25 cents a share and an extra payment of 50 cents, payable Nov. 15 to stock of record Nov. 4.

Judges Flout Plea to Collect Process Tax

Minneapolis, Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Three federal judges sitting en banc today denied the petition of the federal government asking dissolution of an injunction against collection of the processing tax on wheat which was obtained last July by Gold Medal Foods, Inc., a subsidiary of General Foods, Inc.

In handing down their order sustaining the injunction, the judges made it clear they were not impressed by the last minute amendment to the agricultural adjustment act which was passed in the closing days of the last session of congress. The amendment was designed to prevent processors from obtaining refunds on taxes already paid.

Judges Condemn Amendment.

"It is repugnant to one's sense of justice and fairness," the decision said, "that a taxpayer be required to pay a tax he believes unconstitutional and then by legislation be prevented from obtaining court determintion of its legality."

"This order," the court added, "upholds the right of the taxpayer to have the legality of the processing determined in court."

The court commented on the fact that the United States Supreme court is expected to rule on the validity of the tax in a "relatively short time." The court ordered that the food company continue to pay the taxes that accrue each month to the clerk of the federal court. The funds will be impounded until the consitutionality of the tax is decided.

Twenty-two similar actions are pending in the court here and several hundred throughout the country. Approximately $6,000,000 in taxes from various companies contesting the act have been impounded by the court.

Distillery Gets Injunction.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—The Penn-Maryland Distilling corporation was granted a temporary injunction in the United States District court today to prevent the bureau of internal revenue from collecting processing taxes on corn.

Joining a host of other manufacturers in challenging the constitutionality of agricultural adjustment act, the concern was instructed to pay the tax to the clerk of court until a decision is made by the United States Supreme court. A similar suit was filed recently by Hiram Walker & Sons distillery.

NINE MONTH NET OF E. I. DU PONT GAINS SLIGHTLY

Net income of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. for the first nine months of 1935 totaled $40,154,667, equal after debenture dividends to $3.22 per common share, the company announced yesterday. This includes dividends on General Motors stock held amounting to $1.13 on each share of du Pont, and compares with net of $38,727,818, or $3.10 a share, for the corresponding 1934 period, when the per share earnings on General Motors stock were the same.

In the three months ended Sept. 30, 1935, net totaled $17,704,182, or $1.48 a share, against net of $15,174,220, or $1.24 a share, for the third quarter of 1934.

During the first nine months of this year the company's income from operations, excluding amounts received from investments and allowance for federal taxes, but after depreciation and obsolescence, was $29,156,192, against $24,541,555 in the first nine months of 1934.

N. Y. Stock, Board of Trade Membership Prices Decline

A membership on the New York Stock exchange was sold yesterday for $130,000, a decrease of $5,000 from the last previous sale. The low this year was $65,000 in April, and the high was $135,000 on Sept. 7. A seat on the Chicago Board of Trade was transferred at $6,000, a decline of $60 from the previous price.

STOCKS HALTED IN UPTURN BY PROFIT TAKING

Favorites Irregular; Volume Expands.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 22.—Activity was high on the stock exchange again today, but most of the leaders of yesterday's rally encountered some heavy profit taking. The result was considerable irregularity.

Such trading favorites as Westinghouse, Western Union, Chrysler, U. S. Smelting, du Pont, Johns-Manville, General Motors and Montgomery Ward were called upon to surrender from major fractions to as much as 3 points of their newly-won gains. Others like American Can, J. I. Case, Consolidated Gas, New York Central, Public Service of New Jersey, Standard Oil of New Jersey and American Telephone continued to push ahead, many of them going to new highs for the last four years or longer.

Railroad, utility and steel stocks advanced in group formations. Miscellaneous specialties were bid up smartly.

Volume of Trading Expands.

The volume at around 2,840,000 shares was the second heaviest since midsummer of last year. For a while in the early dealings business was at a 4,500,000 share-day pace.

The adjustment in the market was largely anticipated and did not create much bearish sentiment. Indeed, traders were gratified by the performance of the general list in the face of heavier offerings, brokers said, and the reduction in volume after early sales had been absorbed. Price movements were highly mixed at times but it was obvious that major positions had not been disturbed.

The power and light shares were conspicuously active throughout the session. Consolidated Gas, American Water Works, Public Service and North American were the favorites. Columbia Gas reached a new high for the year on an upturn of more than a point. Consolidated jumped nearly $2 a share. Brooklyn Union rose 3 points and the various issues of Electric Power and Light moved up major fractions to more than a point.

Can Stages Spurt.

Can stocks were shoved up 2 to 3 points, but profit taking shaved some of the fast movers of the division from their early highs. In the steel group National Steel reached a new top and American Rolling Mill was active at a new high price. U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Otis claimed the bulk of the trading interest.

Packard kept up its swift pace in the motors department but could make no net headway, due to realizing sales. Chrysler continued under pressure in spite of reports that the corporation's board would meet at an early date for dividend action.

Oils were mixed most of the time but the group as a whole closed a shade higher. Pure Oil was strong.

The packing group was less ambitious. Wilson suffered a small setback and the Armour group was in a droopy mood.

Gains of 1 to 2 points were made by the more active rails, including Atchison, Delaware and Hudson, Union Pacific and Great Northern.

ICC DENIES PLEA OF NEW HAVEN FOR RFC LOAN

Believe Action Will Speed Reorganization.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—A request of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad for a $5,000,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation was rejected today by the interstate commerce commission.

This was the first time in the commission's administration of federal loans to railroads that such an application was denied by formal order to a class 1 carrier. Except for some less important roads, the commission has heretofore informed applicants by letter when its decision was adverse, permitting them to withdraw their requests. The money was to have gone to pay taxes and maturing equipment trust obligations.

Collateral Insufficient.

The I. C. C. found that New Haven collateral already pledged with the RFC for previous loans was insufficient to secure the additional advance, that its prospective earning power was inadequate to insure repayment within a reasonable period, and that the road was in need of financial reorganization. The latter finding was of a negative character. The commission actually said it was unable to certify that the New Haven was not in need of such a reorganization.

One of the "circumstances" cited by the commission with respect to the road's earnings was its own estimate that it would have an operating deficit of $3,882,970 for the current year and a deficit of $5,006,400 in net income after meeting certain guarantees.

Trusteeship Predicted.

Commission officials said unofficially they believed the road is destined for trusteeship. Taxes amounting to $5,009,100 due to states and municipalities through which the road operates would become collectible before Jan. 1, 1936, and would have to be met, they pointed out.

Although there was no mention of it in the commission's written decision, it is understood it suggested to the Pennsylvania railroad, which has working control of the New Haven, that it might well guarantee the proposed federal loan. The Pennsylvania is understood to have rejected this suggestion.

FLIGHT OF GOLD RESUMED; MONEY MARKETS MIXED

Dollar Advances Against Pound; Off on Franc.

New York, Oct. 22.—[Special.]—The lagging flight of gold from abroad to this country was jarred out of its lethargy today when $14,617,000 of the metal was engaged in Great Britain for shipment to the United States. This was the only engagement reported for the day, but is the largest amount yet taken in the London market in a single day for accounts in this country.

Considerable mystery surrounded this transaction. Size of the deal resulted in considerable speculation by bankers, especially in view of the fact that the pound sterling showed a net advance of ¼ cent on the day, closing at $4.91⅝. Its low for the day, however, was ½ cent under this quotation.

Source of Flight Puzzling.

Bankers were inclined to credit the gold as having come from the British equalization fund as the result of the purchase of dollars by the British treasury. While the metal may have emanated from the huge pile of hoarded gold in London, this opinion was discounted in most informed circles in view of the fact that the engagements were made after the price of gold was raised 2 pence to 141 shillings 7 pence an ounce in the British market. This was equivalent to a rise of 2½ cents to $34.78½ in American funds.

Today's engagements brought the total to date since the inauguration of the present movement to $432,900,000.

Additional Bullion Received.

Gold receipts today amounted to $2,474,500 from France. The receipt of an additional $2,229,500 from France was reported for Monday. This brings the total so far received in this country to $382,900,000. There were no exports and earmarked gold remained unchanged.

In terms of the franc the dollar was worth $1.0060, based on its devaluated par, against $1.0062 yesterday, and 59.42 cents on the old par, compared with 59.43 cents.

CATTLE DECLINE SHARPLY ON FEAR OF NEW BOYCOTT

Fears that a new meat boycott is in progress in New York were blamed for the sluggish condition of the live cattle market as well as the distressing situation at some of the distributing points in the east. Beef is reported piling up in cold storage houses and some wholesalers report declines of $1 to $3 in the last three weeks.

Several carloads of selected 220 to 250 pound averages topped the market at $12.63, processing tax, included, the lowest mark for top hogs since the middle of July. The average at $12.15 failed to show the break because of the larger proportion of young hogs selling in the upper price brackets.

Trade in lambs was sluggish, with prices steady to 25 cents lower. Part of the decline was attributed to the plainer quality of the stock.

A. & P. Stores Celebrate Seventy-Sixth Birthday

The 76th anniversary of the founding of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company will occur this week, H. A. Alexander, sales manager, said yesterday. The organization which today operates nearly 15,000 stores, had its origin in a tea company started in 1859 by George Huntington Hartford, father of John A. Hartford, the present head of the company.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today as far as spot supplies were concerned. These were quoted nominally at 3.60c per lb, based on the last sale reported, but over-quota sugars were a little steadier and sales were confirmed of 80,000 bags of Puerto Ricos for November shipments to refiners at 3.25c.

In futures prices showed further declines as a result of continued December liquidation, which had a sympathetic effect in the later deliveries. Prices at one time were 2 to 8 points lower on active positions but covering and trade buying checked the decline. The close was 7 points lower on December and 1 to 2 points lower on later positions. Sales were 11,100 tons, including 4,200 in exchanges.

TRADE IN STOCKS HERE BROADEST DURING YEAR

135 Issues Appear on Tape; Changes Mixed.

Trading in Chicago stocks extended over the broadest front of the year yesterday as 135 issues appeared on the tape in a turnover of 106,000 shares.

Prices moved higher, although trends were mixed. Thirty-three new 1935 highs were recorded as 54 stocks advanced. Thirty-nine issues remained unchanged and 42 declined as mild profit taking arrested several of the recent market leaders.

Utilities, Specialties Advance.

Utilities and specialties led the upward movement while merchandise shares were steady. Motors were active but fractionally lower. Packing shares receded a trifle in good turnover. Steels, among the recent leaders, declined. Keystone slumped 3 points and Continental 1.

Public Service no par and common struck new highs on gains of 2 points or more. Edison advanced 2. The heaviest trade of the day was in Central and Southwest Utilities, where a 10,900 turnover carried prices up ⅜ to equal a previous high of 1⅞.

Many Issues Hit New Highs.

Other new highs included Automatic Products, E. L. Bruce, Chicago Flexible Shaft, Iron Fireman, Lincoln Printing, McCord Radiator, McGraw Electric, Modine, Oshkosh Overall, Penn Gas and Electric A, Ryerson, Standard Dredge, Sutherland Paper, Wieboldt, and Williams Oilomatic.

Chicago corporation common was the second most active issue with turnover near 10,000 shares.

REHEARING ASKED ON ROCK ISLAND MERGER PLAN

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—(AP)—The protective committee for 7 per cent and 6 per cent preferred stock holders of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad applied to the interstate commerce commission today for a rehearing of its plea for permission to intervene in reorganization hearings of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad company.

The committee recently suggested to the commission a consolidation of the Rock Island, the C. & E. I., and the St. Louis-San Francisco railway. The C. & E. I. is a Van Sweringen controled line. All the railroads are in receivership and the committee wants them combined into one great midwestern system.

COTTON GINNING TAX IS CUT FROM 6 TO 5.45 CENTS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—(AP)—A reduction in the Bankhead cotton ginning tax from 6 to 5.45 cents per pound of lint cotton, effective as of Oct. 21, was announced today by the AAA.

The Bankhead law provides that a tax shall be collected on all cotton ginned in excess of a national allotment.

Reporting a total of 29,808,220 cotton spinning spindles in place on Sept. 30, bureau of census officials said today this was the first time that the number had fallen below 30,000,000 in any month for fifteen years.

SURFACE LINES TO BUY FIFTEEN TROLLEY BUSES

Guy A. Richardson, receiver for the Chicago Surface Lines, said yesterday that contracts will be let in a few days for 15 additional trolley buses which will be used to supplement equipment now in use. The announcement was made after Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson had authorized Richardson to spend $180,000 for the new buses.

The company now owns and operates 120 trolley buses on the north and northwest sides of the city. With the addition of the new equipment it will have the largest bus installation anywhere.

HUGE WAR COST TO ITALY SHOWN BY WORLD BANK

GENEVA, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Statistics of the Bank of International Settlements sent to the league of nations today indicated the big cost to Italy of the Ethiopian war.

The figures showed that during the first ten days of October the Bank of Italy lost 206,000,000 lira in gold. Experts estimated that if this figure is taken as an average, about 453,000,000 lira, or over ten per cent of the Italian gold reserve at the end of September, has been withdrawn in the past three weeks.

EGGS RALLY ½ TO ⅝ CENTS; BUTTER DULL ON UP SIDE

Egg futures rallied sharply yesterday on the Chicago Mercantile exchange after a lower opening and closed at the top with net gains of ½ to ⅝ cents. October finished at 24⅝ cents per dozen. Short covering and new buying was largely responsible for the upturn.

Futures were dull early, but firmed later on increased consumption, and closed ⅜ cents higher, with November at 27½ cents per pound. Sales of butter were 84 cars, eggs 249 cars, and potatoes 2 cars. Deliveries on October contracts were 2 cars each. Prices follow:

WHEAT EASIER; RALLY FOLLOWS EARLY DECLINE

Foreign Prices Lower; Trading Is Dull.

Wheat prices on the Chicago Board of Trade averaged slightly lower yesterday in one of the smallest day's tradings in several weeks. Early in the session there was scattered selling of the old crop months in sympathy with easier Liverpool cables, but there was no material pressure. A rally later wiped out practically all of the loss and the close was within small fractions of the finish on Monday after a range of about 1 cent for the day.

Despite the letup in war talk from Europe, dollar wheat appears to be firmly established in the Chicago market. Both the December and May deliveries are receiving good support on all declines below that level from commission houses on resting orders. Other than the reports regarding political developments abroad there has been a sameness in the character of the news for some time.

Traders Await Developments.

With the more peaceable outlook in Europe the trade is showing a disposition to await further developments in either the domestic or world's supply and demand situation before taking an aggressive stand on either side of the market.

Cables yesterday reported some improvement in the outlook for the new Argentine and Australian wheat crops, but the total exportable surplus this season from the southern hemisphere is expected to be well below that of last year. A somewhat smaller oriental demand is now anticipated as the result of an increase of around 11,000,000 bushels in the Manchurian crop.

December corn acted somewhat congested and advanced 1⅝ cents per bushel over Monday's close at the high point, due to short covering induced by the unfavorable weather for gathering the new crop. Oats and rye were dull.

Prices for December Futures.

	Yesterday.	Monday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$1.00⅞	$1.01¼	$1.02¼
Corn	.60⅞	.59⅝	.59⅝
Oats	.27⅛	.27⅛	.27⅝
Rye	.49¾	.50⅛	.50⅝

An overextended short interest is reported in December corn and it took little buying to lift prices sharply. The close was at a premium of one cent per bushel over the May delivery, compared with even at one time last Saturday. The open interest in the December contract aggregates nearly 17,000,000 bushels, and with supplies of old grain practically exhausted any deliveries of cash grain must be from the new crop. This makes the market sensitive to unfavorable weather conditions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—A countervailing tarif duty on imports of rye and rye flour from Poland was ordered today by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau to offset export bounties reputedly paid Polish farmers.

The additional tarif will be about $1.50 per 100 kilograms of rye and $1.90 per 100 kilograms of rye flour under the order issued tonight by the treasury. The extra tarif is to equalize the export bounty, which the treasury estimates at 7.89 zloty on rye and 10 zloty on rye flour.

Assessment of the countervailing duty on Polish rye settles a long controversy about imports from that country flooding American markets and underselling American rye.

The order will be of little benefit to American farmers, however, since the rye harvesting and importing season is now closed. The order is effective 30 days after date of publication.

The American Farm Bureau federation plans to ask the next session of congress for new excise taxes on certain foreign products, it was disclosed today. Chester Gray, Washington representative, said the bureau will seek enactment of excise taxes on tropical starches, blackstrap molasses, processed egg products and chemical pulp and pulpwood.

LARD DROPS 2½ TO 5 CENTS ON INCREASED HOG RECEIPTS

Liberal hog receipts and lower prices at the stockyards increased pressure on lard futures yesterday. Closing trades were at net losses of 2½ to 5 cents. Outside and professional interest in the market, according to brokers, was not large, and the more peaceful character of the political news from abroad has dampened bullish enthusiasm considerably. Cash lard closed at $14.45; loose, $14.40; leaf, $14.37, and bellies at $18.45 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds follow:

NEAR NORTH SIDE

It's very nice when you close your desk at the end of the day to know that after a short, brisk walk just 5 blocks north of the river, you will come to a quaint little lamplighted court that makes you feel far away from Chicago, where up a winding stairway there's a charming little studio that—well you're glad you live there, that's all. It's great to have a little home with a fireplace, delightful to live in and interesting to your friends and that's what we try to give you. We are glad to make changes that you personally may suggest. The rent of one of our best studios is very reasonable if a lady portrait artist is allowed the use of the studio during the day on week-days only. One little sky parlor studio in the Italian court, $50. Also daytime studios and shop space.
